STORM HITS COAST OF N. CAROLINA AND MOVES NORTH

EXPECTED TO REACH JERSEY TOMORROW

Wind Reaches 55 Miles an Hour in Norfolk — Two Lives Are Reported Lost at Sea.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The Weather Bureau said today the tropical disturbance was moving up the Atlantic Coast near Cape Hatteras, N. C., at 10 miles an hour and was expected to reach the Southern New Jersey coast tomorrow. Caution was advised all vessels in or near the path of the storm, which was described as of gale proportions.

Unless the direction of the storm changes, the bureau said the center would not pass near the capital, but Washington would experience high winds.

Whole gale warnings were ordered posted along the coast north of the Virginia Capes to Atlantic City. Northeast storm warnings were ordered continued at Baltimore and Philadelphia and north of Atlantic City to Boston. Similar warnings were directed from north of Wilmington, N. C., to Hatteras, with whole gale warnings between Hatteras and Virginia Capes.

New Bern, N. C., Inundated in Storm Sweeping State.

By the Associated Press.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 16.—Tides and winds swept over the North Carolina coast today, inundated towns and severed communication. Two persons were known to have drowned and a third was missing.

The wind, of hurricane velocity from the tropics, rushed on toward Virginia. Sea resort residents there fled to safer ground.

But, changing its course this afternoon, the tropical storm shifted to the north and apparently for the time removed threat of further damage to Norfolk and vicinity.

Further threat of storm damage was officially declared past at 2 o'clock this afternoon by J. J. Murphy, in charge of the local weather bureau, and Norfolk and vicinity may look forward to clear skies tomorrow.

The hurricane was the second from the tropics in two days. The first struck the coast of Mexico yesterday and left six dead, 50 injured and 2000 homeless in the Tampico district.

New Bern, N. C., a coastal city of 11,000 inhabitants, was inundated. The Coast Guard cutter Pamlico, its wireless furnishing the only means of communication for the city, sent out a call for relief workers and dispatched a landing party to give immediate aid.

Water Waist Deep at New Bern.

A resident of New Bern reaching Kinston, N. C., reported "indescribable confusion" and said water was waist deep in the business section. The tide rolled in from Pamlico Sound, he said, and swelled against the already flooded Neuse and Trent rivers.

The Pamlico reported a Neuse River bridge swept away, waterfront property destroyed and lights and communications cut off.

Several other coastal towns were reported flooded. The storm began moving inward as it approached Virginia and was expected to be in full fury there at about noon. A 43-mile gale pushing ahead of the hurricane toppled over two cottages, reported unoccupied, at Willoughby, Va.

The Radio Marine station at Tuckerton, N. J., picked up a message shortly after 10 a. m. saying the British steamer New Mexico was in distress off Fourteen Foot land light. The message reported the U. S. S. Kalmia on the way to give assistance.

Two Lose Lives at Sea.

Two known storm victims were an unidentified seaman of the motorship Sun, swept overboard by high seas off Hatteras, and a Negro fisherman who drowned at Roanoke Island.

The center of the storm had passed Cape Hatteras and the preceding swirl of its winds were lashing at Cape Henry and the Virginia coast.

Along the Virginia seaboard there was a steadily rising gale. It reached a velocity of 65 miles an hour at the Capes before 10 o'clock, and the peak was due here during the afternoon. A blow of 55 miles an hour was recorded in the city proper and Weather Bureau officials said it would increase steadily.

DOCTORS LET MOSQUITOES BITE THEM TO SEE IF THEY CARRY SLEEPING SICKNESS

Scientists Who Are Experimenting Here on Themselves Expect to Obtain Results in 10 to 14 Days.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Human experiments on sleeping sickness have been started in St. Louis.

Dr. W. T. Harrison, one of the St. Louis staff, today reported to Surgeon-General Hugh S. Cumming of the Public Health Service, that three of the scientists working in St. Louis had volunteered to make an attempt to settle the question of whether encephalitis is being spread by mosquitoes.

Harrison, who came to Washington for a brief conference with the Surgeon-General, said the test was started yesterday. Mosquitoes, which had bitten encephalitis patients, were allowed to bite the three doctors who volunteered. It will require 10 to 14 days to see whether or not the disease was transmitted by mosquitoes, Harrison said.

The experiments, which are similar to those which solved yellow fever malaria, are being conducted under the direction of Dr. J. P. Leake. Dr. Charles Armstrong is serving as laboratory expert.

The Public Health Service declined to divulge the names of the scientists who are experimenting on themselves.

Surgeon-General Cumming said every man doing it was of the type who would not seek public honor for the risk he was taking, and that virtually every man working in St. Louis in an attempt to learn about the baffling disease had taken equal risks in the study of some disease and was willing to take this one.

John McCormack Sings Ave Maria at Daughter's Wedding

Church Filled and Police Hold Back Crowd Outside Anxious to Hear Him.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—John McCormack, famous tenor, sang today at the wedding of his only daughter, Gwendolyn. He had come all the way from Hollywood.

The Brompton oratory was the center of one of the most interesting weddings London has known. Many distinguished persons gathered to see Miss McCormack and Edward Pyke, a Liverpool business man, married by the Bishop of Liverpool. But besides the invited guests were many who remained in the oratory after an early mass in the hope of hearing McCormack sing. The church was filled.

So great was the crush that one of the big flowerstands collapsed. Quick action by ushers prevented it from falling on members of the congregation.

Crowds outside tried to storm the doors, having heard that McCormack was to sing. An enlarged police squad was necessary to keep them back.

The awaited moment came when McCormack arose. A hush fell over the congregation, whose members knelt as the Ave Maria floated through the oratory.

Freiday was quoted by a local newspaper as saying the object of the new exchange was to establish itself in Newark to carry on the business now conducted in New York in order to avoid that city's recently imposcd taxes on brokerage transactions.

SLEEPING SICKNESS CAUSES 3 MORE DEATHS; TOTAL 150

TREATMENT BY ARTIFICIAL FEVER

Physician at Missouri Baptist Hospital Says It Seems to Relieve Some Symptoms.

Deaths of epidemic encephalitis rose to 150 in St. Louis and St. Louis County with three reported today. The dead:

Mrs. Amelia Abel, 63 years old of 7163 Washington avenue, University City.

Mrs. Eugenia A. Chapman, 78, of 5220 Cote Brilliante avenue.

Indications that the epidemic may be slackening in the city as well as in the county were regarded as convincing today when the city reported only 12 new cases. The county reported eight, completing the second week since the apparent crest was reached in the county.

Since July 30 the Metropolitan Health Council has listed 76 St. Louisans and 74 residents of the county who died of the disease. Ten of the St. Louis deaths were reported to the council only after repeated scrutiny of the records. It was believed that, with county and suburban health departments stretching limited facilities to handle he urgent phases with an efficiency which has brought comment from local, State and national health authorities, final figures may be compiled only by study of vital statistics at Jefferson City. Duplicates are not filed in the county as they are in St. Louis.

Senior Surgeon J. P. Leake, directing the United States Public Health Service Corps at Oscar Johnson Institute in a many sided study of the outbreak, was informed by telegram yesterday that Dr. L. L. Lumsden, public health officer in charge of the New Orleans area, had bene sent to Independence, Mo., near Kansas City. Dr. Lumsden wired that he would confer with Dr. Leake here tomorrow.

Electric Fever Treatment.

Among treatments which local physicians have used for the relief of patients—along with the symptomatic treatment. Formulated in other encephalitis epidemics—is an electrically produced fever. Like other forms of physicotherapy employed in various St. Louis hospitals, patients in Missouri Baptist Hospital have seemed markedly relieved by this treatment of the "grippy" aches which attend the disease.

The treatment, related Dr. J. S. Young, head of the hospital &-ray and physical therapy departments, to which the patients were referred by their physicians, relieves these symptoms by aiding circulation and elimination. Conceivably, he said—judging only by experience in treating other infections with artificial fever—it might have some effect on the disease virus itself, but the evidence so far was insufficient to form any conclusion on that point.

The fever is producd by infrared light, which radiates heat through the body. It has been used only in mild cass, where temperature wavered between normal and sub-normal to 100 degrees or slightly higher. It has been maintained artificially at 102 or 103 degrees for two hours or more, depending on how the patient reacts.

Other measures toward the same effect are being employed in other hospitals. Convalescent serum and a streptococcus serum developed at Rochester, Minn., have been used without definite results. Transfusions have sometimes been found helpful, with the natural strengthening effect plus the possibility of transferring some immunity to the patient.

Dumping Milk From Truck in Producers' Strike

SCENE near Harvard, Ill., where dairymen and their sympathizers have been trying to stop the supplying of milk to Chicago.

110 MILK FIRMS IN CHICAGO CITED AS CODE BREAKERS

Secretary Wallace Orders Them to Show Why Their Licenses Should Not Be Revoked.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Chicago milk dealers, working under an agreement unaffected by the Farm Adjustment Administration's new milk policy, today faced further regulation.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has signed 18 more orders—increasing the total to 110—requiring retailers to show why their licenses should not be suspended or revoked for failure to comply with the milk agreement.

Chicago does not come under the new policy because its agreement, which fixes the price to the producer as well as the retail price, was adopted previously. The new policy fixes only the price paid to farmers and sets the maximum retail price.

Officials said the new policy might lead to a revision of the Chicago milk shed agreement. motions are pending to raise the price to producers and boost the retail price from 10 to 11 cent a quart.

Of the 110 who have been cited by the administration to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked, only one, the Meadowmoor Dairies, Inc., has answered the charges.

Striking dairymen prevented attempts of their neighbors to send milk to the Chicago market yesterday. In only a few instances, however, was there violence. A few cans of milk were spilled at several points, drivers of trucks were pulled from their seats, and a farm youth was injured by flying glass when stones were thrown through the windshield of his truck.

Four trucks carrying eight men and hundreds of pounds of milk tried unsuccessfully to run the picket lines at Harvard, twice previously the scene of violence. As in other similar cases, they were forced to return home.

Wisconsin Committee Urges Wallace to Adopt New Milk Plan.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 16.—The Wisconsin dairy committee has recommended to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace that he abolish the "complicated" machinery established for price regulation in the various branches of the industry and arrange a new plan of centralized control.

Pointing out that the cheesemakers, the evaporated milk producers, ice cream and butter men and the fluid milk industry have set up separate price boards, the dairy committee declared that no reasonably uniform price for the farmer's product could be established by these methods.

Summary of Coal Code Draft Now Under Discussion

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.

HERE is the gist of the principal provisions of the code of competition adopted by a committee of 18 leading operators and submitted to the industry at large:

The miner is permitted to work no more than 40 hours a week.

He is to be paid on a wage scale adjusted to a basic scale for skilled underground labor, ranging from $5.63 in Montana to still undetermined figure in Alabama. Operators from Alabama say $3 is too much. The miner is permitted to join any union he pleases—company, national or district—or refuse to join any union at mines not already under "closed shop" union contracts.

Appalachian operators, long opposed to unionization, feel they have won a point in having attached to the code a statement from heads of the NRA administration that says, in part, that labor provisions of the National Recovery Act could "mean only one thing, which is that employes can choose anyone they desire to represent them, or they can choose to represent themselves —employers likewise can make collective bargains with organized employes or individual agreements with those who choose to act individually."

The miner has the right through his representative to check the weight or measure of the coal he turns out.

He can not be required to live at a company-owned house or deal at a company store.

No person under 17 years old may be employed in a mine.

In return for concessions to labor, the operators are permitted to combine to fix prices of coal.

The producers expected to fix prices to stop cut-throat competition through establishment of marketing agencies authorized in the code.

Prices will be subject to approval of the member of regional administrative bodies appointed by the President.

Numerous practices tending to demoralize the coal market, adopted by some operators during recent hard times, are forbidden. Granting of rebates under published prices is an example.

Labor disputes will be referred to whatever mediation machinery the operators and miners choose to establish.

If disputes affect operators or miners of more than one region, if a regional settlement affects other markets, or if the general public is to be affected, disputes will be referred to a national bituminous labor board, whose decisions will be binding for six months.

Kansas City Politician Accused of Evading Levies in 1929 and 1930 by Grand Jury.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 16.—John Lazia, North Side Democratic leader, was indicted by a Federal grand jury here today on a charge of evasion of Federal income taxes for 1929 and 1930.

The indictment contained three counts, one for evasion of Federal income tax in 1929, and two counts charging failure to file a return in 1930 and evasion of tax liability for the same year.

The charge is a felony providing punishment of a fine or prison sentence or both.

The jury made its report to Federal Judge M. E. Otis. Indictment of Lazia, who is a lieutenant of T. J. Pendergast, Democratic boss, came after the jury revived, at the insistence of one of its members, charges early this year filed by the office of United States District Attorney W. L. Vandeventer.

OPERATORS STILL APART AS TO COAL CODE DETAILS

Wrangle Over Wage Contracts Continue in Applalachian Group as Johnson Goes to White House to Discuss Situation.

SMALL GROUPS ARE SIGNING UP.

"Clarification" Statement Says Employers "Can Make Collective Bargains With Organized Labor or Individual Agreements."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Renewed pressure from President Roosevelt to bring the bituminous coal negotiations to a conclusion was indicated this afternoon as Hugh S. Johnson, the NRA chief, went to the White House to confer with the chief executive, and wrangling of the coal operators over wage contracts which blocked a final agreement, continued.

There were indications that unless the accord was reached quickly the disputing operators would be called back to the White House where they reached a tentative agreement last night.

It was the Southern Appalachian group of operators, who for years have operated non-union mines, which was delaying final accord.

Small Groups Signing Up.

Meanwhile other small groups were affixing their signatures, and the major northern and southern Appalachian groups were awaiting action on the wage scale so they could hold a joint session on ratification of the code.

Johnson Goes Into Conference.

Johnson went into conference this afternoon with the operators and leaders of the United Mine Workers of America who are drafting union contracts for the commercial mines in the Appalachian production area. He declined to comment on the nature of his visit.

The miners and operators were understood still to be laboring with adjusting tonnage rates to the basic minimum wage called for in the code. Word spread that operators were ready to affix their names to the code for the industry as soon as the contracts were finished.

The Appalachian spokesmen, representing 70 per cent of the country's soft coal output, were attempting to complete contracts with the United Mine Workers for recognition of the union throughout the hitherto unorganized areas.

By its terms, the code provisions begin to govern the industry on the second Monday after its approval by the President and will continue in force until April 1 of next year and indefinitely beyond that point unless the President should amend or cancel it at that time. By signing today, President Roosevelt could shorten the time until the effective date to one week.

Expected to End Strike.

Final approval will close more than two months of negotiations and is expected by the administration to end the strike of Western Pennsylvania miners who walked out in protest against delayed wage increases.

When the soft coal's committee of 18 approved the code draft last night, Johnson issued a statement which he said was authorized by the President. It said:

"After all-day conferences a bituminous coal code agreeable to the conference representatives has been approved for recommendation to the group of individual operators and associations of producers to whom copies have just been relayed.

"They are now under consideration for action at the Shoreham Hotel. The conferees represent a very large majority of the national tonnage."

The Proposed Wage Scale.

Three hours later, the hotel meeting recessed without final action. Johnson was present and told newsmen not much more time was needed to get the code to the President.

The code, as finally written by the operators, provided for a 40-hour maximum work week and a minimum pay scale ranging from $5.63 in Montana to $3.75 for Southwestern states. Alabama and Western Kentucky, which have demanded even lower rates, are to continue negotiations with the administration. The rates were for skilled underground labor. Other wages are to be adjusted proportionately.

U. S. ENVOY TRIES TO MEDIATE NEW CUBAN TROUBLES

PRESIDENT SAYS HE WON'T RESIGN

(Copyright, 1933, by the Associated Press.)

HAVANA, Sept. 16. — United States Ambassador Sumner Welles held a long secret session today with a committee of the student directorate, strong supporter of President Grau San Martin.

This was the Ambassador's first contact with the new government and came at a time when Grau San Martin, in another closed meeting, told his strongest opponents that he would not accede to their demands that he resign the presidency, to which he ascended less than a week ago.

Welles was said by a student spokesman to have expressed approval of the directorate's pro-Government program. But he left the impression that he disagreed with the students' methods of bringing about their ideals.

Wants Criticism Explained.

The Ambassador left the conference apparently well pleased but did not comment. A student representative said Welles had sought an explanation of criticism directed at him in some quarters and had denied rumors he was protecting 500 army and navy officers defying the new government from the National Hotel.

The student spokesman quoted the Ambassador as saying there would be no United States intervention in Cuba, although it was possible American Marines might be landed if the lives and property of Americans in Cuba were threatened.

Welles and the committee met in the home of Eduardo Chibas, secretary of public works under Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, whose return to the presidency is sought by the officers in the hotel.

Afterward, students took positions near the hotel and compelled residents in the Vedado section to drive 16 blocks out of their way to reach their homes.

They said the government had been informed that the officers planned to start firing on the 500 soldiers and students who held them virtual prisoners in the hotel. The officers are supplied with many weapons.

Pressure on President.

Meanwhile, powerful forces, including the A. B. C. and O. C. R. R. secret societies, the nationalist followers of Col Carlos Mendieta and supporters of former President Mario G. Menocal, during a protracted session, insisted Grau San Martin make way for a new government of national scope.

The meeting of the opposition factions failed to reach an accord, the president announced. Another meeting will be held tomorrow afternoon.

COAL OPERATORS STILL APART ON DETAILS OF CODE

chian operators for inclusion of a clause which would guarantee the "open-shop" at their mines was reflected in the addition of NRA's "clarification" statement to the collective bargaining language put in every code.

"Clarification" Statement.

In that statement, Johnson and Donald Richberg, the administration's general counsel, said in part that employers "can make collective bargains with organized employes or individual agreements with those who choose to act individually."

The code also provided that miners should have the right to choose representatives to check the weight or measure of the coal they mined; that any deductions from pay, if not agreed to by miners and operators, should be subject to such rules as the Administrator might prescribe; that miners could not be compelled to live in company houses or deal at company stores; that no person less than 17 years old should be employed in the mines, and that the NRA should investigate the possibility of changing wages and hours and submit its findings to a conference of miners and operators Jan. 5.

Fair prices for coal could be fixed by marketing agencies or, in their absence, by divisional code authorities.

A long list of "unfair practices" which have developed as a result of intense competition was barred.

Divisional code authorities, with a national bituminous coal board at their head, would administer the code.

All labor disputes would be referred to an arbitration system to be set up by miners and operators. At its head would be a national bituminous coal labor board whose decisions would be binding for at least six months.

Official Cites Better Housing, Increasing Sobriety and Cheaper and Better Food.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—England is healthier than at any time in its history, says the chief medical officer in the Health Ministry, because of better housing, higher wages, increasing sobriety, and cheaper and better food.

Sir George Newman points also in his annual report to the importance of a wholesome water supply. He describes especially the canker worm of the slums which, he declares, "is body-destroying and soul-deadening."

Sir George directs attention to a large increase in the number of suicides—5743 last year, compared to 2896 in 1909. He attributes the increase "partly to the pressure of troubles of the times and partly to a changing psychology toward the act of suicide as a means of release."

PRISON LABOR CODE SUBMITTED TO NRA

Purpose Is to Prevent Unfair Competition With Free Industry.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—A code for prison labor was presented to Hugh S. Johnson yesterday.

The plan for convict-labor worked out by a committee representing prison boards, called for a maximum 40-hour week—without minimum pay stated—but with a proviso that labor costs must be figured in the production charge.

Thirty-two States were represented in formulation of the code. Approval of the code, it was said, would bring prison labor into active co-operation with the recovery program and would minimize the probability of "the adoption of more drastic codes" by various industries that would "prohibit markets to all prison-made goods."

The code would prohibit sale at less than production cost and would require that labor charges per unit be the same as for goods made by free labor, with the statement that this was done so prison products "would compete for markets fairly and equitably."

The code proposed that industries within prisons be diversified as much as possible, after considering trade and market conditions, and to regulate expansion of prison industries to prevent a disproportionate competition.

The States' representatives nominated as their members on the code's authority board, John J. Hannan, president of the Wisconsin State Board of Control; Harold E. Donnell, Maryland's Superintendent of Prisons, and Dr. Walter N. Thayer, New York Commissioner of Corrections and president of the American Prison Association.

INDICTMENT AGAINST BANKER AT AKRON, O., IS DISMISSED

Head of Closed Depository Had Been Accused of Misapplication of Funds.

By the Associated Press.

AKRON, O., Sept. 16.—An indictment charging Sterling B. Cramer, former president of the closed First Central Trust Company, with misapplication of funds, was dismissed yesterday by Judge Carl C. Hoyt.

Judge Hoyt sustained a demurrer to the indictment which was returned by a County Grand Jury because of the withdrawal on March 1 from the bank of $60,700 by the Enterprise Manufacturing Co. and of $294,000 by the B. F. Goodrich Co.

The Judge held that the "Akron plan" of restricted withdrawals adopted by the First Central during the banking crises in February was without authority of law. This ruling, Prosecutor Ray B. Watters said, opens the possibility of recovering certain funds that were not impounded by the State when it took over the bank.

STORM HITS COAST OF NORTH CAROLINA AND MOVES NORTH

ahead of it, the Weather Bureau at Norfolk warned that the peak winds may bring with them the unprecedented heights of Aug. 23, when Willoughby Spit was inundated, and other sections of the city flooded waist deep.

Plate glass windows in Norfolk City were being shattered as the winds grew more and more violent. Several large ones in the business area were blown out about 10 o'clock. Shipping, train transportation and bus service to and from the Tidewater area was largely suspended before noon. Street cars in many sections of the city were stopped on their tracks and deserted.

The tide was rising steadily through the downtown streets of Norfolk. It had reached a depth of more than three feet at the corner of City Hall avenue and Granby streets, center of the city. Boats were pressed into service to ferry pedestrians to higher sidewalks. All traffic was stopped. Persons began appearing on the streets in bathing suits.

Persons in low-lying cottages at Fort Monroe, across Hampton Roads, were moved into the wall-surrounded old fort today while soldiers piled sandbags at the gates in preparation for high water. A wind velocity of 68 miles an hour was reported from Fort Monroe.

Messick, Poquoson and Yorktown were cut off from wire communication after Messick had reported the south bank of the York River under water for a distance of about three miles inland. The land in the area is very low. Water was reported nine feet deep in a store at Messick.

6 DEAD IN STORM AT TAMPICO, MEX.

TAMPICO, Mex., Sept. 16.—Relief workers today began caring for 50 injured persons and 2000 made homeless by a hurricane which swept this district yesterday. Six persons were killed.

Continued rains raised rivers to flood stage and the resulting damage.

Relief headquarters were set up in the city hall.

The Tampico hospital, a refinery, an asylum and houses at a nearby resort were wrecked.

Six small boats were sunk in coastal rivers.

The city was left practically without light and power.

In Cardenas, 150 miles west of Tampico, a railroad bridge is said to have given way and the lower part of the city was flooded, driving residents to higher ground.

American women living at Santiago were removed from that city today to the shelter of Puerta Del Sal, across the bay, due to disturbed conditions in the interior.

STONE CRUSHERS OPPOSE CODE

To Center Resistance at National Meeting in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The National Association of portable stone, sand and gravel producers, organized here to fight certain provisions in the proposed NRA code for the sand, gravel and stone industry, will meet in Chicago Sept. 25 to oppose provisions of the code which they claim are detrimental to the operations of portable stone crushing interests.

M. O. Weaver of Iowa Falls, Ia., president of the association, said NRA officials assured him final action on the code would be withheld until his group presents formal objections. Weaver said manufacurable stone crushing equipment from every state would attend the Chicago meeting.

DALLAS JAILER HELD IN BAILEY'S ESCAPE

Another Man Accused of Abetting Desperado's Flight From Prison.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 16. — Tom Manion, night jailer, and Grover C. Bevill, alias Jack Beval, were held here today in connection with the escape of Harvey Bailey, Southwest desperado, from the Dallas County jail Labor day.

Manion faced a charge he "voluntarily suffered Bailey, a prisoner in the custody of Marshal J. R. Wright, to escape." Against Bevill was lodged a charge he "aided, abetted and assisted Bailey in escaping," and that he "rescued Bailey from the custody of Marshal Wright."

Arraigned yesterday before Lee R. Smith, United States Commissioner, the men are held under bonds of $10,000 each. Bailey, armed with a pistol, escaped from the jail after sawing the bars of his cell. He was recaptured four hours later near Ardmore, Ok.

A Federal official later expressed the opinion that "about $50,000" was the price agreed upon between Bailey and those who aided him in his Labor day break from the Dallas County jail. He declined to elaborate on the statement.

Bailey is awaiting trial in Oklahoma City for the $200,000 kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, oil millionaire. He also is charged with murder in connection with the killing of four officers and a recaptured convict, Frank Nash, at the Kansas City Union Station, June 17.

Frank J. Blake, agent of the Department of Justice, said Federal agents had learned cartridges for the pistol smuggled into Bailey's cell had been purchased at a Dallas hardware store and that hacksaw blades used by Bailey to saw his cell bars had been obtained at the same store. "We have positively identified the man who made the purchase," Blake said.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Sept. 16. Five defense motions in the Urschel kidnaping case were overruled yesterday by Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught. The action removed the last legal barriers to the trial of Harvey Bailey and other defendants charged with abducting Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil man, and collecting $200,000 ransom.

Declares He Attaches "The Utmost Importance "to Friendship of Nations.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Sept. 16.—Koki Hirota, Japan's new Foreign Minister, in an interview today, said that "the Japanese nation and I personally attach the utmost importance to the friendship between Japan and America."

He added, however, that "before answering a question whether a new Japanese-American treaty, either of arbitration or non-aggression, is necessary, I require further time to study the relations of the two countries."

Hirota expressed the hope that the situation would never arise in which special action to maintain the two nations' friendship would be needed. "We must do everything in our power to prevent such a situation," he declared.

"While we should remain on the best terms with all nations, he went on, "particular attention must be paid the relations with our three great immediate neighbors, China, Soviet Russia, and the United States."

He added that if China "would take correct cognizance of the situation in Manchukuo, Chinese-Japanese relations would immediately improve."

Roosevelt Bars Interpretation Of Labor Clause in Recovery Act

Rejects Statement Prepared by Advisory Boards in Effort to End Strikes—Will Wait for Specific Case.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—President Roosevelt has rejected a statement agreed on by the NRA Labor and Industrial Advisory Boards designed to interpret the collective bargaining guarantee in the recovery law.

Roosevelt was represented as believing the law's language was clear and fair, and that any further attempt at interpretation would only complicate the situation.

Instead of attempting a new interpretation of what has proved the most disputed section of the law, the President plans to await a specific case.

The labor compromise, which Mr. Roosevelt overthrew, was negotiated by the advisory boards in an effort to end some of the labor disturbances over the country.

Many codes yet to go before the recovery administration have incorporated in them the so-called merit clause, providing for hiring or discharge of workers without regard to union affiliation.

This clause was written into the automobile code, but Hugh S. Johnson, the administrator, and President Roosevelt have indicated they would not permit it again. Such an interpretation is opposed by organized labor as an attempt to qualify the law.

United States Senator Wagner of New York, chairman of the National Labor Board and a co-author of the recovery act, also believes that the law is clear and no statement is necessary.

The dispute over the merit clause has caused reports of resignations from the Industrial Advisory Board composed of nationally known business men. Some of those industries that have included the clause in their codes have declared an intention to stand together against its deletion.

It was because of this confusion and the increasing number of strikes that Johnson requested the two boards to seek an agreement. If they failed he had intended to draft a statement for submission to President Roosevelt.

The accord of the boards was reached after two acrimonious sessions.

SOVIET GROUP SEEKS CREDIT FROM R. F. C.

Chairman Jones Tells of Negotiations for $50,000,000 Advance to Amtorg.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Committee, today confirmed the report of negotiations looking toward the extension of a credit of $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 for Russian purchases in the United States, but said they were "about where they were a month ago."

Jones conferred yesterday with officials of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, the official trading agency for Soviet Russia in the United States.

"We have signified a willingness to finance our exporters for the purchase of wheat, cotton, copper, aluminum and other commodities," he said, "but we are not in agreement as to terms and nothing is in concrete shape."

The R. F. C. chairman made it plain that the credit, if extended, would be to American exporters and the Amtorg Corporation, which he described as "an American company."

"It does not involve recognition of Russia," he said in response to a direct question.

The Amtorg Corporation obtained a $4,000,000 loan at 5 per cent interest in July, most of which came from the R. F. C. A lower rate of interest is sought for the larger loan.

SAYS R. F. C. ORDERS SECOND SALARY CUT FOR L. W. BALDWIN

New York Times Reports Drastic Slash in Expenses of Denver & Rio Grande.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The New York Times says a drastic reduction in executive expenses was decreed for the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railway by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in return for a loan of $950,000.

Another condition of the loan, the paper says, was that the railroad open negotiations for a merger with other lines in order to strengthen its financial condition.

Following this condition, J. P. Van Sweringen, a member of the road's board, offered a resolution that the line open negotiations for a merger with the Western Pacific in a corporation to be controlled by the Burlington and the Missouri Pacific.

In extending the loan, the Government ruled that the salary of J. S. Pyeatt, president of the road, be reduced from $50,000 to $36,000 a year and the salaries of T. M. Schumacher, chairman of the board, and L. W. Baldwin of St. Louis, chairman of the executive committee, be cut to $8000. Baldwin's salary of some $85,000 as president of the Missouri Pacific line recently was ordered reduced by the Government to $40,000.

All other salaries in excess of $6000 were ordered cut 20 per cent. The line also was prohibited from making increases in salary while in debt to the Government.

CALLS NRA 'ALL-DAY SUCKER'

Head of Farmers' Union Says It Is Mask for Expanded Currency.

By the Associated Press.

LAWTON, Ok., Sept. 16.—Urging inflation of currency as a means to aid agriculture and business, John Simpson, president of the National Farmers' Union, in a speech here yesterday said the NRA movement was "only an all-day sucker given to the people to keep their minds off of expanded currency."

"The NRA is impossible and cannot work because it requires broke business men who have been in the red three years to increase expenditures," he said.

ICKES DEFENDS SELF ON PUBLIC WORKS JOBS

Says Delays Have Been Caused by Local Agencies Which Already Have Funds.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Secretary of the Interior Ickes, public works administrator, said today at a press conference he was not "going to take sitting down unfair charges of slowness in administering public works."

"Where is the red tape?" he asked. "We have taken it out by the handsful. The major delays now are caused by the inability of local agencies to put to work the money we have already allotted.

"Some of these delays are as a result of political sniping and others to the negligence of municipalities in making applications. So far as there being bureaucracy in the public works administration, I can only deny it emphatically. The bureaucracy is spread out through other agencies than in those over which I have control."

Ickes has been criticised in various quarters, which have held that little employment had been actually provided under the Public Works Administration.

"I went to work on this job on July 8 with no organization at hand," he said. "I had to start cold, and I believe in this short time we have done a mighty good job.

"Some persons apparently trying to make a record so they can say 'I told you so' are mightily mistaken. Whatever red tape there may be in Government there is none in the Public Works Administration. I am not going to take this criticism sitting down.

"I have taken the telephone in hand myself in an attempt to stimulate public works in localities which apparently were unable to get them underway."

LABOR DEPARTMENT COMPILING NEW COST-OF-LIVING INDEX

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Restoration of the 15 per cent cuts in Federal salaries became a possibility, as President Roosevelt announced yesterday the Department of Labor was compiling a new cost-of-living index.

He said both he and Secretary of Labor Perkins were dissatisfied with the present index because it comprised many items not now in use.

As an instance, he said, one item on which living costs were based was ladies' high-buttoned shoes. It is intended that the new index shall more nearly represent the average ordinary purchases of the average person.

REVISED RETAIL CODE SUBMITTED TO JOHNSON

Measure Providing Price-Regulation Expected to Be Ready Within a Week.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16. — A basic retail code within a week has been set as the goal of Hugh S. Johnson, the NRA director. On his desk is a revised version of the retail charter, providing for price regulating but thought to carry provisions for the protection of both the consumer and the small merchant.

Johnson said that because of its complexities and the basic policies it would define for future codes, time would be required for consideration and the code probably would not go to the White House until late next week.

Although designed as a basic code for retailers, the present draft excludes drug stores, which are to be brought under a similar agreement. General stores dealing in drugs will be specifically regulated, however, in the general compact, officials said.

A provision that no goods shall be sold at less than the wholesale cost plus 10 per cent is a part of the code. It also includes a 21 per cent discount limit on trademarked drugs and toilet articles whose retail price is fixed by the manufacturer. The former is in contrast with the original wording which fixed invoice cost instead of wholesale price.

Officials said the invoice plan was rejected because it would compel small independent dealer to maintain higher prices than chain store competitors who either get a greater discount from wholesalers or eliminate the wholsale profit entirely with their own manufactures.

Wholesale cost was defined as the price of goods charged to the retailer for the smallest wholesale quantity, such as one case of merchandise.

Johnson said the inter-departmental price committee recently named to investigate the effect of the NRA on prices, would focus its attention on price control. A trial period to test the effects of this provision is being considered by the administration.

NAVIGATION DAM AT ALTON TO GIVE WORK TO 700 MEN

St. Louis District Engineer Hopes to Get $8,000,000 Construction Under Way This Fall.

LOCKS AND SEWER TO BE BUILT FIRST

Work on the $8,000,000 navigation dam and locks at Alton, farthest south of a chain of such improvements planned to give the Upper Mississippi a 9-foot channel, is expected to begin as soon as bids can be let. Maj. William A. Snow, district engineer in charge of the St. Louis district, hopes to start the work this fall.

Major-General Lytle Brown announced yesterday, in Washington, that $3,540,000 for the Alton project, designated as Lock 26, was included in the $22,000,000 apportionment granted by the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works for construction of locks and dams in the Upper Mississippi.

Thirteen other projects receive $1,420,000 each, completing, with the Alton work, the total of $22,000,000. They are at or near Winona, Minn.; LaCrosse, Wis. (2 locks); Genoa, Wis.; Lynxville, Wis.; Dubuque, Ia. (3 locks); Le Claire, Ia.; Muscatine, Ia.; Burlington, Ia.; Quincy, Ill., and Hannibal, Mo. Four other lock and dam projects have been authorized previously, to cost $11,500,000. A Washington dispatch said bids would be asked for without delay, and that the War Department estimated that the works would give employment to about 12,000 men for one year.

To Employ 700 to 800.

Maj. Snow estimated that the work at Alton would employ 700 to 800 men, most of them for two and one-half years. He said the $3,540,000 authorized yesterday would be used for the locks, on the Illinois side, and for construction of an intercepting sewer in Alton, needed to carry the city's sewage to a point below the dam.

Last night the Alton City Council passed an ordinance providing land needed by the Government for the undertaking, after meeting with the City Park Commission and Lieut. W. W. Wanamaker, army engineer. The city is deeding to the Government a strip of Riverside Park about 175 by 1600 feet, part of which remains to be filled in connection with the improvement. About half the width of this strip will be needed for the lock structures and the remainder will be available to augment the park.

A lease in perpetuity of all city river front property needed for the intercepting sewer is provided. About 15 acres, or the eastern two-thirds of the park, is being leased to the Government during the construction period for a building base. Athletic fields occupy this area. No compensation to the city is provided in the ordinance, but the city expects the river improvement to facilitate a plan for enlarging the park at the downstream end.

Replaces Grafton Dam.

The Alton dam, by recommendation of Maj. Snow, Col. G. R. Spalding and other engineers of the St. Louis district, will take the place of one previously planned for Grafton, Ill., just below the mouth of the Illinois River. It will also, Maj. Snow believes, make possible the elimination of the Illinois River dam at Kampsville, Ill., which is in need of extensive repairs.

As outlined by Maj. Snow, the Alton dam will be 2000 feet long, with protecting works for the railroad bridge approaches on the Missouri side, about 800 feet below the dam. It is calculated that it will increase the stage of the river at Alton to 21 feet, the same stage reached in the high water of last May. This will provide a 9-foot channel to and above Grafton, and will affect the Illinois River to and above Kampsville.

Land in St. Charles County, Mo., in the vicinity of West Alton, would be flooded, and will be condemned as part of the preliminary bridge work. More valuable land farther up the river, and the town of Portage Des Sioux, Mo., seven miles above Alton, are not to be affected. Industrial plants along the railroad tracks north of Alton, and the tracks themselves, will also be safe from inundation, the engineers say.

Candlelight House is operated by William S. Medart. Since a fire at another Medart restaurant at 7036 Clayton road, he has concentrated his trade at Candlelight House. The place at 7036 Clayton is to be opened tonight or tomorrow.

Replaces Grafton Dam.

The Alton dam, by recommendation of Maj. Snow, Col. G. R. Spalding and other engineers of the St. Louis district, will take the place of one previously planned for Grafton, Ill., just below the mouth of the Illinois River. It will also, Maj. Snow believes, make possible the elimination of the Illinois River dam at Kampsville, Ill., which is in need of extensive repairs.

As outlined by Maj. Snow, the Alton dam will be 2000 feet long, with protecting works for the railroad bridge approaches on the Missouri side, about 800 feet below the dam. It is calculated that it will increase the stage of the river at Alton to 21 feet, the same stage reached in the high water of last May. This will provide a 9-foot channel to and above Grafton, and will affect the Illinois River to and above Kampsville.

Land in St. Charles County, Mo., in the vicinity of West Alton, would be flooded, and will be condemned as part of the preliminary bridge work. More valuable land farther up the river, and the town of Portage Des Sioux, Mo., seven miles above Alton, are not to be affected. Industrial plants along the railroad tracks north of Alton, and the tracks themselves, will also be safe from inundation, the engineers say.

SUIT TO ANNUL MARRIAGE OF GIRL, 17, TO HER UNCLE

Father of Kirkwood High School Student Alleges Violation of State Law.

Suit to annul the marriage of 17-year-old Wilma I. Lawson, Kirkwood High School student, who was married to her uncle, Joseph C. Lawson, 22, on Sept. 2, was filed at Clayton today.

The petition, filed by the young woman's father, George O. Lawson, a railroad laborer, states that Wilma went through a marriage ceremony with her uncle at Tuscumbia, Mo., while under the belief that it was lawful to do so. The petition points out that the ceremony was contrary to State law against marriage of blood-relatives and should be set aside.

$5000 FIRE AT CHAIR PLANT; TWO MEN SAVED FROM ROOF

Automatic Sprinkler System Fails to Work Because It Had Been Shut Off.

Fire of undetermined origin swept the second floor of the Meier & Pohlmann Furniture Co.'s chair plant at Tenth and Howard streets yesterday, causing damage estimated by Fire Chief O'Boyle at $5000 to building and contents.

About 700 unfinished chairs stored on the second floor were scorched or destroyed. Other stocks of chairs on the first floor were damaged by water. The plant was used as a finishing plant, and storage bins of lacquer and varnishes caused the flames to spread rapidly. About 20 workmen on the second floor fled to safety when the fire started near sprayer mechanism. Two tinners, who were woring on the roof, were rescued by firemen. They were William Weise, 2528 Hebert street, and Henry Kottemann, 1639 Grape avenue.

Chief O'Boyle said the sprinkler system failed to operate because it was shut off, but was unable to determine why. The company was moving its plant to new quarters at Blair avenue and Palm streets, and the men in the plant, when the fire broke out, were removing the stock.

FIRST TESTIMONY MONDAY IN LUER KIDNAPING TRIAL

Jury Selected After 304 Men Are Examined in Five Days in Edwardsville Court.

35 WITNESSES FOR THE STATE

Will Begin to Take Stand as Soon as Prosecution and Defense Make Opening Statements.

With a jury finally selected, after five days of tedious questioning, taking of testimony in the trial of six defendants charged with kidnaping August Luer for ransom is scheduled to begin Monday morning before Circuit Judge Mudge at Edwardsville.

Court was in recess today, and the jurors, selected after examination of 304 men, are in custody of Deputy Sheriffs. Proceedings will begin Monday with an opening statement by the State, after which the defense will have an opportunity to make its statement. Testimony will then begin with the State presenting the first of its 35 witnesses.

Special Assistant United States Attorney-General Joseph B. Keenan, in charge of the Federal drive against kidnapers and racketeers, sat with State's counsel during the closing phases of the jury selection process yesterday as an interested observer.

"Highly Important Case."

"We regard this case as a highly important one in our campaign to stop kidnaping," he said to a Post-Dispatch reporter last night. "It is my hope that the most severe penalty will be assessed in this case, if the evidence justifies it.

"We are intent on showing kidnapers that they are in a dangerous and unprofitable business and we can best show that by making punishment swift, certain and severe."

Keenan added that he was present only to watch the progress of the trial and to be of aid to the State if his assistance should be asked. He stressed the point, however, that the prosecution is a State matter. From Edwardsville he is going to Oklahoma City where trial of the Urschel kidnapers is scheduled for next week.

The jurors who will hear the case are: William A. Miller, carpenter foreman in a Granite City mill; Fred Langreder, steelworker, Edwardsville; Ross Meyers, pipefitter, Hartford; Walter Kombrink, farmer, Lees Township; Gordon McFarland, farmhand, Troy; Frank Dupaz, pipefitter and electrician, Venice; Milo Case, baker, Venice; Richard Kraft, contractor, Venice; Fred Lyons, truck driver, Troy; J. G. Holland, steel worker, Granite City; William Foster, delicatessen proprietor, Granite City; Ned Brush, laborer, Granite City.

The Six Defendants.

Defendants in the case, all held without bond, are Charles and Lillian Chessen, charged by the State with having pointed out Luer, elderly Alton bank president and meat packer, as a likely victim of the kidnapers; Percy Michael Fitzgerald, St. Louis ex-convict, who has admitted he was one of three kidnapers who dragged Luer from his home the night of July 10; Randol Eugene Norvell, Nameoki bondsman and former partner in the Mounds Club gambling house, who has admitted he drove the kidnapers' automobile; Christ Nicola Gitcho, in whose store in Madison the State contends Luer was held prisoner for more than an hour immediately after his abduction, and Mike Musiala, who has admitted that in a tiny cellar on his farm near Eagle Park Luer was held prisoner for five days and nights until ransom negotiations failed and Luer was released.

Fitzgerald has told policemen that he was aided in seizing Luer by "Irish" O'Malley, an ex-convict, and Mrs. Gracie Chase, then a resident of an East Side rooming house. Both, indicted, are fugitives.

NEGRO SCUFFLING WITH WHITE WOMAN KILLED BY NEGHBOR

Daniel Murphy Says Will Ross Attacked Him With Knife.

Will Ross, 50-year-old Negro, was shot and killed by Daniel Murphy, 52, who told police Ross slashed him with a knife when he ordered the Negro to quit scuffling with a white woman in a yard next door to Murphy's home, 1229 North Ninth street, last night.

Murphy said he heard the woman cry out and went to her aid. Ross drew a knife and Murphy retreated to the home of Louis Parker, 1231 North Ninth. Ross followed and cut him, Murphy related. Murphy picked up Parker's revolver from a mantel and fired one shot. Ross, wounded in the chest, staggered into the alley and collapsed.

The woman appeared to be intoxicated, police said. She was detained for the Coroner. Police did not learn Ross' address.

'CHOFETZ CHAIM' DIES AT 105; JEWISH SAINT

Orthodox Rabbi Who Became Almost Legendary Figure Succumbs in Poland.

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

VILNA, Poland, Sept. 16.—The famed "Chofetz Chaim," venerated by many orthodox Jews throughout the world as one of the 31 saints because of whose piety the world has not been destroyed, died yesterday in the village of Radin, near here, where he had spent most of his 105 years. He had been ill for a short time.

The "Chofetz Chaim," whose real name was Rabbi Yisroel Meier Ha' Cohen, had been almost a legendary figure for half a century. The village where he lived was the scene of pilgrimages of thousands.

The rabbi in 1875 published a book in Hebrew, the "Chofetz Chaim," listing all the forms of slander from which a pious Jew must guard himself. It was on account of this book that he became known as the "Chofetz Chaim."

He was born in the village of Zhetel, in the province of Grodno, Poland. After a brief period as a rabbi in Radin, he founded a Yeshiva, a school for teaching of the Talmud, and supported it for many years. He became known throughout the world as a Talmudic scholar and many of his works treating exhaustively of the regulation of the Jewish religion have been accepted as the definitive interpretation.

The funeral will be held at Radin.

The "Chofetz Chaim" was 105 years old, according to information available from his family. He would never disclose his age and several years ago, when friends and relatives planned to hold a birthday celebration in his honor, he was very much upset.

She sent a friend to the Cedays. She went to the Cedar street address and found the body.

MAN AND WOMAN HELD UP IN AUTO ON COUNTY ROAD

Robbers Drive Into Path of Machine, Take $53, Watch and Diamond Ring.

Henry Menzenwerth of the Chase Hotel and Miss Hertha Witter of Grantwood terrace, St. Louis County, were held up early today on old Watson road a mile and a half north of Fenton by three young men dressed in overalls and work shirts.

The robbers drove their car into the path of Menzenwerth's machine and one leaped on the running board of his car with a revolver. Menzenwerth was robbed of $53.90 and a watch and Miss Witter of a diamond ring. The robbers escaped in their own automobile.

Two young men went to the home of Taft Meador, 2330 South Third street, and asked if he wanted to buy a radio. He said he did. They asked if he had his money with him. He again answered affirmatively. One of the visitors drew a revolver and ordered Meador to the street corner, where the pair robbed him of $15, his keys and a knife.

HEARS PLEA FOR NEW RECEIVER FOR JOINT STOCK LAND BANK

U. S. Judge Takes Under Advisement Action Brought By One of Stockholders.

Federal Judge Faris has under advisement the application of a bondholder that a Federal receiver be appointed for the St. Louis Joint Stock Land Bank to succeed S. L. Cantley, named receiver by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

At the hearing yesterday attorneys for the bondholder, C. E. Partridge of Kansas City, contended the Farm Loan Board had no authority to appoint a receiver to liquidate the bank. A bondholders' committee, with which $12,000,000 of the $18,000,000 outstanding of the bank's bonds have been deposited, opposed the application and urged that Cantley be retained.

Cantley, in his answer to the application, stated the bank's assets when liquidated would be at least $2,500,000 less than its liabilities. He could not tell, the answer stated, whether the deficit would be as much as $6,000,000, as is alleged by Partridge. Edward M. Flesh has been appointed by the Court to collect $1,430,000 from the bank's stockholders under the double liability provision of its charter.

DEATH DEMANDED AS LAMSON CASE GOES TO THE JURY

DEFENSE STRESSES ACCIDENT THEORY

Counsel Argues That Actions of Defendant After Death of Wife Were Those of an Innocent Man

By the Associated Press.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 16.—The case of David A. Lamson, charged with the murder of his wife, Allene, was given to the jury at 11:21 a. m. today, after Judge R. R. Syer had instructed the jury of five women and seven men, and the prosecution had demanded the death penalty.

The Court instructed that, in case of conviction, the jury must fix the degree of the crime, whether first or second degree murder. Judge Syer told the jurors that they could fix the penalty of death or life imprisonment in case of conviction of first degree murder. He said the verdict should be either for first or second degree murder or acquittal.

Final Argument.

Making the final argument, Dep. Lindsay demanded the conviction of the young Stanford University publishing house executive on the ground that the State's case was the reasonable solution of the death of his wife, May 30, on the Stanford campus.

Lindsay dwelt on Lamson's testimony about carrying his sleeping clothes from the living room to another point in the house, just before he found the nude body of his wife in the bathtub. Lindsay read from one section of Lamson's testimony saying he was carrying the garments to the front bedroom. In another section the accused man said he was taking the garments to a hall closet. He argued the first section bore out the testimony of officers.

The prosecutor pointed to a photograph of the death scene and asserted that the clots of blood belied the defense contention of possible accidental fall. The picture showed the blood clots two feet or more away from the point at which the defense contends the fall might have taken place.

"We are here," he said, "to do justice to a dead girl. . . . I feel our case is overwhelmingly more than enough and I think you will feel the same."

Producing the iron pipe with which the State charges Mrs. Lamson was killed, Lindsay rapped the rail in front of the jury with it to illustrate that it was a formidable weapon. The noise of the rapping rang sharply through the room.

"You could bring doctors here by the ton," said the speaker, "but you couldn't get this case out of the category of murder."

Accident Theory Stressed.

E. M. Rea, defense attorney, pleaded with the jury yesterday to accept the theory that Mrs. Lamson died as a result of an accident and not at the hands of her husband.

Point by point Rea took up the testimony of officers against Lamson and asserted that even if it all were true there was no proof that Mrs. Lamson was beaten to death in the bath room of her Stanford campus home, May 30.

At length Rea argued that Lamson's actions were those of an innocent man; that he talked willingly to officers and was not to be blamed for slight variations in his story while under the emotional strain brought on by his discovery of the body.

"The theory of accident," Rea argued, "is a thousand times more plausible than the theory of murder. Everything in this case corroborates Dave Lamson's story from top to bottom.

ELEVATED IN CHURCH

—By a Post-Dispatch staff photographer.

THE REV. C. H. WINKELMANN.

FATHER WINKELMANN IS APPOINTED BISHOP

St. Francis de Sales Pastor to Be Auxiliary Under Archbishop Glennon.

The Rev. Christian H. Winkelmann, pastor of St. Francis de Sales Church, Gravois and Ohio avenues, was in jubilant spirits today at the news that he had been appointed by Pope Pius XI as auxiliary bishop under Archbishop Glennon.

"It came as a complete surprise to me," Father Winkelmann said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "The first I knew of it was last night when the Archbishop telephoned to congratulate me."

The date for the consecration of Father Winkelmann has not been fixed, but under canon law must be within three months from notification which has not yet been received officially. Custom has been for bishops to be consecrated on the feast day of one of the apostles. Father Winkelmann's consecration may be on the feast of St. Andrew, which falls this year on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 30, or on the feast of St. Thomas, which is Dec. 20.

Is 50 Years Old.

His duties as auxiliary bishop are a matter for determination by Archbishop Glennon, although an auxiliary bishop is vested with all the ecclesiastical powers of a bishop and is the minister of the sacraments of Holy Orders and Confirmation. He may also represent the Archbishop at solemn dedications and other ceremonies and, if the Archbishop wishes, may remain as pastor of St. Francis de Sales Church.

Word of Father Winkelmann's appointment was received in Washington from Rome by the National Catholic Welfare Conference. He is named titular bishop of Sita.

Father Winkelmann, tall and heavy set, was 50 years old Tuesday. He lives in the parish rectory at 2653 Ohio avenue, with his mother and two sisters. Two brothers are in the drug business in South St. Louis. He smokes a corn cob pipe and finds his recreation in the duties of his large parish. "We priests," he explained with a smile, "are not under the blue eagle."

Born in St. Louis.

He was born in the 7600 block of Ivory avenue, where his father had a shoe store and repaired shoes. His parents were natives of Germany. He attended St. Boniface's Parochial School and was graduated from Quincy College, at Quincy, Ill., before entering Kenrick Seminary, where he was ordained to the priesthood by Archbishop Glennon in 1907.

His first duties as a priest were as assistant pastor of St. Peter's Church at St. Charles, where he remained from 1907 until 1922. From there he went to Rich Fountain, Mo., as pastor of Sacred Heart Church, and in 1929 he was named pastor of St. Francis de Sales.

The procedure of selecting a new Bishop begins at meetings held every two years by the Archbishop with the Bishops of his diocese. If there is a bishopric to be filled, the names of various priests are suggested and discussed, and those thought worthy of the place are nominated. These names are sent to Rome, and from there inquiries about the candidates are addressed to priests who know them. Their detailed secret reports are considered by the Pope before his decision is made.

An auxiliary Bishop differs from a co-adjutor Bishop, in that the latter succeeds automatically to the office.

BOY, 17, CONVICTED IN ATLANTA KIDNAPING

Gets Year on Chain Gang but Judge Indicates He May Grant Probation.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 16.—Pryor Bowen, 17 years old, Lavonia (Ga.) farm boy, was found guilty yesterday of kidnaping John K. Ottley, Atlanta bank president, but the jury recommended the case be treated as a misdemeanor and he was sentenced to 12 months on the chain gang.

If Bowen makes a good record, Judge John D. Humphries, who sentenced him, said he will be placed on probation shortly.

Like William R. Delinski, who was convicted earlier in the week of the kidnaping and given 21 to 28 years in prison, Bowen was also indicted for the robbery of Ottley, from whom $10 was taken before his release.

Bowen contended throughout that he merely entered into the kidnaping plot to release Ottley. The banker in testifying said that Bowen did release him as soon as Delinski was out of sight.

7 FINED IN SWEDEN FOR NAZI SWASTIKAS PAINTED ON ARMS

Youths Penalized in Police Court Under Law Against Political Uniforms.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 16.—Seven youths were fined here yesterday, under the law against political uniforms, for having The Nazi Swastika painted on their forearms.

The seven had appeared on the streets in riding boots, breeches, white shirts and chauffeurs' caps, with their sleeves rolled up, exposing the Swastikas on their arms. The Swastika, they explained, was intended to be concealed because of the warm weather they had forgotten and rolled up their sleeves. The boots, they said, could not be considered as part of a uniform since German Nazis wore boots as protection against kicks on the shins.

The judge, after consideration, fined the leader, Gosta Verner Hermann, 125 kronor (about $30) and the others 20 kronor ($4.80) apiece.

Mrs. Agola said she attempted to help Mrs. Bessie Kottle, 5512 Wells avenue, with whom she worked at the Greenspoon Clothing Co., 1136 Washington avenue, when she was attacked by pickets.

Miss Connors and Miss Eldridge were treated at city hospital for lacerations of the scalp and hands.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Woman Striker's Views.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE been out on strike since Aug. 10 and have read every day in your paper the things that have been said for and against strikers.

The bosses insist that the only reason we went out on strike was because union people from other towns came here and told us to. I guess they think that people who worked in the factories for $5 and $6 per week in the last year haven't sense enough to think for themselves.

The bosses know they are the ones that caused the strike by telling us they had signed the blanket code for eight hours a day and the minimum wage. We worked the eight hours, but, when it came to wages, there were three classes. Experienced operators either went in the "apprentice class" or the "old ladies' class." The only ones who got the code were the "third class," and that consisted largely of the pets and snitches.

When they treated us that way on the blanket code, we knew what to expect when the real code went into effect, so we joined the union in order to have someone to fight our battles. By the time the NRA straightened out our troubles, the season would be over and we would be out of luck.

The police say they are neutral. Some are. Most of them aren't. When I see them pushing strikers around and calling girls vile names, I wonder where they were when that Negro was attacking all those women here in St. Louis. It took the Granite City police to catch him.

The bosses are worried about all these strikers being on the city relief. They were not worried last winter when lots of the people on their payrolls also were on the city relief. They surely didn't expect people could live like human beings on $5 and $6 a week.

The Chamber of Commerce is hollering about strikes breaking up the success of the NRA. The real reason is because it is afraid the laboring class is going to demand decent wages in return for their work. People know that when they received $25 for work two years ago and they get only $7 and $8 now, there is something wrong somewhere. It is all right for the bosses to organize, but all wrong when the employes try the same thing. The bosses can spend hundreds, even thousands, for ads in the paper, but when it comes to putting an extra dime in our envelopes, that is all out of the question.

A LADY STRIKER.

What Andree Said.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AS THERE have been no disarmament or peace conferences for the last few months, we have almost forgotten about the subject of war prevention.

Let us revive this long disputed question for a time sufficient to listen to some words of advice on the matter by that ill-fated Arctic explorer, Salomon Auguste Andree.

Andree, the first man to attempt reaching the North Pole by air, once in his notes said: "I wonder whether it would be feasible to select some neutral place, preferably an island, for the segregation of war-making peoples. There the belligerents might conveniently exterminate each other, without disturbing innocent bystanders."

NITRAM RANZNAL.

In Defense of Mr. Ford.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IF SOMEONE would explain the letter signed by E. G. Doernhoffer, referring to Henry Ford and the NRA, it might be interesting.

I have tried to translate his letter to mean that everyone but Henry Ford is willing to give the NRA a trial; that existing conditions are caused by men like Henry Ford.

I am wondering if this is what he means, and, if so, how he arrives at his conclusion. We have all thought Mr. Ford was the most liberal and progressive of employers, paying more than average wages for the same kind of work, planning living conditions for the preservation of his employes' health and improving housing facilities. He was one of the first employers to advocate a five-day week, and has been troubled but slightly through labor disputes.

I think if we had more captains of finance and industry like Henry Ford, we would not be in our present condition or need recourse to the NRA.

And if by signing up with the NRA Ford would defeat his own liberal tendencies, to my mind it would be a setback for labor. Rather, let us await Henry Ford's reasons for not having signed the code. He may have a plan, and it will be a practical one that will make the NRA code look like a back number.

We are all for the NRA until we develop something still more progressive. Henry Ford will never hold back America. It would be a reversal of past performance if he did.

Chamber of Commerce's Score.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The score for the Chamber of Commerce is no hits, no runs and two errors.

GRANDSTAND.

THE TREND TOWARD PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

Why municipal ownership of water and light plants is good business for any city was demonstrated yesterday in a speech by Daniel C. Rogers of Fayette, Mo., before the Civitan Club. Mr. Rogers is attorney for the Missouri Association of Municipal Utilities, and one of the leaders of a movement for municipal ownership which is sweeping through Missouri, as it is elsewhere, and which will attain even greater momentum as the facts concerning it become known to the people.

For years, private utilities, quite naturally alarmed because of the threat to the unconscionable profits they have made out of supplying cities with essential services, have attempted to befog the issue, resorting to every kind of mis-statement and to all sorts of appeals to prejudice. One of their stock arguments against municipal ownership is that, while it might produce lower rates, the taxpayers are deceived by including part of the costs in general tax bills.

It was this argument to which Mr. Rogers principally addressed himself, and he did so by presenting tax figures for three groups of 10 cities each. In the first group were cities where both water and light are supplied by private companies. Its annual tax rate for municipal purposes for the last 10 years has averaged $1.15 on the $100 of assessed valuation. In the second group were cities owning their own waterworks, but not their light plants, and the tax figure is 83 cents, or 32 cents less than the first group. Cities of the third group, which own both water and light plants, have a tax rate of 68 cents, or 47 cents less than the first group.

Mr. Rogers also pointed out that municipal ownership cities enjoy superior lighting service, citing Marshall, Mo., a town of 8000, owning its own light plant. It has four times as much connected street lighting load per unit of population as St. Charles, population 10,000, served by a private company. Incidentally, St. Charles has voted twice this year for a $300,000 bond issue for a local light plant by heavy majorities which, however, have fallen a little short of the two-thirds stipulated by Missouri law. St. Charles recently filed an application with the Public Works Administration for a $350,000 loan for the purpose under the Recovery Act.

Mr. Rogers said that 50-odd of the best-governed cities in Missouri own their own light plants and more than that number own their own waterworks. St. Louis is in the latter category and is the envy of University City and many other nearby communities which are forced to pay higher water rates to a private company. No one has the hardihood to suggest that St. Louis turn over its water plant to a private company, because the city-owned plant has compiled so fine a record of service and rates that that suggestion would be promptly hooted down.

The trend toward municipal ownership has been given its greatest impetus in recent years, not so much by figures proving that it is productive of lower rates and better service, but by the private utilities themselves. Their scandalous behavior has become a national byword. As Mr. Rogers said: "Municipal ownership cities have never been investigated and exposed for corrupt practices by a Federal investigating body; they have never been guilty of excessive write-ups of capital investments; they have never used money corruptly to elect a United States Senator, and have him barred admittance; they have never produced a legislative lobby scandal; they have never produced a Samuel Insull."

Further reason for municipal ownership sentiment can be had from the Law Department of the City of St. Louis which for years has been battling vainly to obtain justice for citizens of St. Louis in the matter of utility rates. Both Charles M. Hay, the present City Attorney, and his predecessor, Julius Muench, can give testimony as to this. Mr. Muench was forced at last to announce his despair in a brief filed with the Public Service Commission in the Union Electric case. Mr. Muench, charging the Union Electric was taking from electric consumers annually $1,000,000 more than its due, said:

> We can imagine no case which could more forcefully demonstrate than this one does the utter futility of trying to secure satisfactory regulation of public utilities under the reproduction new theory. We challenge anyone to read the record and the vast number of opinions cited in the briefs, in which this, that or the other phase of the theory is sought to be justified on something like a logical basis, without coming to the conclusion that the attempt to control the operations of public service companies in this way has resulted in a sad and hopeless mess.

Mr. Hay can tell how, in a proceeding now pending before the Public Service Commission, he petitioned for a 20 per cent decrease in gas rates, and the Laclede Gas Light Co. countered with a demand for a 20 per cent increase! Throughout the depression, when all kinds of prices took a nose-dive, the utilities by and large have continued to charge pre-depression rates, and have resisted with every possible legal weapon at their command attempts to lower these rates.

Small wonder that the people, contemplating, on the one hand, the scandals of the private utilities and the burdensome exactions of rates and, on the other, the splendid record of municipal ownership, are coming to the conclusion that they can only protect themselves by building and operating their own utility plants.

SEE THE MONTE ALBAN JEWELS.

A rare opportunity will be afforded St. Louisans today and Sunday to see one of the most famous archeological discoveries ever made in the Western Hemisphere. We refer to the Monte Alban jewels, unearthed January, 1932, in the State of Oaxaca, Mexico. They are on view at Union Station for a small fee, in the Mexican presidential train. The jewels have been exhibited at the Chicago Fair and, after a brief tour of the United States, will be returned to their permanent home, the National Museum at Mexico City.

The jewels were taken from a tomb containing the mummies of 10 chieftains of the Mixtec tribe of Mexican Indians. The collection contains exquisitely worked gold and precious stones; crowns of pure gold; rings of gold, silver, copper and jade; necklaces of turquoise, jade, pearls, coral and amber; delicately engraved bones presumably recounting the history of the chieftains; a tiny head of the god Xipetotec, 10 centimeters tall and of solid gold, and many other marvelous relics of the old Mexican civilization.

To many persons, an examination of the Monte Alban jewels will open up a whole new vista of thought regarding life on this continent. They prove the existence of a complicated and highly-advanced society long antedating the white conquests, comparable in many respects to the civilization of ancient Egypt. Study of old Mexico has not yet proceeded very far; in fact, it might be said the surface is hardly scratched; but the discoveries thus far made are richly encouraging. Whatever funds realized by the current exhibition of the Monte Alban jewels will be used to continue the work.

COERCION, THE EXCEPTION.

Another captain of industry, Pierre du Pont, pronounces his blessing on NRA. He is hopeful of good results, though the magnitude of the task undertaken by the administration seems to him appalling, and he is fearful lest the President and his associates break down physically before attaining the objective.

By way of friendly criticism, Mr. du Pont thinks it would be better if there were less political insistence on the part of those in charge of the work. He regrets their "domineering attitude," though he recognizes the enormous difficulties of the job and, in effect, apologizes for suggesting greater patience. It is his judgment, however, that progress would be expedited by tolerance, by the assumption that the rules would be voluntarily adhered to, without resort to force.

Such comment, granting its sincerity, seems in the light of experience a counsel of perfection. It may well be that the wine of authority has gone to some official heads; but the country was assured at the outset by the President that the success of the recovery project depended on the people, themselves, and that is the judgment of competent observers in other lands as well as at home. This gospel of co-operation has been preached here with evangelical fervor, there with austere intellectual restraint, and there is no doubt that it is the true gospel.

Co-operation, let it be admitted, has not been practiced so spontaneously as it has been preached, though, on the whole, the reaction has been an extraordinary expression of faith in the Government's purpose and procedure. There has been recalcitrancy, of course, and the cynic has muttered his doubt, and greed has plotted and maneuvered for advantage. But the fact is undeniable that the dissenter from the recovery movement is a marked man, and the chiseler and cheat are obliged to conduct their operations with secrecy and skill.

It should always be remembered, too, that this whole recovery program is an experiment, frankly admitted to be such by the administration, which can be abandoned in part or in whole whenever and wherever it is a failure. In any circumstance, it is limited to a period of two years. We have repudiated no constitutional principle, disavowed no letter of philosophy, though it must be apparent that, whatever the final result, we shall have a wider knowledge, political, industrial, economic and social, when this campaign of education shall be completed, and a different world. But the prophecies that we are headed for Fascism or Communism, thrust forth by professors and pundits may, with all respect, be laid on the table. While compulsion may have to be applied in some instances, it will be done with the authority of a law of limited duration designed to meet an emergency. There is no symptom of a dictatorship complex in the atmosphere of Washington.

A good definition of NRA was recently offered by that Boston merchant, Edward A. Filene, who has long been looking towards a happier order of things through the eyes of a business man and philosopher. As he sees it, NRA is a "sacred covenant between American business and the American public by which we undertake to co-ordinate all the economic forces to the end that everybody's needs will be adequately supplied."

The victory we are all hoping for, and which we must win, will be won by co-operation, not by coercion. Co-operation is the rule, coercion the exception.

"GEN." COXEY CARRIES ON.

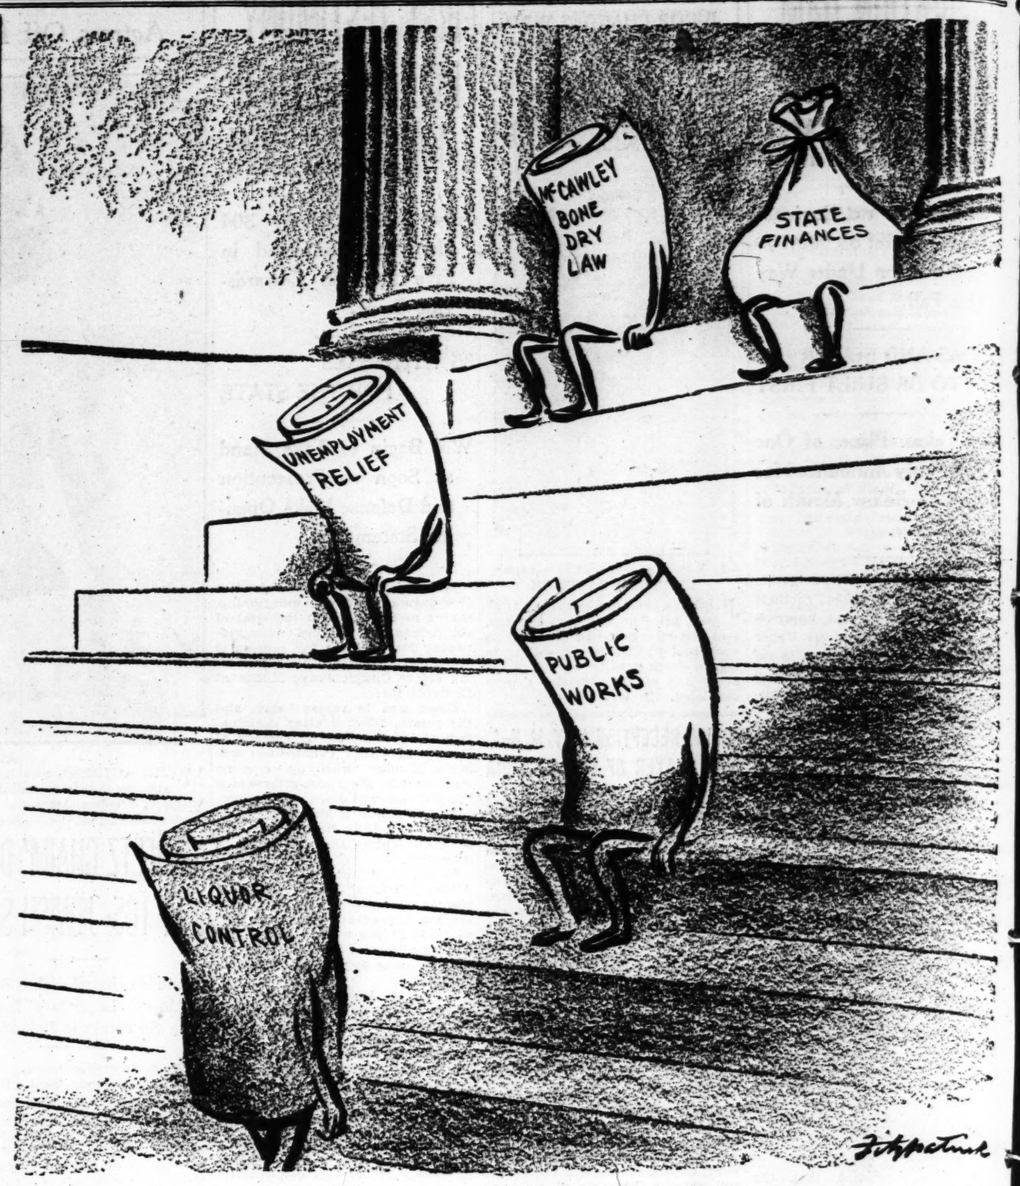

"Gen." Jacob S. Coxey, who became famous 40 years ago as leader of a march of some 122 unemployed men to Washington, just can't keep out of the news. After enjoying intermittent flashes of the spotlight, he became Mayor of Massillon, O., two years ago at the age of 76. He forthwith announced a naive unemployment relief scheme which was promptly passed by. When he sought to succeed himself this year, Massillon counted him out. One who believes in turning a setback into the means of advancement, the General is going back into the political arena. This time he will carry the fight to the whole of Ohio. He is out for the seat held by Senator Simeon D. Fess since 1922. Now, as between Gen. Coxey and Senator Fess, we would be hard put to choose. Long a stanch dry, Senator Fess has always been a narrow partisan. As Senator and as national chairman of his party, he has an almost unparalleled record for the politically inept and the economically archaic. Gen. Coxey, on the other hand, flourishes in times of depression. His emergence has come to be a bad sign. The Middle West's "Mother of Presidents" fortunately is not required to draw either of them. If we read the political stars aright, the Buckeye State will have better luck next year.

Wouldn't it make any Old Sergeant mad to be called a soft-boiled egg?

NO RESPECTER OF PLACES.

From the standpoint of news gathering, the most interesting thing about the driving of the last spike on the Northern Pacific 50 years ago was the fact that there was no telegraph line to carry the news from Gold Creek, Mont. The joining of the East and the West by rail was an epoch-making event. The presence of dignitaries and numerous newspaper correspondents attested to that. Yet the only wire out of Gold Creek was the railroad wire and it was busily engaged in dispatching special trains. No "spot news" stories got to the outside world. Does this make the Montana of a half-century ago seem isolated? For a week, Van Orman and Trotter, civilian entrants in the James Gordon Bennett balloon races, held a big news story in the wilds of Ontario because they had no means of releasing either it or themselves. Not long ago, Jimmy Mattern found himself in much the same predicament in Siberia. There is no comparison between the facilities for rapid communication today and those which existed when Henry Villard completed his transcontinental railroad. News, however, is still no respecter of places. Try as man will to make news always accessible, it doubtless will continue to occur in out-of-the-way places for many years to come.

Mahatma Gandhi has benched himself, but he notifies the British Empire there is still plenty of hop on his fast one.

WAITING FOR THE LEGISLATURE.

The Evolution of Public Opinion

By Roland G. Usher, Professor of History, Washington University

The Last in a Series of Four Articles.

WHAT now of public opinion in the United States? What has been its history and what are its prospects?

In the colonies, public opinion was as active and dominant as perhaps anywhere in the past centuries. The physical conditions were almost those of the Greek and medieval cities. The people were few; the problems of government simple and easily understood. Public opinion extended in all the colonies to the smallest details. But we should talk not of the parts but of the whole. Public opinion in the United States should mean the existence of a general agreement of the people throughout the entire country. Such really did not exist in colonial times except, as always in history, in crises.

The outbreak of the Revolution showed at once to the leaders the difficulty created by distance and time in the way of united opinion and common action, involving an area reaching from Maine to Georgia, itself larger than that of most European states. But it consisted of a narrow shoestring a thousand miles long and provided the maximum problem of communication possible. And by 1789, it had a population of 4,000,000. No wonder the more conservative felt that the Constitution was the maddest experiment in government ever attempted. It presumed popular action by millions on an area as large as part of the continent of Europe, and assumed the possibility of a constant and intelligent public opinion as its very basis, whereas a similar public opinion has never before existed in history except in small areas with a relatively small population. The physical conditions were all wrong. Nevertheless, the Constitution worked.

But the forebodings were all too soon realized. The physical conditions speedily altered for the worse. The population increased more rapidly than had been expected. Four millions in 1789 became seven by 1810; 12 by 1830; 31 by 1860, and, by 1933, reached the enormous figure of 120 millions. Numbers count in the matter of united thought and action on the part of a nation.

Nor did the people stay within easy reach of each other. The population spread westward with great rapidity and by 1820 had reached the Mississippi, and Missouri was already a state beyond. Distance also counts. Then the area of the country was extended by 1860 to include the great West, and in California there was already a state on the Pacific Coast 4000 miles from the national capital. Distance and area were so increased that the physical conditions became almost as unfavorable to the formation of public opinion as they could be.

The speed with which these changes followed one another was moreover so great that further problems were raised. As soon as the older difficulties had been in some measure surmounted, new ones appeared of still greater degree. There is no record in human history of such great and such rapid changes in the physical problem to be solved before public opinion could be real and active. No European country has had, and only three anywhere now have, such problems—Russia, India and China.

But the miracle happened. Public opinion in the United States surmounted the physical obstacles and exists today as one of the stupendous achievements in all history. Undoubtedly, the first factor of consequence was the political intelligence and determination of the American people. Not otherwise should we have conquered distance and time and have, as well, assimilated and infused with our own enthusiasm and purpose millions of immigrants from all the countries of Europe. We had not merely to reach new millions, but new millions not of our own blood and training and most of them not speaking our language. No European state has had for centuries to struggle with the problem of amalgamating into itself millions upon millions of aliens, decade after decade. In a very literal sense, this was the greatest victory the American people won. No European state has had to cope with the physical problem of the trebling of its area.

We were aided by the chance existence of several successive crises which of themselves focused and unified the public mind. The Revolution, the critical period, the framing of the Constitution, the War of 1812, the Mexican War, the slavery issue and the Civil War, presented to the people crises of the older type upon which public opinion has always formulated views and expressed them.

The early physical difficulties of distance and space were overcome largely by the wonderful water communication which the Atlantic Ocean and our large and numerous rivers made possible. The Hudson, Delaware, Ohio, Mississippi, the Great Lakes, were highways more rapidly and easily traveled than the land. If we had had to wait to build roads, public opinion would have been slow to form. The political unity of the people, their activity of thought, the extent of the interchange of ideas was between 1789 and 1860 as great as anything in Europe nationally and certainly internationally. The campaign which put Jackson in the White House was waged without the use of railroad or telegraph, and resulted in a unanimity of public opinion and action on a purely political issue which ranks in the very forefront of demonstrations of the public mind before the arrival of the new communications. It is idle to maintain that public opinion in this country is the creation of the railroad and the telegraph.

Nevertheless, both did by 1860 change the physical conditions of distance and time and did create a new era. By 1860, the area east of the Mississippi was opened by rail. Telegraph lines were numerous. The pony express riders to the West did far better than we might have expected to spread news and were soon replaced by the telegraph to the Pacific Coast, and by the railroad. Newspapers were many and excellent, surpassing the standard of all but one or two of the European papers. All in all, few countries can show in spite of their small area and smaller population a more active and extended public opinion than the United States.

But there have been and still are differences; there have been and always will be difficulties in the way of public opinion in the United States which do not exist in England, France, Germany and the smaller European states. In crises and in great emergencies, our public opinion has been as active, united and outspoken as in any country, large or small. On small issues, on the details of government, in individual instances, it has not achieved the constant action, the immediate response common in England, France and the smaller states.

The reasons are primarily physical. The ability of people to move about within the country quickly and above all cheaply seems to be of the utmost importance. Most Englishmen and Frenchmen can reach London or Paris in four or five hours and, therefore, cheaply. San Francisco is five whole days from New York and Washington; Chicago, St. Louis, Atlanta, are 24 hours at least distant; even Boston is four hours from New York. Travel here is therefore several times as expensive.

The ability of the people to reach each other cheaply and rapidly by mail or telegraph or telephone is also important. The mail takes time; telegraph and telephone are far more expensive than in Europe. The collection of the news is more expensive for the press than abroad. We are surmounting these difficulties and will continue to triumph. In time, we shall find a way to make public opinion in this vast country as immediate in its response to details and to individual cases as it is in smaller and older nations. The thing can be done and we shall be the first country to do it.

The Prophets of Fascism

From the Springfield (Mass.) Republican

THE country did not pay much attention to last week's accumulation of forecasts that the United States is headed toward a Fascist dictatorship. As that eventuality probably is somewhat remote, the country continued to busy itself with the more immediate problems and worries of day-to-day existence. It was Prof. Philip Cabot, the Harvard business school's specialist in public utility administration, who remarked "that in this crisis we have made a long step in the direction of Fascism." Roger Babson, like Prof. Cabot, could not find fault with the emergency grants of power to the President, but he held the view that the middle classes will stand the conflict between capital and labor and all the confusion of the new deal "only for a limited period." If they also have to endure a severely depreciated currency and high prices, "they will themselves take charge . . . with a temporary dictatorship." And "this dictatorship will take the form of Fascism."

The measure of truth in such statements as those by Prof. Cabot and Mr. Babson is not obscure. The danger of Fascism lies in the stern compulsion of movement to which the country has been harnessed in the effort to get out of the depression, while obstructive elements impede its progress. Popular impatience, disgust and exasperation at the confusion caused by the reluctant co-operation of dissident units or groups of industry with the administration's program may store up discontents that eventually might welcome a dictatorship as the least of evils. If we are really headed toward Fascism, as Prof. Cabot thinks, the rebellious soft coal operators, for example, are laying a foundation for it.

The less co-operation there is with the Government, the more controversy and wrangling there may be, the more court litigation to test the constitutionality of the Government acts; in short, the more confusion there may be to bewilder the people, while disappointment over results embitters them, the easier it is for Americans to understand why Italians first and Germans afterward rallied with overwhelming force to the summons of the strong man of single purpose and ruthless action. It probably were a relief to a nation's overwrought nerves to have the babel of dissent and criticism throttled and a definite course imposed on all by force, finally adopted.

The success of the Government's program, as now being developed, seems the best possible insurance against the drift toward Fascism; its failure, with the mass grievances accompanying it, may open the way for more radical projects.

THE banking situation is getting worrisome again. . . . The Treasury is bothered about a lot of banks that have been opened but will be unable to pass the deposit insurance requirements when the latter go into effect Jan. 1. . . . Incoming Congressmen, meanwhile, are singing another song. They are raising merry Cain because so many banks are kept closed. Constituents back home can't get their money out.

Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, who sent out the order to kill little pigs, has won the nickname "Herod" Wallace, after the King of Judea who sent out the order to kill male babies in every family. . . . Jonkheer H. M. van der Wyck, secretary of the Netherlands Legation, is Dutch but has a Scotch reputation. The other day he invited a young lady out for dinner and after calling for her, suggested that they dine at the home of the girl's married sister.

No Love Lost.

SOME of the international horizon-scanners with pipelines to F. D. R. predict that the United States and Great Britain are in for an era of none too good relations. . . . They cite three disturbing factors: 1, War debts, of which Britain probably will not pay more than 10 per cent; 2, Latin America, where a terrific trade war is raging; 3, The Far East, where Sir John Simon is going to do anything except support American policy. . . . The Rapidan honeymoon is over. . . . A. F. H. Wiggin, C. M. G. First Secretary of the British Embassy, is the best golfer in the Diplomatic Corps. While attached to the British Embassy in Rome he entered the national Italian Golf Tournament, and to his great surprise came out the winner.

Consumption.

WHAT some of the recovery experts are watching especially is increased consumption of "producers' commodities," that is, steel, lumber, metals and the materials which go into factory producing equipment. . . . This is because these commodities suffered most during the depression. . . . Consumption of meat, bread, tobacco, textiles, clothes and other essentials decreased hardly at all. . . . But materials for factory production took a terrific wallop.

On Monday night of this week it looked almost certain that violent civil war would break out in Cuba and that the United States would have to intervene. . . . That was what was behind the sudden midnight announcement by Secretary Hull that the United States was championing no Cuban faction. . . . He was preparing for the worst.

Milk.

THE Senate's investigation of the Capital's milk industry looks as if it will unearth testimony as sensational as the banking investigation. . . . And it will mean much more to housewives—the most influential people in the country. So far the committee has shown two powerful firms—National Dairy Products and Bordens—dominating the milk industry.

The other day he invited a young lady out for dinner and after calling for her, suggested that they dine at the home of the girl's married sister.

No Love Lost.

SOME of the international horizon-scanners with pipelines to F. D. R. predict that the United States and Great Britain are in for an era of none too good relations. . . . They cite three disturbing factors: 1, War debts, of which Britain probably will not pay more than 10 per cent; 2, Latin America, where a terrific trade war is raging; 3, The Far East, where Sir John Simon is going to do anything except support American policy. . . . The Rapidan honeymoon is over. . . . A. F. H. Wiggin, C. M. G. First Secretary of the British Embassy, is the best golfer in the Diplomatic Corps. While attached to the British Embassy in Rome he entered the national Italian Golf Tournament, and to his great surprise came out the winner.

Consumption.

WHAT some of the recovery experts are watching especially is increased consumption of "producers' commodities," that is, steel, lumber, metals and the materials which go into factory producing equipment. . . . This is because these commodities suffered most during the depression. . . . Consumption of meat, bread, tobacco, textiles, clothes and other essentials decreased hardly at all. . . . But materials for factory production took a terrific wallop.

On Monday night of this week it looked almost certain that violent civil war would break out in Cuba and that the United States would have to intervene. . . . That was what was behind the sudden midnight announcement by Secretary Hull that the United States was championing no Cuban faction. . . . He was preparing for the worst.

Milk.

THE Senate's investigation of the Capital's milk industry looks as if it will unearth testimony as sensational as the banking investigation. . . . And it will mean much more to housewives—the most influential people in the country. So far the committee has shown two powerful firms—National Dairy Products and Bordens—dominating the milk industry.

Wholesale dismissals of prohibition agents have not bothered some of them much. They are going in for favorite lame-duck pastimes. Ex-Special Agent K. T. Orrison has opened a spacious suite in Washington and has announced the establishment of a private sleuthing business. . . . He is assisted by an ex-cop and several ex-agents.

Secretary Hull is showing a lot more punch since he came back from London. . . . He is still kindly, but can be hard-boiled on occasion. . . . He talks faster and more to the point. . . . Professor Moleys name this week was removed from the door of the office which he once occupied as Assistant Secretary of State.

Under Fire.

J. F. T. O'CONNOR, Comptroller of the Currency, is under heavy fire on the question of opening closed banks. . . . One point at which his foes are aiming is the retention of Deputy Commissioner F. G. Awalt, a Hoover hold-over. . . . He is supposed to do the work for the inexperienced O'Connor. . . . Don Roper's secret maneuvering to bring the permanent NRA organization under his Department of Commerce is encountering heavy sledding. . . . Gen. Johnson has a deep-rooted antipathy to established bureaucratic agencies, is insistent that the NRA be continued as an independent institution. . . . He is willing, however, to co-ordinate its statistical and conciliation activities with those of the Commerce and Labor Departments. . . . The last has not been heard yet of Huey Long's fistic encounter on Long Island. . . . The sponsors of the move to award his anonymous assailant a gold Kingfish medal have a spectacular stunt that they plan to spring soon. . . . The shortest NRA code so far submitted is that of the American Association of Master Locksmiths. . . . It consists of 182 words fixing a 48-hour minimum work week, and a minimum wage of 50 cents an hour.

Gold Strategy.

THERE is a deep strategy behind the President's executive order requiring all gold possessors to file a Treasury report showing the amount of their holdings. . . . . The Department of Justice has advised F. D. R. that prosecution on the mere possessing more than $100 of gold is an extremely dubious undertaking. . . . But action on the failure to report the amount of gold held is another matter. . . . . The Department believes it can make that kind of a suit, based on the income tax laws, stick. . . . . Failure to report income taxes was how the Government got Al Capone and other racketeers. . . . . The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reports that while the potato crop this year is 18 per cent les than last year's, prices are 255 per cent higher. . . . . Pittsburgh's Democratic Congressman, Henry Ellenbogen, is working on a bill permitting postal savings to be used as checking accounts.

Behind the proposal of the Agriculture Adjustment Administration for a marketing agreement among meat packers is a bitter three-cornered fight. . . . . The three elements at loggerheads are: (1) the big packers concentrated in Chicago who seek to control the industry; (2) the little local packing companies that have sprung up in recent years through the expansion of the trucking business; and (3) the cattle raisers. . . . . The chief fight is between the latter and the big packers. The cattlemen charge that the packing moguls are trying to undermine price levels.

EX-GOV. BAKER DIES AT 59 AFTER 4-YEAR ILLNESS

Missouri Chief Executive From 1925 to 1929 Succumbs at His Home in Jefferson City.

FUNERAL PROBABLY WILL BE MONDAY

He Began Career as Woodcutter and Section Hand —Served Term as State School Superintendent.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 16.—Sam A. Baker, 59 years old, Republican Governor of Missouri from 1925 to 1929, died at his home here early today.

Mr. Baker was succeeded as Governor by Henry S. Caulfield, Republican, four years ago. After his retirement he suffered two strokes of paralysis and had been confined to bed much of the last four years. During his long illness, he was in a serious condition many times, but his strong constitution enabled him to rally.

He was elected Governor in 1924 over his Democratic opponent, Arthur M. Nelson of Boonville, who lost his life in the Lake of the Ozarks about a year ago. Previously Baker had been State Superintendent of Schools.

He is survived by the widow and a daughter, Mary Elizabeth.

Tentative arrangements have been made to hold funeral services Monday at the First Presbyterian Church here. The Rev. A. B. Jackson, a close friend of the former Governor, will conduct the services.

Baker's Career as Section Hand, Educator and Governor.

Sam A. Baker retired from the office of Governor Jan. 14, 1929, when his successor, Henry S. Caulfield, was inaugurated. He had been in ill health during the last year of his administration. He suffered a mild stroke of paralysis on April 15, 1929, and a second stroke May 6.

A native Missourian, Baker rose from wood-cutter, railroad section hand and country school teacher, to State Superintendent of Schools and then Governor. He was the thirty-seventh Governor of the State and the fourth Republican to hold the office. Virtually all of his career, aside from the four years he was Governor, was spent as a teacher or school superintendent.

Baker's administration as Governor was a rather turbulent one in the first three years, due to rows over political patronage, and upheavals within boards and departments. At the outset he fell out with Republican organization leaders over his policy of making personal appointments to State offices, to the exclusion of jobseekers indorsed by the organization.

This breach was almost closed near the end of his term, and he was boomed by Missouri Republicans for the Republican nomination for Vice-President, at the national convention in Kansas City last year.

One of Baker's marked characteristics was loyalty to his friends. This trait resulted in his bearing the brunt of severe criticism, in several instances, when he retained in office personal appointees who were under fire. Some of his more severe critics have conceded that the faults of his administration chiefly were due to over-reliance on friends placed in public office.

Criticism of Administration.

The principal criticism of his administration arose from political appointments in the State eleemosynary institutions, and scandals in the State Board of Health, State Penitentiary and State Hospital for the Insane at Nevada, involving acts of appointees. These upheavals contributed to the breaking down of Baker's health in the latter part of his administration, in the opinion of friends.

Baker's campaign for Governor was a novel one, in that he began virtually without funds or organization support. He started a year before the 1924 election, and after an intensive canvass of the State had developed some support, his candidacy for the Republican nomination was taken up by the Hyde administration machine. Baker was elected over Arthur W. Nelson, the Democratic nominee, by a majority of 5872.

One of the outstanding accomplishments of his administration was his successful move to compromise conflicting proposals for an additional State road bond issue, to expedite completion of the State highway system, provide for necessary widening and extensions, and for construction of deeder roads.

The Automobile Club of Missouri was pressing a proposal of $120,000,000, and the State Highway Commission was adhering to a $60,000,000 plan. The two groups deadlocked. Baker insisted that some agreement be reached, and appointed a compromise committee with instructions to work out a plan. The $75,000,000 bond issue approved in the election last November was the result.

Elder in Presbyterian Church.

Baker was an elder in the Presbyterian Church of Jefferson City, and he and Mrs. Baker lived up to the theory of tithing, setting aside one-tenth of their income for the church, or charitable or religious objects.

He liked to tell humorous stories and rarely failed to have a new one at his daily conferences with newspaper correspondents in his office, or when receiving other visitors. He memorized many poems and almost invariably his public addresses included two or three poetical quotations.

Born in Patterson, Wayne County, Missouri, Nov. 7, 1874, Baker spent his early life in rural communities. He attended a village school at Mill Spring, Mo., and worked his way through the State Teachers' College in Cape Girardeau, being graduated in 1897.

He began teaching school in the Bethel district in Wayne County, and at different times worked as a wood-cutter, a railroad section hand, and grocery clerk. He subsequently taught school in Mill Spring, was high school principal in Joplin, and served as city school superintendent in Piedmont, Richmond and Jefferson City.

Baker was elected State Superintendent of Schools in November, 1918, and served four years. He was the first elective State officer to take the oath of office in the present Capitol. He sought re-election in 1922, but was defeated.

He served as president of the Missouri State Teachers' Association, vice-president of the National Education Association, and was active in civic clubs in Jefferson City.

STATE BOARD PASSES ON 4 RELIEF PROJECTS

Kansas City Wants $5,736,475 Auditorium From Public Works Fund.

The State Advisory Board of the Public Works Administration has passed on application for grants by four Missouri cities, including the request of Kansas City for aid for a $5,736,475 municipal auditorium. Hugh Miller, State engineer of the administration, said no statement could be made as to what the board's action was. The four applications have been forwarded to Washington.

One of them is from Springfield, which wants to spend $1,000,000 for extending its sanitary sewer system and add to sewage disposal plants and storm sewers. This work would employ 500 men for a year. The others are: Bethany, sanitary sewer system and sewage disposal plant costing $114,000, to employ 60 men a year; Butler, sewage disposal plant and addition to sewer system costing $40,488, to employ 60 men a year. The Kansas City auditorium would employ 710 men 18 months. Federal grants cover 30 per cent of the cost of labor and materials on approved public works.

In a statement today listing the varied improvements for which Federal grants and loans may be sought, Harry Scullin, chairman of the State Advisory Board, said:

"In order that Missouri may benefit by the provisions of the public works act, it is essential that the State, counties and municipalities take steps immediately to file their applications with State Engineer Miller, Buder Building. If this is by states and for this reason why Missouri and its unemployed should not benefit by at least $100,000,000 worth of public works. The funds available for non-Federal projects have not been allocated by states and for for this reason states that delay application may find that the funds are exhausted and that they may not be able to receive Federal aid."

CONTRACT CHAMPIONS PLAY FOR MASTER CUP

David Burnstine Leading in New York Tournament for Individual Honor.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Thirty-six contract bridge champions started a three-day tournament yesterday to select the champion of champions and 1933 holder of the Individual Master's Gold Cup.

The tournament is being held at the Ritz Carlton instead of at the Deal (N. J.) bridge club as usual, and each of the nine tables is in a separte room.

David Burnstine, veteran tournament winner, led the field today. Mrs. Courtland Smith was second with 255½ points and Joseph E. Cain third with 253.

Most of the bigwigs of bridgedom are participating. Ely Culbertson declined to enter, but Mrs. Culbertson is playing. She had Waldemar von Zedtwitz as her first partner.

Howard Schenken, present holder of the title, played first with P. Hal Sims.

The event is only three years old. Willard S. Karn donated the gold cup in 1931 and won it himself that year.

Virtually all the contestants are from New York and vicinity. Among the few players from out of town are William E. McKenney of Cleveland, secretary of the American Brdige League, and B. Jay Becker of Philadelphia.

The following hand as played by Walter Malowan presented an anomaly—a finesse worked—but Malowan would have been happier to see it fail. He was playing with Charles Lochridge against Mrs. Culbertson and Von Zedtwitz.

	Lochridge ♠ A 8 7 ♥ 10 7 6 ♦ Q 7 3 ♣ A Q J 5
Mrs. Culbertson ♠ Q J 6 3 ♥ J 8 5 2 ♦ 9 ♣ K 8 4 2	WEST NORTH EAST SOUTH	Von Zedtwitz ♠ K 10 5 2 ♥ A K 9 4 ♦ A K ♣ 9 7 3
	Malowan ♠ 9 4 ♥ Q 3 ♦ J 10 8 6 5 4 2 ♣ 10 6

The North-South pair was vulnerable and East dealt.

Von Zedtzwitz, East, bid a heart and to Malowan, South, it looked as if opponents might have a slam. He decided to bid and take a set, so his call was two diamonds, although his hand was not worth it. Mrs. Culbertson, West, bid two hearts, Lochridge, North, raised to three diamonds and Von Zedtwitz doubled.

When the dummy was down Malowan saw that if the king of clubs were in the East hand opponents could have made game in hearts for 620 points. In that case, also, he would be set two tricks, a loss of 500, but still would be 120 points to the good for having kept opponents from playing and making four hearts. When he came to taking a finesse to the dummy's clubs he hoped East would have the king win the trick, but the finesse worked and Malowan learned that West had the king, that the opponents would not have made gamemake three hearts in hearts and that his sacrifice he t been costly.

At other tables the North-South players let their opponents bid and

AMERICAN PAINTING EXHIBIT OPENS TODAY

Display of 47 Canvasses by 24 Artists to Continue Till Oct. 31.

The twenty-eighth annual exhibition of American painting opened today at City Art Museum in Forest Park where it will remain until Oct. 31.

The display includes 47 canvases by 24 artists invited to participate and 14 pictures by artists of St. Louis and vicinity selected from among more than 200 submitted.

Shown with the paintings are a group of drawings by the same artists which have been installed in a basement gallery. The paintings occupy the large west gallery on the main floor and a smaller adjoining gallery.

In obtaining the paintings for the exhibition the method adopted last year, of asking prominent artists to display two examples of their recent work, was continued. In previous years the pictures selected were those that had been exhibited in other museums and only one painting by each artist was shown.

It is the intention of the museum's director, Meyric Rogers, by careful selection of paintings each year to exhibit, during the course of a few years, the most representative works of acknowledged leaders of American art.

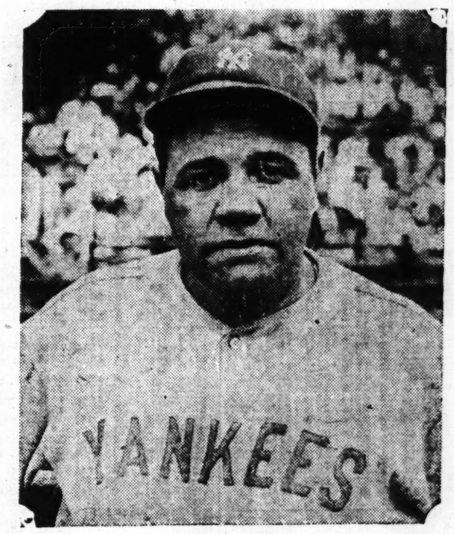

For this reason the present exhibition is smaller than its predecessors and includes paintings by many artists who are new to the museum. Of the 24 represented in the invited group, only six were included in last year's exhibition.

STOCKS FIRM WITH MINING LIST AMONG THE LEADERS

All Those Prominent in Trade Do Not Recover Full Losses of Previous Day but There Are Many Gains of 1 to 3 or More Points.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Stocks took fresh courage today and rallied substantially under the leadership of mining issues. While all of the leaders did not recover their rather sharp losses of the preceding session, there were many gains of 1 to 3 or more points. Trading activity was at its best in the last half hour. Transfers approximated 1,150,000 shares.

The Treasury raised the price of gold to $30.49 an ounce, a new high, and the mining equities immediately swung upward under brisk bidding. The rally was considered somewhat impressive in the face of indifferent commodity price movements. Grains were irregular in the early hours, but displayed firmer tendencies later. Cotton again improved moderately. The dollar was erratic in foreign exchange dealings. Sterling continued to advance, but the French franc eased in the morning.

Homestake Mining shares jumped 26 points to a new high at 351. U. S. Smelting also reached a new peak at 100, and gains of 2 to 5 or more were recorded by American Smelting, Howe Sound, Cerro De Pasco, Alaska Juneau and Noranda. International Silver was up 6, and advances of 2 to around 4 were held by some issues.

Grains staged a late rally coincident with the recovery in stocks. Wheat finished with gains of 3⅝ to 3¾ cents a bushel, corn advanced 2⅜ to 3⅜ cents, oats were ¾ to 1½ cents higher, and rye and barley came back around 1 to 3 cents a bushel. Winnipeg wheat also recovered 1⅜ to 1½ cents a bushel. Cotton gained 55 to 70 cents a bale. Bar silver again firmed ⅛ of a cent at 38¾ cents an ounce.

Foreign exchanges were buoyant at the finish. All the gold currencies reached new historic highs. The French franc, slightly lower at one time, ended with a gain of .04½ of a cent at 5.85 cents, Dutch guilders were up .69 of a cent at 60.46 cents and Swiss francs and Belgian belgas were each about ¼ of a cent higher. The British pound sterling advanced 5¼ cents to a cable rate of $4.72 cents, the highest level since it attained its former gold parity in July.

Closing price and net change of the 10 most active stocks: Great Western Sugar, 40½, up 3; American Smelting 46, up 3⅞; Chrysler 51⅜, up 1¾; General Motors 34¾, up 1¼; International Nickel 21⅝, up 1; Alaska Juneau 31, up 1⅞; Sherry Corporation 5¾, up ⅛; Cerro de Pasco 42, up 2⅞; Kennecott 24¼, up 2; United Corporation 7, unchanged.

U. S. Dollar 67 Cents.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The dollar, in terms of the French gold franc, closed with an approximate value of 67 cents compared with 67.52 cents yesterday and 74.95 cents a month ago.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

BERLIN, Sept. 16.—Business on the Boerse was inactive today and prices sagged. Declines registered were rarely more than one point and a slight recovery occurred at the close of the market.

London and Paris were closed.

Foreign Stocks Again on Paris Bourse.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 16.—Quotations of foreign stocks, prohibited since the Oustric Bank scandal of 1930, will be again permitted on the Paris Bourse under a decree just approved at a Cabinet session.

Bourse circles expect several American stocks, including British American Tobacco, to be introduced.

Issues other than state and municipal must be approved by a committee of brokers and bankers.

The action was interpreted in Bourse circles as an attempt to stimulate a lagging market.

The Oustric Bank was placed in judicial liquidation by order of the Commercial Tribunal on Nov. 7, 1930. The bank's outstanding stock and its affiliations were estimated at a nominal value of 100,000,000 francs (then about $4,000,000).

Officials of the bank were later charged with mishandling of funds.

The ensuing scandal eventually was a principal factor in the fall of the Premier Andre Tardieu's government on Dec. 4, 1930.

FINANCIAL NOTES

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The ratio of favorable dividend changes to the total number of revisions showed further improvement during the past week, Standard Statistics, Inc., reported today. Favorable changes totaled 21 and unfavorable four. Last week favorable changes were 17 and unfavorable two.

The order placed this week by New York Central for 8230 tons of steel rails brought to 17,530 tons the total ordered this year. It was distributed among four companies, Bethlehem, Illinois, Inland and Algoma Steel companies.

Thirty municipalities are scheduled to offer $17,239,413 in new financing next week, reports the "Daily Bond Buyer." The largest item is a $6,808,000 issue of Los Angeles County school district bonds, to be awarded Monday.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad reported July net income of $1,953,828 against $2,154,552 in the same month a year ago.

The daily gold statement of the Federal Reserve Bank showed $8,532,400 released from earmark for foreign account as previously announced. It included $8,333,200 sent to France and $199,200 to England, which made no change in U. S. gold stocks.

The expectation of consumers of further advances in tin prices has caused a fair volume of business this week and the price of tin—46¼ cents per pound—represented a new high for recent weeks. English refined tin is at the usual discount of .1 cent per pound.

Grain Notes.

3 CENT ADVANCE IN WHEAT PRICE ON LOCAL BOARD

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 16. — December wheat, the only active future today, closed up 3½ cents, after opening lower and moving over an irregular course. The grain trade credited the late spurt in domestic markets to rise in securities and absence of pressure on wheat.

Winnipeg wheat closed 1⅜@1⅝c net higher.

Liverpool closed ¾@⅞d lower after opening unchanged.

December wheat opened at 92c, down ½c. May wheat was 96½c bid at opening.

Local wheat receipts which were 76,500 bushels, compared with 54,000 last week and 61,600 last year, included 41 cars local and 10 through. Corn receipts which were 81,000 bushels, compared with 37,500 last week and 53,200 last year, included 42 cars local and 12 through. Oat receipts which were 20,000 bushels, compared with 30,000 last week and 24,200 last year, included eight cars local and two through. Hay receipts were four cars local and one through.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Sales of cash grain made on the floor of the exchange Saturday, were as follows:

MAY WHEAT 99 7-8 CENTS IN SHARP CHICAGO RISE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Dollar-a-bushel wheat became a virtual reality today, with a jump of almost 4 cents a bushel.

May delivery reached a peak of 99⅞ cents, and the market as a whole rose to the topmost level witnessed in about a month. There was no material selling pressure in evidence, and brokers reported a pronounced increase of public speculative buying as the day approached an end.

A stimulus was derived from a sharp advance in securities and from NRA code agreement by soft coal operators. Wheat closed buoyant at the day's highest figures, 3½@3⅞c above yesterday's finish, corn 2⅝@3 cents up, oats ¾@1⅜c advanced, and provisions showing a rise of 7 to 20 cents.

Inflation talk and another advance in the price of free gold were also factors in the rise of grain prices.

Wheat prces scored gans today after an rregular start.

Comment that domestic supplies of wheat had been over estimated, attracted notice, and there was also buying on account of upturns in British exchange. Opening at ⅛ off to ¼ up, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started ¼@⅜ down, and subsequently rallied.

Giving help to price upturns were estimates that wheat export purchases in Canada yesterday totaled as much as 4,000,000 bushels, and that 32 hours of welcome rains were reported in the prairie provinces. On the other hand, an undertone of uncertainty prevailed among Chicago traders, and new speculative buying lacked volume.

Liverpool advices told of liquidation of wheat holdings there because of expected heavy deliveries. There was also comment that the crop outlook in Australia had been improved by rains, and that Argentine wheat was being freely offered in Liverpool. Under such circumstances, Chicago prices reacted from early advances, and at one stage went well below yesterday's finish, but then rallied sharply.

Comment of frost possibilities tonight in the Dakotas and Nebraska imparted relative firmness to corn and oats prices.

DEMAND FOR FOREIGN BONDS AT WEEK END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The short session of the bond market today brought a continued demand for foreign bonds while a majority of issues in the domestic section eased at one time or other.

Bonds of gold standard countries held around the high levels reached this week and Marseilles 6s, Bordeaux 6s and Lyons 6s advanced to new peaks. French Governments were lightly traded and held unchanged most of time. British 5½s were stable.

Such issues as Allegheny 5s, St. Paul 5s, Northwestern 4¾s, Warner Brothers 6s, recovered fractionally.

Small offerings of some railroads, utility and industrial bonds found an absence of nearby bids and lower prices resulted at one time. Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, Sept. 16 (U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).—Business in wool is quite active and some further advances in prices were made in the latter part of the past week. Resistance to the advancing price tendency slowed up trading early in the week but apparently buisness in goods helped to overcome the resistance. Prices were higher on a wide range of medium and finer fleeces and very firm to high on territory and other Western grown wools.

3 CENT ADVANCE IN WHEAT PRICE ON LOCAL BOARD

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 16. — December wheat, the only active future today, closed up 3½ cents, after opening lower and moving over an irregular course. The grain trade credited the late spurt in domestic markets to rise in securities and absence of pressure on wheat.

Winnipeg wheat closed 1⅜@1⅝c net higher.

Liverpool closed ¾@⅞d lower after opening unchanged.

December wheat opened at 92c, down ½c. May wheat was 96½c bid at opening.

Local wheat receipts which were 76,500 bushels, compared with 54,000 last week and 61,600 last year, included 41 cars local and 10 through. Corn receipts which were 81,000 bushels, compared with 37,500 last week and 53,200 last year, included 42 cars local and 12 through. Oat receipts which were 20,000 bushels, compared with 30,000 last week and 24,200 last year, included eight cars local and two through. Hay receipts were four cars local and one through.

MAY WHEAT 99 7-8 CENTS IN SHARP CHICAGO RISE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Dollar-a-bushel wheat became a virtual reality today, with a jump of almost 4 cents a bushel.

May delivery reached a peak of 99⅞ cents, and the market as a whole rose to the topmost level witnessed in about a month. There was no material selling pressure in evidence, and brokers reported a pronounced increase of public speculative buying as the day approached an end.

A stimulus was derived from a sharp advance in securities and from NRA code agreement by soft coal operators. Wheat closed buoyant at the day's highest figures, 3½@3⅞c above yesterday's finish, corn 2⅝@3 cents up, oats ¾@1⅜c advanced, and provisions showing a rise of 7 to 20 cents.

Inflation talk and another advance in the price of free gold were also factors in the rise of grain prices.

Wheat prces scored gans today after an rregular start.

Comment that domestic supplies of wheat had been over estimated, attracted notice, and there was also buying on account of upturns in British exchange. Opening at ⅛ off to ¼ up, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started ¼@⅜ down, and subsequently rallied.

Giving help to price upturns were estimates that wheat export purchases in Canada yesterday totaled as much as 4,000,000 bushels, and that 32 hours of welcome rains were reported in the prairie provinces. On the other hand, an undertone of uncertainty prevailed among Chicago traders, and new speculative buying lacked volume.

Liverpool advices told of liquidation of heavy deliveries. There was also comment that the crop outlook in Australia had been improved by rains, and that Argentine wheat was being freely offered in Liverpool. Under such circumstances, Chicago prices reacted from early advances, and at one stage went well below yesterday's finish; but then rallied sharply.

Comment of frost possibilities tonight in the Dakotas and Nebraska imparted relative firmness to corn and oats prices.

DEMAND FOR FOREIGN BONDS AT WEEK END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The short session of the bond market today brought a continued demand for foreign bonds while a majority of issues in the domestic section eased at one time or other.

Bonds of gold standard countries held around the high levels reached this week and Marseilles 6s, Bordeaux 6s and Lyons 6s advanced to new peaks. French Government were lightly traded and held unchanged most of time. British 5½s were stable.

Such issues as Allegheny 5s, St. Paul 5s, Northwestern 4¾s, Warner Brothers 6s, recovered fractionally.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, Sept. 16 (U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).—Business in wool is quite active and some further advances in prices were made in the latter part of the past week. Resistance to the advancing price tendency slowed up trading early in the week but apparently buisness in goods helped to overcome the resistance. Prices were higher on a wide range of medium and finer fleeces and very firm to high on territory and other Western grown wools.

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., Weekly Tabloid Review of Business

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Following is a tabloid review of business reported by Dun-Bradstreet in the four divisions of wholesale and jobbing, retail trade, manufacturing and industry and collections this week, compared with the corresponding period last year. Good (G) means above; fair (F), equal to; quiet (Q); slow (s), below last year; active (A):

	Who.	Ret.	Mfg.	Col.

Comment on Business.

ST. LOUIS—Industrial pace slackened by decrease in rush orders. Shoe factories still working at capacity. Mark-up in retail prices has had no retardative influence on demand. Nearly 80 per cent of the local business establishments has signed the NRA pledge. Carloadings higher. Lead and zinc prices firm. Demand for money light.

PHILADELPHIA—Undoubtedly conditions are bettering, not so rapidly, perhaps, as a month ago nor quite so fast as some had expected, but sales are better. In many lines it is said that stocks are so depleted that shortages have already developed. At first retailers did not report much improvement but more recently the improvement has been most marked in retail lines with a tendency for the betterment among manufacturers to slow down somewhat. Labor troubles have, no doubt, contributed to this.

PITTSBURGH—Business in most lines is at a lower level than it was in July and early August, although averaging quite a little better than a year ago. Crops generally are below the seasonable average of condition, and potatoes are much below the average season. Some sections have felt the lack of rain badly. Collections are spotty, many closed banks handicapping merchants. Industrial activity at lower level than last week.

CHICAGO—Retail sales running ahead of the August volume, which exceeded the total of August, 1932, by nearly 50 per cent. All branches of wholesale trade stimulated by enormous throngs of buyers now here. Disposal of pigs under the Government's pork reduction program well under control. Orders for yellow pine increasing. Hide and skin market quiet. September business in pig iron and coke larger than in August, when volume established a record for this season of the year.

CLEVELAND—Outstanding gains in retail trade recorded for men's and women's wearing apparel. Wholesale orders fewer than a week ago. Industrial operations maintained at former levels. Iron ore shipments continue at close to capacity, topping last year's low level by more than 300 per cent. Coal shipments from Lake Erie ports continue heavy. Banks still unable to provide borrowing facilities existing prior to March of this year.

DETROIT—Retail sales up 15 per cent from corresponding week in September, 1932. Sales of school apparel, some wares, coats, and fur garments the largest in three years. Deliveries on overdue orders occupying major attention of wholesalers. Main support of steel comes from the motor and canning industries, both of which are holding up surprisingly well. The Detroit area, with $500,000,000 of frozen deposits has not yet recovered from the banking difficulties, which all but strangled business activity in this state.

MILWAUKEE—All business improving. More factories reporting increased activity. Collections in direct consumption lines good; other lines slow. General crops poor.

TOLEDO—Department store sales holding up well, with the percentage of gain continuing to widen from the comparative record of 1932. Wholesale markets less active than last week, with the exception of dry goods and shoes, which were ordered freely. Bank debits in excess of those for the comparative period a year ago. Further expansion in operation schedules of glass manufacturers and foundry and machine shops. Employment in 51 local plants dropped 290 from last week's total; decline chiefly in automotive divisions.

KANSAS CITY—Trading rather quiet in both wholesale and retail lines. Farm products and livestock showed no important changes over the week preceding. Flour trade dull. Most of the inactivity was attributable to the unusually hot weather for this time of the year.

BALTIMORE—Improvement in general business continues, although industrial activity not quite so active. Re-employment campaign added over 17,000 to payrolls, with additional improvement promised for September. Imports and exports showed substantial gains in July and August, but total for the year still below 1932. Wholesale and retail trade continues active. Collections improving.

EXPERT SAYS SEAL ON FORGED BONDS WAS GENUINE

Handwriting Authority Concludes All Signatures on Fake Kansas Securities Were Bogus, However.

INVESTIGATION IS BROADENED

Inquiry Being Launched Into Affairs of the International Mortgage Trust Co. of Topeka.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 16.—Conclusions of a handwriting expert that while the signature of Will J. French, State Auditor, had been forged to the spurious municipal bonds uncovered in Kansas' bogus bond case, his official seal, and not an imitation of it, had been used in stamping the securities, were made public yesterday by investigators.

Fred M. Harris, Gov. Alf M. Landon's special counsel in the inquiry in which about $1,000,000 in spurious municipal bonds and warrants have come to light, made public a report by J. C. Shearman, handwriting expert and examiner of documents, in which Shearman drew these conclusions.

French said it was "very possible" for his seal to have been used and that while he had no information of such incidents "there are a dozen ways in which a forger might have gotten the seal on the bonds."

Calls All Signatures Forgeries.

Shearman concluded that all of the alleged signatures of issuing or recording officers appearing on the spurious bonds were forgeries and that the bogus bonds were copied in some detail from transcripts on file in the State Auditor's office without any apparent effort being made to duplicate physical characteristics of the original securities.

Ronald Finney, bond broker and speculator, and his employe, Leland Caldwell, now are awaiting trial on charges of forging and selling forged municipal bonds. Tom B. Boyd, State Treasurer, is charged with converting $150,000 of State funds to his and Finney's use, while all these defendants are alleged in a Federal charge to have used the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Inquiry Is Broadened.

Another disclosure made in the inquiry by Harris was that an investigation had been launched into affairs of the International Mortgage Co., Topeka, which was closed in February, 1932, by the State Bank Department. At the time it was closed the trust company had on deposit several hundred thousand dollars of State, Topeka and Shawnee County funds. Harris said Don Little, a State investiagtor, was questioning Ira Henry, secretary of the defunct concern.

Meanwhile at Emporia, W. W. Finney, father of Ronald Finney, who is charged with embezzlement of $75,000 from the closed Fidelity State & Savings Bank, of which he is president, waived his preliminary hearing and was ordered held for trial at the October term of Lyon County District Court.

ST. JOSEPH WATER COMPANY SEEKS RATE CASE REHEARING

Utility Attacks Decision of Commission Cutting 8 Per Cent Return to 6½ Per Cent.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 16.—Rehearing of a case in which the Missouri Public Service Commission recently held 6½ per cent was a fair rate of return for the St. Joseph (Mo.) Water Co., based on existing conditions, is sought in a motion filed with the commission by the company.

The motion attacks the finding on rate of return as illegal, inadequate and unreasonable. The company contends the rate of return should have been fixed at not less than 7½ per cent. The St. Joseph Water Co. had been allowed an 8 per cent return under an order of the commission in a case in 1925.

The commission held conditions justified a reduction in the return utilities would be allowed to earn on their ratemaking valuations, and ruled it could not, at this time, permit a utility a rate which may have been proper in more prosperous times. In that order the commission directed the company to file a new schedule of rates providing a reduction of approximately $47,500 a year for water customers in St. Joseph.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 16.—Joseph (Red) O'Riordan, alleged kidnaper, was held for Detrot police today under heavy guard and $50,000 bail.

O'Riordan, identified as a member of the "Legs" Laman gang of Detroit, was arrested here yesterday. He said he would fight extradition to Michigan.

The alleged gangster is wanted by Detroit police on charges of aiding in the abduction of Charles Mattler, produce merchant, in 1930.

O'Riordan had been living here under the name of George Richards. His wife said they came to Los Angeles for her health. "He went to church with me every morning since we have been here," she asid.

MEMO SAYS NAZIS, NOT REDS, STARTED FIRE IN REICHSTAG

Statement Attributed to Dr. Oberfohren, Nationalist, Who Killed Self, Protesting Against Hitlerism.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—A memorandum read yesterday before the unofficial tribunal of nine jurists which is hearing evidence on the fire in the Reichstag Building in Berlin, of which Communists are accused, said the fire was started by Hitler's Nazis themselves in order to create fear of Communist terrorism and increase Nazi votes.

The memorandum purported to have been writted by the late Dr. Ernst Oberfohren, former leading member of the German Nationalist party, which Chancellor Hitler discarded as allies after his Government was firmly seated. Oberfohren committed suicide, protesting against persecution by the Nazis.

The memorandum accused Prussian Premier Goering and Minister of Propaganda Joseph Goebbels, lieutenants of Hitler, of "engineering" the fire.

George Bernhardt, a former Berlin editor, testified that Communists "do not go in for individual acts of terror" and that by accusing Communists the Hitler Government could bar Communists from the Reichstag.

Rudolph Breitscheid, member of the Reichstag since 1920, referring to one of the accused, Ernst Torgler, testified that it was "utterly impossible for him to have had anything to do with the Reichstag fire."

Dr. Gustav Sack, German attorney who will defend Torgler, was in attendance at the hearings yesterday. He said:

"Torgler is innocent of any direct or indirect connection with the fire. His chief accuser, Marius Van Der Luebbe (a Dutchman), has assumed sole blame for the fire. Van Der Luebbe never confessed to being a Communist, as was reported, but flatly stated he had never heard of nor never met Torgler or the three accused Bulgarian Communists before his arrest."

Sack said Torgler was not kept in chains, but that he was constantly handcuffed.

The Reichstag building, built in 1884-94, at a cost of $5,800,000, burned last Feb. 27. The fire was of incendiary origin. The Hitler government accused the Communist opposition and Van der Luebbe, Torgler and three Bulgarians were arrested. They are to go to trial in Berlin Tuesday.

The hearing here on the evidence is admittedly of no legal weight. The findings, however, are expected to carry weight in public opinion.

GIRL, 15, KILLS FRIEND

Coroner's Jury Decides Shooting Was Accidental.

By the Associated Press.

IPSWICH, S. D., Sept. 16.—The unintentional discharge of a shotgun in the hands of a school girl friend was blamed for the death of Viola Jeschke, 15, at the home of relatives near Loyalton last Tuesday.

A verdict of accidental shooting was reached by a Coroner's jury. The jury was told that Delilah Waltman, 15, had obtained a shotgun to "frighten some boys away." Believing the gun was not loaded, she pulled the trigger and Viola fell.

FIFTH LIFE TERM FOR MURDER

By the Associated Press.

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Sept. 16.—George (Clicker) Jones, 27 years old, fifth member of a gang to be tried for the murder of Special Patrolman Carlos Carrick, was convicted of first-degree murder yesterday. The jury recommended life imprisonment. The same penalty was recommended for each of the four previously tried.

Carrick was shot Feb. 25 as he interrupted the gang in a holdup. Jones was captured at Barberton, Ohio.

LOUIS EGAN DROPS SUITS OVER LACLEDE POWER BOARD

Union Electric Was Denied Right to Acquire Voting Certificates.

Two suits filed in Circuit Court in April, 1932, by Louis H. Egan, president of Union Electric Light & Power Co., involving his right to serve on the board of directors of the Laclede Power & Light Co., an affiliate of the Laclede Gas Light Co., were dismissed by him yesterday.

In one suit Egan asked that the voting trustees of the Laclede Power recognize his election as a member of the board. The other suit asked for appointment of a receiver for stock of Laclede Power on deposit with the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co.

Theodore Rassieur, attorney for Egan, explained that the suits were dropped because of a recent decision of the Missouri Supreme Court sustaining the State Public Service Commission in denying the application of Union Electric to acquire voting certificates in Laclede Power. Although the decision was in a case apart from the Circuit Court actions the attorney said it related to the same issue in controversy. Therefore there was no purpose in continuing the litigation. Laclede Power is a competitor of Union Electric.

PRUSSIAN STATE COUNCIL TAKES THE NAZI OATH

Premier Goering Says Fatherland Has Been Saved From Chaos.

BERLIN, Sept. 16.—The Prussian State Council was inaugurated yesterday under the aegis of the Nazi swastika, and Prussian Premier Goering told assembled statesmen the fatherland had been saved from chaos by smashing an "effete system of cowardly time-servers."

Administering the Nazi oath, Premier Goering proclaimed that men of action now ruled Germany instead of pacifists and parliamentarians. He observed the Reichstag fire last February showed Germany tottering on the brink of ruin.

'HOLDUP' COFFEE SHOP OUSTED

Turkish Governor Orders Hollow Plane Tree Vacated.

MOUDANIA, Turkey, Sept. 16.—The most notorious coffee-house in Turkey, established for 35 years in the huge hollow trunk of a plane tree, centuries old, has been closed by the authorities. The proprietors were such ruffians that the towns-people called it the "Hold-Up" coffee-house. No one dared pass it without obeying the owners' threatening summons to buy the usual 1½ cents' worth of coffee.

The governor of Moudania has ordered that the tree be vacated and a wall built round it, "so that this tree may be restored to a condition worthy of its great age."

PROF. EINSTEIN SAYS HE IS NO COMMUNIST

'Misunderstood,' He Declares, Because 'In Ignorance' He Let Organizations Use His Name.

By the Associated Press.

CROMER, England, Sept. 16.—Prof. Albert Einstein said yesterday he had been a "victim of misunderstanding"—that he never has been a Communist or kindly disposed toward Communism.

After he had read a pamphlet entitled, "The Communist Solar System," published by the Labor party, Prof. Einstein said:: "I have been a victim of misunderstanding as to the true objects of certain organizations which are in truth nothing less than a camouflaged propaganda in the service of Russian despotism. In ignorance of their true purpose, I have taken no steps to prevent the use of my name by 'The Workers' International Relief' and 'The Anti-War Movement' or the abuse of it by similar organizations; but would now like to state that I never favored Communism and do not favor it now."

He said the danger of these organizations was that they might mislead the sincere friends of human progress and real freedom.

"In my opinion," Prof. Eeinstein continued, "any power must be an enemy of mankind which enslaves the individual by terror and force whether it arises under the Fascist dr the Communist flag. All that is valuable in human society depends upon the opportunity for development accorded to the individual."

Prof. Einstein, noted Jewish mathematician and physicist, is virtually outlawed in Germany. He recently fled from Belgium to England after reports that a German Nazi organization had placed a price on his head because his name appears as one of the sponsors of a book detailing Nazi outrages against the Jews. The professor wrote nothing in this book, but, he says, he approves everything in it.

SALE OF MISSOURI AND KANSAS GAS PLANTS IS RECONFIRMED

Referee in Bankruptcy Again Approves Deal with Stern Brothers' Investment Co.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 16.—Sale of gas plants of the former General Utilities Co. in Kansas and Missouri to the Stern Brothers' Investment Co. of Kansas City for $271,055 was reconfirmed here yesterday by Fred S. Hudson, Referee in Bankruptcy.

In June, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the confirmation, holding the referee had given general creditors of the Utilities Company insufficient time for a hearing. The protesting creditors have 10 days in which to petition for a review of Hudson's action yesterday.

Places in which the gas plants are located include Plattsburg, Liberty, Smithville, Odessa, Cameron and Lathrop, Mo.

Sigmund Stern, of the investment company, said his organization had made tentative plans to recondition the properties for the supply of gas and that these plans include the construction of a pipe line to a standby service now provided by one of the large pipe line companies.

SEIZED FOR AMBUSH SLAYING OF DAUGHTER'S FATHER-IN-LAW

Webster County Farmer Accused of Killing Man Riding on Wagon.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 16.—Orville L. Young, 42 years old, farmer living near Northview in Webster County, was arrested here yesterday afternoon on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the ambush slaying Thursday of Wayman Clark, a neighbor and father-in-law of his daughter.

Clark was shot while hauling a load of tomatoes to a canning factory. Mrs. Otis Clark, the daughter-in-law, testified at the inquest at Marshfield yesterday that her father had threatened to shoot her father-in-law. Officers deny that the ill feeling was due to the young pair's marriage three months ago.

MALDEN, Mo., Sept. 16.—A. H. Milne Sr. was killed early this morning when his automobile hit a bridge on U. S. Highway No. 62 about one-half mile east of Risco in New Madrid County. Milne was thrown from the car.

SEIZED FOR AMBUSH SLAYING OF DAUGHTER'S FATHER-IN-LAW

Webster County Farmer Accused of Killing Man Riding on Wagon.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 16.—Orville L. Young, 42 years old, farmer living near Northview in Webster County, was arrested here yesterday afternoon on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the ambush slaying Thursday of Wayman Clark, a neighbor and father-in-law of his daughter.

Clark was shot while hauling a load of tomatoes to a canning factory. Mrs. Otis Clark, the daughter-in-law, testified at the inquest at Marshfield yesterday that her father had threatened to shoot her father-in-law. Officers deny that the ill feeling was due to the young pair's marriage three months ago.

MALDEN, Mo., Sept. 16.—A. H. Milne Sr. was killed early this morning when his automobile hit a bridge on U. S. Highway No. 62 about one-half mile east of Risco in New Madrid County. Milne was thrown from the car.

U. S. TRACK ATHLETES WIN 91 GOLD MEDALS ON EUROPEAN TOUR

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO.—Whatever happens to the war debts situation, there's bound to be a considerable "movement" of gold from Europe to the United States this summer with the return of the barnstorming American track and field team.

European gold in the form of 91 medals will acompany the athletes who captured that many out of a possible 101 first places in 11 engagements from Stockholm to Paris.

Ralph Metcalfe, Negro sprinter from Marquette University, accounted for 21 medals with that many 100 and 200 meter sprint victories, including four "centuries" in world record time.

Glenn Cunningham, Kansas middle-distance star, won 13 firsts; Johnny Morriss of Southwestern Louisiana, hurdler, and George Spitz of the New York A. C., high jumper, each won 11, and the others were contributed by Ivan Fuqua, Indiana quarter-miler; Henri La Borde, Stanford weight man; John Anderson, Cornell discus star, and Joe McCluskey, Fordham steeplechaser.

Col. Cloister and Toltec Pay $148 in 'Double'; 10,000 at Fairmount

By Damon Kerby

FAIRMOUNT TRACK, Sept. 16.—Toltec, an outsider, led home a field of 10 other three-year-olds and up here this afternoon in the six-furlong second race. Toltec set the pace all the way and finished with an advantage of five lengths under Jockey Charley Mills.

The Judge came up in the final strides to take the place by a nose from Captain Joy, second choice in the betting. Nyack, the favorite, was out of the money.

Toltec was clocked in 1:13, and paid $14.42 for $2.

Aulander, a five-year-old chestnut gelding, which has shown nothing in three previous starts at Fairmount, woke up to take the first race by a head from the favorite, Luck Piece. Big Storm was several lengths back for third place.

Aulander won in the final strides. He was ridden by Monte Parke, and was clocked in 1:53 1-5 for the one mile and a furlong event and paid $12.28.

Aulander opened in the betting at 12 to 1.

It was the five-year-old's first victory of his career.

Taking the lead away from Miss Chilla after turning into the home stretch, Col Cloister, Mrs. H. G. Knott's three-year-old bay gelding, accounted for the third race, at six furlongs, finishing a length in front of Miss Chilla, which was a length and a half in front of Boston Common, which took the show money. Col. Cloister was timed in 1:14 3-5 and he paid $11.40.

"Double" Pays $148.62.

The "daily double" refunded $148.62 when Toltec won the second race and Col. Cloister the third. There were 37 winning tickets, of 2941 sold in the special pool, it was announced.

Eleven three year olds and up which have not won a race since May 5 accepted the issue for the six furlong fourth race. The five-year-old Bill Lutz, with Willie Boganowski up, was the favorite at post time, but finished out of the money. Betty Shinn, an outsider, was first by a half length, Ultimate Vote, a field horse in the betting, was second, and Wattahorse, the pace-maker until the home stretch was reached, was third. Betty Shinn was timed in 1:14 1-5 and paid $21.90.

GIRLS' TEAM BECOMES FORGETFUL AND LOSES IN SOFT-BALL GAME

There can be no complaint of lack of variety at the soft-ball games being played at North Side Park. Prveiously this week, fights have been staged twice and, last night, forgetfulness cost a team a game.

The NRA girls were playing the S-K's. They were leading, 1-0, but walked off the field when only two were out and two of the S-K base-runners took advantage of their opponents' nap to score and win the game, 2 to 1.

In the men's division, Milius won from North St. Louis Trust, 16 to 6. Tonight, the Martins and Haupts play in the girls' division with the Minits and Case-Thomas-Marsh teams playing the men's game.

HUBBELL HOLDS CUBS AND GIANTS WIN AGAIN, 2-1

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—The New York Giants defeated the Cubs, 2 to 1, in the first game of today's doubleheader and increased their National League lead to 8½ games as Carl Hubbell bested Lynn Nelson in a pitching duel.

The final round match in the St. Louis district men's doubles tennis championship is scheduled to be played this afternoon at the Triple A Club, starting at 2 o'clock. Gus Boehmer won the men's singles honors by defeating Herbert Weinstock in the final round on Sept. 10. Ted Drewes, the 1932 champion, did not defend in the singles nor with Edmund Serrano in the men's doubles event.

28 Teams Are Entered.

Dave and Dick Carroway, winners of the father and son golf tournament for the past three years, will defend the honors against 27 teams in the competition to be held at the Bellerive Country Club, tomorrow.

Ruth All-Star Contest Winners To Be Announced Here Tomorrow

Winners in the Post-Dispatch Babe Ruth All-America team contest will be announced in all Sunday editions of the Post-Dispatch.

There are 69 awards in the official list of prizes, ranging from $200, first prize, to baseballs autographed by Babe Ruth. The cash prizes total more than $700.

This year's contest was a record-breaker, almost 15,000 letters being submitted by Post-Dispatch readers. The teams were judged by a board composed of J. G. Taylor Spink, publisher of the Sporting News; Charlie Barrett, Cardinal scout; Ray Cahill, Brown scout; Jimmy Conzelman, Washington U. coach; Chile Walsh, St. Louis U. coach.

SINGING WOOD WINS FUTURITY, EQUIPOISE MEETS DEFEAT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood, held at 12 to 1, today won the forty-fourth running of the $100,000 Futurity, whipping 15 other high-class two-year-olds in the turf's richest race at Belmont Park.

A. B. Gordon's Sir Thomas, a rank outsider, was a head back in second place, with C. V. Whitney's Roustabout third.

Ridden by Bobby Jones, Singing Wood came from behind to win the purse of $81,700, in a driving finish that saw Sir Thomas, a 50 to 1 shot, squeeze through on the inside and almost snatch victory in the final strides. Singing Wood stepped the six and three-quarter furlongs down the muddy Widener straightaway, soaked by rains of the last two days, in the good time of 1:21.

C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, winner of $320,470, was defeated for the first time this year as he finished third in the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont. The Wheatley Stable's Dark Secret won the two-mile event and purse of $6400, by four lengths from Morton L. Schwartz' Gusto. Equipoise was another six lengths to the rear.

Indoor Tourney Opens.

Eliminations to decide the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Playground Baseball League championship are scheduled to start at Forest Park this afternoon. The Pevelys will play the Purinas at Diamond No. 11, while the Mercantile-Commerce nine opposes the Wagners on Field No. 12.

U. S. AMATEUR GOLF CHAMPION

GEORGE DUNLAP JR.

VINES TO PLAY TWO MATCHES IN COAST TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 16.—Ellsworth Vines Jr., deposed tennis king, returns today to the courts of the Pacific Southwest tournament where he took his first step to fame, seeking to start another climb up the long ladder to the world's title.

The former national and Wimbledon champion will make two appearances today, playing with Miss Elizabeth Ryan of England in the mixed doubles championship first round and later pairing with Harold Lee of England in a doubles exhibition.

Miss Ryan and Vines will be opposed by Katherine Wood and Billy Seward, two young local players, in the mixed doubles. In the exhibition Vines and Lee clash with Jiro Satoh, Japanese star, and John Van Ryn, Philadelphia, one of the former champion's Davis cup teammates.

Yesterday's opening play of the tournament failed to impress the spectators. Frederick Perry, England Davis cup star showed none of the form which took him to the 1933 American championship.

Teamed with Van Ryn, he aided in winning a 6—0 set from Ryosuke Nunoi and Jiro Satoh, Japan, and then dropped the other set 15-17 by double faulting at set point.

Perry and Miss Dorothy Round, England, failed to impress in a 6—4, 8—6 victory over Ben Dey, South Pasadena, and Miss Marian Hunt, San Francisco.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 16.—George T. Dunlap Jr., 24, of New York, today captured the United States amateur golf championship with a spectacular exhibition of shotmaking as he decisively defeated Max R. Marston of Philadelphia, 41-year-old former titleholder, six and five in the 36-hole final match.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 16.—Smashing the Kenwood course record with a 68, three under par, George T. Dunlap, 24-year-old New Yorker, piled up an overwhelming margin of seven up over Max R. Marston, Philadelphia, veteran ex-titleholder, today in the first 18 holes of their 36-hole match for the United States amateur golf championship.

Dunlap shot one of the greatest rounds in the history of the American championship. Gray-haired veterans of golf could not recall anything like it since Bob Jones beat Chick Evans in the final round at Minikahda in 1927, when the great Georgian carded 31 out and 36 back for a 67.

Marston captured two holes, the seventh and eighth, and halved only seven others.

Dunlap had four birdies, most of them due to marvelous approaches, one on the short twelfth where his tee shot stopped 18 inches from the curb. Marston played some good golf at times but he was wild off the tees, and his accuracy with the irons fell off under pressure.

Bobby Jones Sees Match.

Dunlap's score was a stroke better than the previous competitive course record, 69, set in the qualifying round by Jim Milward of Madison, Wis., and equalled by Johnny Fischer, of Cincinnati, in establishing a new qualifying mark.

A crowd that mounted to more than 2500 spectators by the time they were coming down the stretch, gasped at Dunlap's shot making. The slim, smiling young New Yorker was on the same kind of a scoring spree he enjoyed in the Walker cup matches at Boston last year. This was his first visit to the championship round of the national title event after reaching the British amateur semi-finals earlier this year and he looked to be galloping off with the crown like a man o'war.

Jones, who followed the entire round, paid tribute to Dunlap's golf as one of the most brilliant rounds he ever saw.

"He had every shot in the bag and he looked great," said Bob.

Fort Worth Defeated.

MEXICO, D. F., Sept. 16. — A home run by Tacho Santaella in the fifth inning with two men on bases gave the local Aztecas three runs that decided their game with the Fort Worth Panthers, 7 to 6, yesterday. With this victory the Aztecas won the first round of the international series by three games to one. Warren hit a home run in the ninth inning but a last-minute rally by Fort Worth failed.

PEPPER MARTIN ONLY ST. LOUIS PLAYER TO GET "BIG TEN" RANK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The continuation of Jimmie Foxx's home-run hitting-spree furnished about the only bright spot for major league batsmen during the past week as averages plunged downward on all sides.

Foxx made only four hits in the week which ended yesterday but three of them were homers, bringing his total up to 45. His average still the best in the American League, dropped six points to .358.

Chuck Klein, National League leader in slugging and batting both, gathered in seven hits but his percentage dropped five points to .373. He failed likewise to add to his league lead in homers and doubles.

Neither leader was given much cause for worry, however, as nearly all the other "first ten" batters in both leagues lost ground. Heinie Manush of Washington maintained his .332 average to go into second place in the American League as Lou Gehrig dropped four points into a third place tie with Al Simmons at .331. Spud Davis, second Philadelphian in the National, dropped two points to .342 while Bill Terry, New York manager, moved into third place at .326.

Manush and Klein became the first major leaguers of the year to collect 200 hits.

AMERICAN ATHLETES RETURN HOME FROM FOREIGN CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Three more of America's barnstorming athletes were back home today, ready to label Glenn Cunningham of Kansas the world's greatest middle distance runner.

In all of Europe, said Joe McCluskey, former Fordham star who acted as spokesman for his teammates, Johnny Morriss of Louisiana and Ivan Fuqua of Indiana, they did not see a middle distance ace to compete with Cunningham. They saw both Jack Lovelock of New Zealand, the world's record holder, and Luigi Beccali of Italy, Olympic 1500 meter champion, but declared the Kansan would be more than a match for either of them.

McCluskey, Morriss and Fuqua arrived home on the Bremen yesterday, leaving only Henri Laborde of Stanford still abroad. Cunningham, Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette, and John Anderson and George Spitz of New York all returned some weeks ago, passing up the international university games at Turin, Italy, in which the other four all competed.

The Passing Show.

THE series starts October third,
Although no one has slipped us word
About who will be in it.
But anyway the date is set,
And we would like to make a bet
An Eastern club will win it.

The Cubs have made a Custer's stand
Against New York's invading band
Of hungry pennant chasers.
But while they fight with Grimm intent,
It seems they'll have to be content
With being second placers.

The Pirates' bolt has not been shot
Though by the experts they are not Considered in the running.
The Redbirds may not win the race,
But they can land in second place,
For which they now are gunning.

The Senators are nearly in,
And from the Yanks they ought to win
Without a lot of trouble.
While they may not be pressed to win
Their worries really won't begin
Until they face Carl Hubbell.

Another First.

"Dizzy" Dean has set another National League record. He is the first holdout of the season of 1934. "Diz" now holds the strikeout and the holdout record.

"Dizzy" who won 20 games might have asked for $20,000. But as he lost 15 he is willing to compromise on $15,000.

Ask Uncle Dudley.

The cowboy now can have his beer
While rounding up the Texas steer.

It looks as though the Senators and Giants are headed for a renewal of their world series classic. If history runs true to form and repeats itself the Senators ought to win. But it doesn't look like another of these four straight affairs.

With Crowder opposing the wonderful Hubbell
Both Giants and Nats will have plenty of trouble.

CARDINAL 'FARM' TEAMS LEAD IN "AA" PLAYOFFS

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 16.—The Columbus Redbirds are one up on Minneapolis in their playoff for the American Association pennant and the right to meet the International League champions in the little world series.

Columbus gained an edge in the series by winning the third game here last night 3 to 2 after having taken the opener Tuesday. The Millers' victory came Wednesday night.

The clubs left today for Minneapolis where, beginning tomorrow, they will play until one of them has won four games.

Ray Blades' single with the bases loaded by walks in the last half of the ninth inning gave the Redbirds the run needed to win last night's game. The Millers gained a two-run lead in the first two innings on home runs by Hauser and Norris.

From then on the Millers went scoreless, with Paul Dean pitching until the eighth when he gave way for a pinch hitter. Winford, who pitched in the ninth, was credited with the victory. George Murray went the route on the mound for Minneapolis.

Rochester Leads in Series.

By the Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 16.—With Rochester holding a two to one advantage in the series scheduled to go to the victor of three games, the Red Wings and Newark Bears are scheduled for their fourth contest here today. A Rochester victory will close the play and pave the way to a Buffalo-Rochester four of seven series for the championship. If Newark wins, the series will be concluded Sunday afternoon with a fifth contest.

Dutch Henry, southpaw, ably relieved by Ira Smith in he ninth when he grew wild, sent the Bears to defeat last night, 5 to 3, to give Rochester the "odd' game of the three played.

The Wings found Johnny Broaca for 10 base hits. He was wilder than usual, walking five while fanning eight. He stranded 14 of the Wings but was in trouble early so often that he weakened and four hits and a walk after two were out in the seventh cost him three runs and the ball game. Henry drove in two of these tallies.

The starting pitchers of the first game, only contest won by Newark, are expected back in action today. The Wings probably will send Fred "Sheriff" Blake to the hill while Manager Mamaux of Newark is expected to pit Long Jim Weaver against the boys of Manager Torporcer.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 16.—The Saints won the opening game in the Western League championship playoff series here last night, defeating Topeka, 7 to 3. Despite the fact St. Joseph made six errors and only one more hit than did Topeka, the Saints held the lead after the first inning.

HACK LOST TO CUBS FOR REST OF SEASON WITH BROKEN WRIST

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Besides having their faint championship hopes sent glimmering, the Chicago Cubs today reflected upon two casualties left in the wake of yesterday's disastrous doubleheader with the New Yokr Giants, National League leaders.

A well-directed smack by George Davis, New York center fielder, nicked Pitcher Pat Malone's chin so neatly that several stitches were necessary. Both were banished from the game for the fisticuffs.

NOTRE DAME ALL-STARS OPPOSE BEARS TODAY

CHICAGO, Sept. 16. — Notre Dame's All Stars will battle the Chicago Bears, champions of the National Professional League, at Soldier Field today in a game that is expected to show up the merits of the professionals and amateur style of football.

College rules will be in effect, Coach "Hunk" Anderson of Notre Dame winning an argument from Coach George Halas of the Bears.

The Bears expected to start the same team that will open the national professional title fight while Coach Anderson had many of his greatest stars of last year back in the fold.

CHICAGO AGAIN HAS SMALLEST BIG TEN SQUAD

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16. — Clark Shaughnessy isn't setting out to break records during his first year as football coach at the University of Chicago, but if he has any chance of winning the Big Ten title for the Maroons he doesn't intend to lose it through injuries to his squad before the season starts. For this reason his squad, 38 players, the smallest in the conference, will see very little scrimmage during the training season which opened yesterday.

"I can't afford to take chances with a squad as small as mine," said the new Midway mentor. "We'll scrimmage lightly twice a week, but that will be all."

Picks First String.

Coach Shaughnessy had a good line on his players before the training season started and after the morning workout yesterday he picked 11 men that probably will be his first team. He retired with the 11 to the big field house and behind locked doors ran the team through the many plays he had described on the field.

KANSAS U. AND IOWA STATE GET ADVANCED WORK

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 16.—Faced with the task of whipping their gridmen into shape for the opening battles of the Big Six campaign next Saturday, Kansas and Iowa State coaches sent their proteges into advanced grid tactics yesterday.

Preparing for the opening game with the Warrensburg, Mo., teachers, Coach Ad Lindsey sent his Jayhawkers through a long hard session in which regular pass formations were used. Beach, Manning, Hafford and Kell called signals and passed the pigskin for the constantly shifting backfields and lines. It was the first taste of anything but fundamentals for the Kansans.

Ends at Ames.

Confronted with an acute situation in the matter of wingmen, Coach George Veenker gave Ed Schafroth a trial at one of the end posts as he put the Cyclones through drills in kicking, passing, blocking and pass defense in preparation for the initial encounter of the season with Central College. Schafroth played most of last season in the backfield and was being used at guard when Harold Templeton, regular end, was forced to turn in his suit because of injuries.

The Kansas State Wildcats, who have three weeks of practice before meeting their first test, displayed mid-season vigor as they tackled and smashed the line. Outstanding backfield performers were Graham, Bushby and Stoner, on one squad, and Armstrong, Abbott and Weller, on another.

The punishment meted out to a tardy Missouri backfield candidate, recently, met with such success that Coach Frank Carideo ordered a foot race for the Tigers when he became displeased with their apparent apathy. The losers had to take five extra laps around the track. A scrimmage session between the varsity and freshmen squads was tentatively arranged for today.

Duquesne Wins Opening College Game of Season

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 16.—Firing the opening gun of the collegiate gridiron season, Duquesne, displaying a reliable air game, last night defeated Waynesburg, 18 to 6, beneath the flood lights of Forbes Field.

The invaders, champions of the Tri-State Conference last year, were caught flat-footed at the outset by a 34-yard pass, Deluca to Captain Krankota, who stepped across the line for the Night Riders' first score.

The Yellow Jackets promptly lashed back with a 33-yard toss from Ross to McCracken, who raced for a touchdown. Both goal kicks were blocked.

Deluca hurled a pass 43 yards to Strutt in the second period and then carried the ball through tackle for a tally on the first play from scrimmage.

After a third quarter devoted to punting by both teams, Fillingham scored the Dukes' final counter in the fourth period. He cashed in on a touchdown-parade which Duquesne launched in mid field.

Clever Quarterbacks Will Direct 1933 Field-Play of Both Bears and Billikens

By James M. Gould.

While the duties of every individual player on a football team are of the utmost importance to proper team-play, there is little question that the one player carrying the biggest burden is the quarterback. He is the general of the field forces; he must direct the play; he must detect weaknesses in the opposition defense and turn loose his attack at that weakness. This being so, there is especial interest in the selections of Coaches Conzelman and Walsh of men to call the plays for the Bears and the Billikens this season.

According to the two coaches, their system of play calls for the quarterback to be in entire charge once the team takes the field. Naturally, they will have given him general instructions but, once the game begins, they will be "on their own."

The Best Type.

What type of players makes the best quarterback? Well, in a general way, the good quarter must have an unexcitable temperament, must have poise. Indeed, if, in the vernacular, he's a bit "cocky," so much the better. He must give his signals "cockily"—as though he knew what it was all about. He's in command and he must speak commandingly and impress those whose play he is directing with the idea that he's "the doctor" and he knows what he is prescribing in the way of plays. He may be short or tall, light or heavy. There's a wide range in the size of quarterbacks. But, whether big or little, he's got to have football "sense," ability to diagnose faults in the opposition and, above all, the confidence of the other members of his team.

Out at Washington, there are, at present, three standouts among the candidates for this position—Zboyowski, Hardin and Bob Smith. None are very heavy, Hardin being the heaviest at 172. "Zibby," weighs 155 and Smith, a former star at East St. Louis High, weighs but 150. In the first game of the season, it is likely that "Zibby," who hails from Benld, Ill., will do most of the passing though Hardin is sure to get a full share in the later games. Smith is pretty light but has shown real ability at the job and also seems sure to see plenty of action. None of the three are greatly experienced but all have indicated possession of the necessary poise and the intuition which makes the great quarter.

Coach Walsh at St. Louis has five quarterback candidates. Three of them, Bassett, Feldman and Thompson, have had varsity experience while Ederle and Brumby have yet to undergo varisty fire.

Bassett Is No. 1.

Probably, the leading Billiken candidate is Joe Bassett. He is the heaviest of the group, weighing 185. Feldman weighs 160, Thompson, 150; Ederle, 170, and Brumby, once quarter at McBride High, 165. Bassett has done some passing as have Feldman and Thompson, but it is generally understood that Coach Walsh doesn't intend using any of them as a regular heaver of forwards this season. The duty is to be assumed by others. Bassett, the most experienced of the lot, is an excellent blocker and probably has first call as things stand now.

All things considered, it seems safe to say that both Bears and Billikens will be cleverly directed in action in 1933 games.

Football Notes.

With the first week of official practice completed, the Billikens will have a single session including scrimmage this afternoon. Beginning Monday, because of the opening of school, only single practice sessions will be held by the Billikens. Washington, having scrimmaged long yesterday afternoon, will not work at all today or tomorrow, but will resume the two-a-day plan Monday. Tomorrow also is an off-day at St. Louis U.

If present plans are carried out, St. Louis will start the season with two ends each of whom will weigh over 190. They are Jim Rollens and John Conlon and both, incidentally, are converted tackles. There is so much tackle material that Conlon is figured to be of more value as an end.

Ambitious Freshmen.

There are a half-dozen freshmen already working out at Washington though no call for first-year candidates has actually been issued. The coaches report the new material very promising.

Thus far, both universities have been fortunate in the absence of early injuries. Jimmy Conzelman is especially encouraged over the way that trick-knee of Tutinsky's is behaving. The former Roosevelt High star hurst his knee in spring practice, but he has been scrimmaging along with the others without ill effects.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 16.—Ike Johnson, 19 years old, under 10-year sentence from Ozark Country for robbery of the Bakersfield Bank, Jan. 25, 1931, was among 15 inmates of the penitentiary granted paroles yesterday by Gov. Park Johnson, who was 17 years old when he robbed the bank, was received at the prison Feb. 9, 1931. He obtained $2.50 in the holdup, offered him by the president of the bank when the youth ordered him to hold up his hands.

Paul Boone Prosecuting Attorney, in a statement accompanying Johnson's parole file, said "it is the opinion of the boy's father that the reading of detective and Western stories caused him to get bank robbery on his mind."

HAS REALTY MAN ARRESTED FOR MOVING OUT FURNITURE

A technical charge of burglary was broughth against Harry A. Cotton, real estate dealer, 7956 Page avenue, Vinita Park, in a warrant issued by Justice of Peace Graham at Clayton yesterday, on complaint of Melvin Young, tenant in a house owned by Cotton at 8320 Garfield avenue, Vinita Park.

Young told prosecuting officials he and his wife, who have been residing temporarily with relatives in St. Louis, returned to the house this morning and found Cotton with a truck there, removing furnishings that belonged to them. Young said he had once bought the house from Cotton but was unable to keep up payments and after giving a quitclaim deed, became a renter. He said he had fallen behind in rent payments.

Cotton surrendered at the Sheriff's office and gave $5000 bond, returned Sept. 20.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 16.—Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was described yesterday as "the chief high priest of the money changers" by Stanley Boykin, chief counsel for plaintiffs in a receivership suit filed here early this year against the Fort Worth Properties Corporation, of which Jones is principal stockholder.

The statement was made in Federal District Court during a hearing on a petition for permission to propound additional interrogations of discovery to find Fred J. Heyne of Houston, one of the defendants.

Boykin declared he had enough evidence to justify the removal of Jones from the chairmanship of the R. F. C. He said the evidence would show examples of "both criminal and corporate misappropriations."

Jones' attorneys have filed a motion to quash the subpena served on him recently in Washington on the ground that he no longer is a resident of Texas.

HEAD OF PHILLIPS COMPANY PRAISES OIL INDUSTRY CODE

Declares Prices Will Be Regulated and Destructive Practices Stopped.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Frank Phillips, president of the Phillips Petroleum Co., praised the oil code yesterday, saying that it inaugurated a new era in which prices will be regulated and destructive practices stopped.

"This means much more than healthy conditions in the oil business," he asserted. "It means that the NRA program is going to succeed and that we are going to be able to contribute largely toward that end."

Crediting the administration with defeating those who opposed price regulation, Phillips said "the destructive factors that have dominated the industry in the past three or four years have been repulsed by the constructive elements."

Phillips said he thought it would be no hardship for the consumer to pay 20 cents a gallon for gasoline, the average price for the last 20 years, exclusive of tax, but added: "I am sure it will not be necessary to raise the price, exclusive of tax, to that level."

CONFESSES HE HIRED MAN TO KILL HIS WIFE

Ypsilanti Resident Tells of Fake Holdup—Woman in Serious Condition.

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 16.—Prosecutor Albert J. Rapp announced last night that Fred Roe, 57-year-old former restaurant keeper of Ypsilanti, had confessed hiring a former employe to kill his wife, Mary, 54, who was found with a fractured skull beside a highway near Ypsilanti Wednesday night.

The prosecutor quoted Rapp as saying that he and Norvill Ollett, 24, plotted a fake holdup, that Ollett forced Mrs. Roe to get out of her husband's automobile and then struck her on the head with an iron bar.

Confronted with Roe's confession, Ollett also confessed, the prosecutor said, and declared that Roe had been trying for a month to induce him to carry out the plot.

Mrs. Roe is in a serious condition in Beyer Hospital, Ypsilanti.

Roe was quoted as saying that he wished to be rid of his wife so he could go to California. His restaurant was closed recently by creditors.

Prosecutor Rapp said Roe told him Ollett was to receive $40 in cash, $160 from a small insurance policy on Mrs. Roe's life and two-thirds of the sale price of the Roe home, estimated to be worth $1200. Ollett said the cash payment was to have been $150 and he had not received the money.

SUICIDE VERDICT IN DEATH OF WOMAN STENOGRAPHER

Ruth B. Petticrew Took 36 Sleeping Tablets, She Told Doctor at Hospital.

A Coroner's verdict of suicide was returned today in the case of Miss Ruth B. Petticrew, 30 years old, a stenographer for the Brown Shoe Co., who died yesterday at Desloge Hospital from the effects of an overdose of sleeping tablets. Dr. George Stevens of the hospital staff testified Miss Petticrew told him she took 36 of the tablets, although two is an ordinary dose. The kind she used tended to depress the heart.

Miss Petticrew was found unconscious last Monday morning in her room at the Catholic Women's Association Hotel, 4337 Maryland avenue. A friend, Miss Dayde Hufnagel, 4300 Lindell boulevard, testified Miss Petticrew had been suffering from sinus trouble, but never had talked of killing herself. An autopsy failed to show a trace of the poison, but Dr. Stevens said it probably had been absorbed.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at Champaign, Ill., home of Miss Petticrew's mother, Mrs. G. W. Petticrew. Two sisters and three brothers also survive.

TWO RELIEF ORDINANCES APPROVED BY ALDERMEN

Two ordinances for relief purposes—one providing an appropriation of $605,833 from bond issue funds as the city's share for relief purposes until the end of the year, and the other creating a $250,000 revolving fund for relief—were passed unanimously by the Board of Aldermen yesterday.

A third ordinance providing $200,000 for work relief was laid over until after a meeting next Tuesday of the Ways and Means Committee to permit Aldermen to discuss operation of the measure.

The $605,833 represents the city's third of the general relief fund, with other shares to be furnished by the State and the Federal Government. The Citizens' Committee, up to this month, has contributed the third which is now assigned to the State. Officers of the Citizens' Committee recommended passage of the revolving fund measure to meet emergencies. The fund is to be reimbursed from contributions by the State and Federal Government. The State has not made any provision for its share.

$10,000,000 Target.
Berlin Getting Ready.
Just What Is One Dollar?
Banks Spread Afar.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1933.)

THE old battleship "New Mexico" having been "rebuilt and improved" at a cost of $10,000,000 is sent on what the Navy calls "a shakedown cruise." The taxpayers of this country were also sent on a "shakedown cruise," when those ten millions were thrown away on a floating target for air bombs in case war should come.

Consider your intelligent country that scraps new and half-finished battleships of modern design to oblige some smooth-tongued foreigner at a naval conference, and then squanders ten million dollars on an obsolete type of ship.

That is not the worst of it. Sixty million more dollars will be spent rebuilding other antiquated targets.

Every apartment house in Germany is to be equipped with a gas-proof and bomb-proof cellar and every adult German trained in self-protection against air attacks. The French, who keep both eyes on Germany while increasing their fighting air fleet, will think that Germany must be planning something.

France worries about the gold basis. She still has 82,000,000,000 francs worth of gold in her vaults. She fears it may be impossible for her to remain a "gold nation" with the Yankee dollar and British pound slipping downward.

This country also worries a little about gold, wondering why the dollar was kicked off the gold basis and reduced to 60 odd cents, and dollars less plentiful than they were before gold was abandoned.

It is a solemn truth that "nobody understands money."

Washington reports an early "definite announcement of the immediate monetary policy of the United States." Also that the Government will define the status of the dollar. Those that have a dollar will be much obliged. You cannot tell how hot or cold it is when the bottom drops out of a thermometer, and you can't know what you've got in the way of money or goods if you don't know what your dollar is worth.

Banking and financing are back on the world-wide basis of ancient days, when the Medici sent ships to the edge of the Bosphorus and had men in far Asia and all over Europe. It is interesting to see in the new board of directors of New York's National City Bank, second biggest bank in the world, names of men that live 3000 miles from New York. For instance, John Francis Neylan, a powerful young lawyer of San Francisco, and his fellow-townsman, A. P. Giannini. The National City, like Mr. Aldrich's Chase Bank, and other great banks, now spreads over the world, with branches in Japan, China, India.

Upton Sinclair, who once wrote about the slaughter houses in Chicago and attracted attention, will stop being a Socialist, become a Democrat and run for Governor of California.

This is part of his platform: When a rich man dies Sinclair would confiscate everything above $50,000 and he would take one-half of all incomes above $50,000.

Cynics believe that Mr. Sinclair must have $50,000, but they are mistaken. He is sincere in his belief that you can make the world better by discouraging men of exceptional ability.

If he lived in Africa he would say to the African chief "you can't have more than one fat wife no matter HOW many lions you kill." It is wise to give a chief that kills lions as many fat wives as he wants, and to let an able, constructive American have a few extra millions. He can't take them with him.

The Rev. Henry S. Huntington of Scarsdale, N. Y., reports that he visited, near Chicago, "a nudist colony," where he "hung his clothes on a hickory limb and enjoyed a most exhilarating game of volley ball." The group accompanying him to the nudist colony consisted of "a consulting scientist, a young engineer and his wife, a young business woman, a Chicago clergyman."

You would have said ten years ago that human beings were as foolish as they ever could be, but you would have been mistaken.

Science finds "a simple test for alcoholic intoxication," according to the American Chemical Society. Just a finger prick, enough to get two drops of blood, and science will tell how much alcohol the blood contains.

This, with the eighteenth amendment gone, will cause nervous husbands to examine their fingertips in the morning.

Further Rebids Over Jump Responses

SLAM tries can be developed with wonderful precision on the rare occasions that permit your partner to respond to your opening bid of one in a suit with the urgent slam-try of Three No Trumps as a First Response.

HAL SIMS

Partner is really asking you to do little more than confirm your original bid when he makes this particular double-jump response. He is really asking you to contribute distribution—he does not expect reserve primary values in your hand. Remember that his response positively announces one of the top three honors of your suit—lacking this, he must bid only two no trumps at first, and jump later if it seems advisable or necessary. From the fact that the responder could not jump in your suit or in another suit, his hand is marked as being of the short-suited type. The fact that he has no long suit to work with implies some playing limitations; the fact that he announces tremendous high-card strength in all unbid suits, and also a fit in your suit, means that there can be no duplication of values and no shortage of mutual re-entries in this combination of 26 cards. Do your rebidding in terms either of high cards or of suit-length. Forget about duplication when you hear this inspiring response, and ask yourself only this question: "Can I eliminate losers from my partner's hand? If so, how?"

Use Inference and Visualize Your Partner's High Cards

Holding

Sp. A Q x x   Di. A 10 x x
Hts. K 10 x x   Cl. x

you bid a spade: a minimum hand but a good bid because of the fine heart support. If your partner's response is three no trumps, you have no rebid and must pass. Had he bid three hearts or diamonds, you could respond very constructively and optimistically, as you have a splendid suit-fit and you eliminate club losers. As it is, your singleton will not help in view of the nature of your partner's slam-try—three no trumps. If you held four primary tricks, or if your two tens were jacks and you had A Q 10 x in spades, you should bid four no trumps. You must not bid four in a four-card suit, as your partner will then count you for a five-card suit (or two five-card suits if you bid a different suit secondarily) and be completely misled as to the number of losers which you will enable him to discard from his own hand. Therefore, when you have no five-card suit, and hold less than four primary tricks, you can accept the slam-try only if you have some additional jacks which will have the effect of definitely setting up a thirteener in at least one and probably two short suits. On this bidding, you can with the above hand be sure that your partner holds king-queen of diamonds and ace-queen of hearts. Jacks here will thus eliminate possible losers. One or other opponent is likely to hold four cards of each suit on this deal. Assume it anyway.

When You Have a Five-Card Suit

bid four in it over your partner's three no-trump response. You know he has a high honor in it, and by telling him that your suit is of five cards, you tell him right away where he can park losers. Do this even if your hand was shaded to two and a half primary tricks because of aggressive major suit distribution: for example, with

Sp. A J 10 x   Di. Q x
Hts. A Q 10 x x   Cl. x x

rebid in the form of four hearts. If he bids four no trumps, now bid five spades. This is a constructive rebid justifiable only in view of the terrific strength promised by your partner's first response. He is possibly hanging back only because he is doubtful of the spade situation. He may have K Q 9 x. Your late spade bid will eliminate definite losers for him and probably enable him to know that he can run off nine tricks in the major suits. Now he can count his losers exactly, and immediately bid the full value of your combined hands.

The Slam May After All Be Bid in a Suit

He might have reason now to bid the slam in your suit instead of in no trumps—six or seven hearts or spades. Spades would be ideal, as it is unlikely on this hand that they are held 5-0 against you, and you can now use your heart suit—probably 5-3 in the two hands—for discards, and make one spade (if not two) separately by a ruff, and still draw all the trumps.

Confidential Talks With Mothers and Fathers.

By Mrs. Brooke P. Church

Expecting Too Much

I THINK that we tend to require too much adult responsibility from our children.

It may be that we think it good for them to learn early how to take care of themselves, or, as is often the case, that mothers and teachers take that means of ridding themselves of some of their burden.

Childhood, even among the animals, has a certain period of free play and spontaneous action before it assumes the duties of life.

Whereas we tend to prolong the latter end of infancy too far, it seems to me that we demand too much of the earlier years. To ask a small boy to fill the wood box as his daily chore is one thing, but to put him on his honor to fill it as full as possible and to make him feel that he has betrayed a trust when he deliberately leaves gaps in the under layers, seems to me unfair.

Physical responsibility can hurt no child unless the task is too great for his strength, but moral responsibility may tend to make him overserious or even morbidly conscientious.

The small boy who used to play hookey in the spring to go to the swimming hole was a far more normal human being than the sedate little creature of today who knows all the dangers of cramps and colds and the evils of not being promoted on account of absence from school.

Fortunately, human nature being what it is, there is still left a host of happy, care-free little mortals who keep the truant officer busy, but we are doing our best to eliminate them.

Much of the careless laughter will be gone from life with the disappearance of the happy-go-lucky freedom of youth, and this laughter nothing can replace.

A Tiresome Story

"WHEN I was a boy I had to carry water and chop wood before I went to school every morning. I didn't have time to loaf the way you do."

"I never had any spending money given to me when I was your age. I had to earn it as a grocer's boy." And so on ad infinitum.

This trick of comparing the life of a hard working or straitened youth with the easier existence of the next generation is one to which, for some reason, fathers are more prone than mothers.

"It may be that hidden deep down in such a man is a certain jealousy of his sons' opportunities as compared with his own, or he may be feeling an unconscious resentment at having to keep his nose to the grindstone to supply money and luxuries which his son takes for granted. A mother who has been the breadwinner may talk the same way.

And yet the very fathers who draw these comparisons between past and present are often the most devoted. In all probability they are straining every nerve and muscle to give their sons a better chance in life than they had themselves. The tragedy of it is that their unfortunate manner of speech builds a barrier between them and the sons they love.

The child naturally resents the suggestion that his father gives grudgingly, and little by little develops the determination to be independent of a support unwillingly given, and take care of himself.

Or he may grow callous and indifferent and go out for what he can get. The results are the same —a complete misunderstanding and possibly a breach between father and son.

The Girl's Hobby

FOR some obscure reason hobbies are far more usual among men than among women. Whether this has anything to do with the fact that women seem more liable to nervous smashes than men seems worth considering.

Practically every nervous collapse in middle-life can be traced back to some cause built up in childhood. It seems, therefore, eminently reasonable to start preventing them at the time the foundations of life are being laid.

The woman who has a deep and abiding interest in life is not apt to find herself, after her children have gone out into the world, full of resentment and self-pity at the prospect of a succession of empty years ahead, and to take it out in hysteria or melancholia.

An interest in life is a heritage from childhood, and if we really love our daughters we will see to it that life in itself—not life spelled only in terms of husband and children—holds possibilities of happiness.

To find a hobby for a girl is not easy, for it is going contrary to the traditions of all time, and the girl herself, with only the vaguest conception of the future, and what it may hold is very apt to be indifferent or actually hostile to the development of any special interest.

When she reaches adolescence, sometimes even before, clothes, parties and beaux fill her life to overflowing, and it is therefore necessary to sow the seeds of her later development before these distractions play a large part in her life.

What particular hobby she may choose need not be determined, but the habit of concentration on something outside the general run of daily events must be cultivated thus early and insisted upon so firmly that when the intoxication of adolescence is past she may find it ingrained in her consciousness.

EVERYDAY RELIGION

Putting Ourselves Over

By THE REV. JOSEPH FORT NEWTON

My friend is a salesman, by nature and by grace. He knows the knack of it and it is a joy to see him use it. He knows when to put on pressure, and when to ease up; when to sell, and when not to do so. He has a kind of sixth sense, and he is a aware of it.

"How do you do it?" I asked him.

"It's all a matter of using your imagination," he said, "of practicing the Golden Rule—to put it in a nutshell. Maybe you had not thought of it that way."

"The Golden Rule?" I asked. "What has that got to do with it? Do you mean to say that the man who comes to sell me something I do not want, is doing to me as he would have me do to him?"

"Certainly," he said, "if he believes in his wares—as he must if he is to sell them. The Golden Rule runs through everything. We must not imagine that a thing is true in religion and not true anywhere else. That is just the trouble with us, as I see it."

"In other words," I said, "a man must sell himself first, then his goods. If he puts himself over he makes a path by which to get his wares across. Is that what you mean? Otherwise he fails?"

"Yes, but more than that," he said. "He must 'other' himself, so to put it. He must picture to himself the mind and feelings of his customer; if he does it he interests him, holds him, 'gets him,' as we say. If not, he might as well pack his kit and go elsewhere.

"All men are salesmen," he went on. "It is your business to sell religion. If you do not make contact with people where they are, and as they are, you cannot touch them, much less move them."

"It is the only way to sell goods," he added; "the only way to get elected to office, to win the love of a woman, to live with our neighbors, to manage workers, or to keep peace in the family."

Ten articles, specially selected by Doctor Newton as being the most outstanding so far published in this series, have been reprinted in an attractive booklet.

This booklet will be sent without cost to interested readers. Requests should be addressed to Dr. Joseph Fort Newton, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

In-Law Adjustments

ONE is rather apt to overlook the fact that when John Jones marries Mary Smith, a number of Smiths and Joneses are suddenly forced into the closeness of family relationships. Even on the rare occasion when a bride or bridegroom has no family, he or she becomes son or daughter, sister or brother, to those who more often than not have hitherto been total strangers. A happy few of these new in-laws are able to make complete adjustments; others again (the majority, I believe) would fit smoothly into the machinery of accord if only a single rasping sprocket might be filed smooth.

EMILY POST

An illustration of what I mean by one rasping sprocket is shown in the point of view of a mother-in-law who writes: "I sometimes visit my son and daughter-in-law and have never yet come home without bringing hurt feelings, which I want to overcome if they are not justified. During my week's visit my daughter-in-law goes out to parties in the afternoon and sometimes for a drive in a car, which doesn't seem to be overcrowded, but she never suggests that I be included, nor does she offer any apologies for leaving me—she just goes. Otherwise she is a very sweet person and I would like to find reasons for her acting so discourteously if I can, because after every visit I am less fond of her."

In reply then, I would like to say to you whose letter I have quoted, that if you are on formal terms with your daughter-in-law and very rarely stay with her and your son, she would properly show you the consideration exacted by a visitor whom she does not know very well. On the other hand, if you want her to love you and to really like having you stay with them, then don't allow yourself the dangerous luxury of hurt feelings, and don't exchange the reality of spontaneous impulse for the enforced observance of a duty. This perhaps sounds unfair to you, but let me ask you a question: Can you remember your own behavior when you were young—above all, your attitude toward your mother-in-law—or even toward your own mother? Can you accurately remember how much you urged her to go out with you among your own friends—sharing your good times? Search back in your memory, please. You may have loved your mother better than anything on earth, but did your friends want to have her with them, too, on every occasion? If you can truthfully say "yes" to this, then either your memory has become imaginary or your mother's personality was that of one in a million. And at this moment we are speaking of mothers—not of mothers-in-law.

So, returning to yourself as a mother-in-law, let me ask another question: Would you rather have your daughter-in-law do what she wants to do, to have her lead her own life, to let her feel herself utterly unhampered, or would you prefer to have her every impulse checked by the thought "mother will be hurt," "mother will feel lonely," "no, I can't do this or go there because mother is my guest?" To me there seems no possible question about the answer.

Of course, there ARE considerations that she should show if she in turn is to be the perfect daughter-in-law; time here and there in which her attention is wholly given you. You say that apart from going out and leaving you, she is a very sweet person. Doesn't that mean that she is considerate and responsive when you see her? If I were to draw a picture of a perfect in-law relationship, I would say first of all that it must be unhampering and uninterfering, and uncriticising. In the reverse picture where the daughter-in-law goes to stay—or to live—with her parents-in-law, she must do her best to conform to their habits. But she should at the same time be free to make her own engagements and to do what she likes—so long as she does not disrupt the ways of the house.

It is true that how we do or say something is aways more important than the what. If such a daughter-in-law as yours were a person of charm, she probably would say: "I'm going out again this afternoon, but we'll all be together this evening." That is, an emphasis on the time she will spend with you would compensate for the time she is out. But it is not for one to teach another the graces of life, except by example.. The safe rule for our own happiness is to take things as we find them, take pleasure in the assets, don't go searching for flaws and DON'T EVER for a single second permit ourselves the weakness of feeling sorry for ourselves.

If we of yesterday (or the day before that) would have the affection of those of today given to us freely, we must ourselves be free in the sense of being impersonally independent. We all know that nothing is harder to build than this impersonality of mind, and one moment's relaxed indulgence in self-pity will bring it all crashing down. The first step in the achievement of impersonality is in keeping our thoughts away from every trend that is essential by thinking of something else, never mind what else.

The one lesson that each and everyone of us who belong alone—by that is meant all those who are widowed or single, and whose children or sisters and brothers have married—is that we may never give clinging impulses a chance to develop. These few paragraphs are not intended as a dissertation on nobility of character; they are nothing but a few commonplace rules for self-preservation. We hear so much about dieting and taking daily dozens and doing all sorts of other irksome things to preserve physical beauty, and relatively little about the unrelaxing exercise of plain common sense in achieving mental beauty by adjusting the capital I to its relative position in the world at large.

Walter Winchell On Broadway

The Retort Terrible.

GEORGE GERSHWIN and Arturo Toscanini were guests at the same swanky party a few years ago, and this quip was born there. The well-meaning hostess induced Gershwin to play his "Rhapsody in Blue" on the piano for the delectation of Toscanini.

During Gershwin's rendition, she ankled over to Arturo and gurgled: "Oh, maestro, I know you love good music."

"Yes," was the icy answer, "but don't stop him."

Such Talk.

Then there's Mickey Alpert's quip about the little boy, who met Roxy for the first time.

Silly, But I Like It.

A frivolous someone around the West Side Riding Academy (a Hollywood asylum) misled a newcomer into believing that Groucho Marx was a doctor.

The fellow hastened over to the comedian and pleaded: "What can I do? I snore so loud I wake myself up?"

"My advice," counseled Groucho with a dead pan, "is to sleep in another room."

In Fewer Words.

The Cuban sitch-ee-ay-shun at a glance: Irving Hoffman says the Man of the Hour in Cuba rarely lasts that long.

Herb Cruikshank says Cuba is a lovely place, except that every now and then peace breaks out.

How Legends Start.

According to one of the movie magazines, Joan Crawford is supposed to have asserted: "I understand Winchell pays telephone operators for the tips on news items."

What Miss Crawford probably said to her interviewer was: "Oh, I don't know what to say — why don't you write something, like a dear. That's a good boy." And now Miss Crawford probably wishes she could write.

Shawt Story.

Jules Levine likes this George Bernard Shaw gag best. Visiting the House of Lords last June, Shaw left his umbrella in a rack. When he returned for it, it was gone. Summoning a guard, Shaw vigorously insisted that someone had hefted it.

"I'm astonished," said the guard. "We have only noblemen and servants here. The servants don't leave the house, they have no need for your umbrella."

"I know," screamed Shaw, "that the servants didn't take it."

Where Men Are Menaces.

Bailey's break from the Dallas hoosegow, an "escape-proof" jail, brings this story from Pierre de Rohan, himself a native of Pecos County, Texas. He avers that such incidents are not unusual there, and that "heroism" is nothing more than the highest pitch of obstinacy. The Southwest, he adds, teaches men two things—self-reliance and doing business by mail.

Thus when, a few years ago, a neighbor saw a band of outlaws from across the border approaching his ranch house, he sent his only servant, a Chinese house-boy, to town with a letter. Not to the Sheriff, but to a Chicago mail-order house. It read: "Being attacked by 86 bandits, please rush one large rifle and 86 rounds of ammunition."

Heheheh.

One of the silver screen mags in its current number borrowed one of our Mae West quips—and we lifted this, in reprisal! It reveals again that Mae kids herself best.

The other day when a dignified statesman complimented her on her rise to cinema success, she gave him that droopy-eyed look, and replied: "Yeah, I've climbed the ladder of success—wrong by wrong."

Prosperity Note.

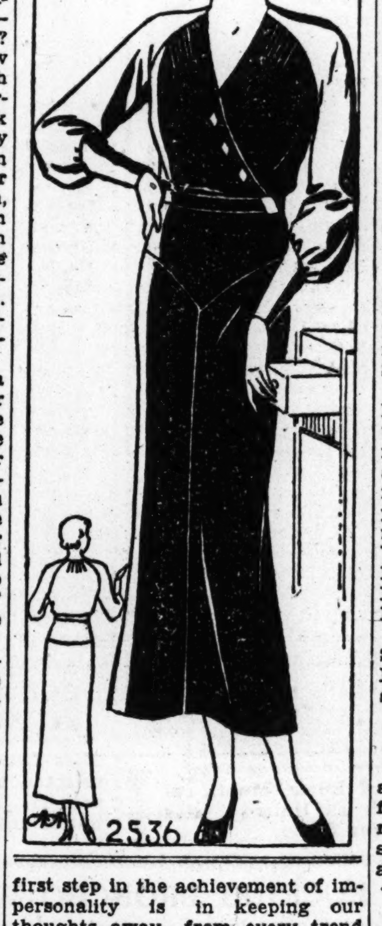

Sid Parry wishes he had a Blue Eagle—so he could eat it!

Form of Criticism.

Added to our long list of Cruel Cracks from Caustic Critics is this one submitted by B. Rothman.

George Jean Nathan, witnessing Sydney Blackmer in "The Love Child," wrote: "For years Mr. Blackmer has been accused of being a good actor. Last night he was tried—and acquitted."

Remorse Can Become A Racket

REMORSE—we think of that as one of the virtues. Blaming ourselves—how fine that is; how honest and brave! But is it?

Is remorse really the courageous act we've been led to believe?

ELSIE ROBINSON

Should we admire people who go around telling what tramps they have been? Should we admire ourselves when we find ourselves wallowing in regret?

No it isn't; and we shouldn't.

A certain amount of remorse—a decent interval of regret and confession — that's necessary and healthy. But after that, look out!

FOR REMORSE CAN, AND OFTEN DOES, SPEEDILY BECOME A RACKET!

Why do we "take the blame"—and keep on taking it?

Sometimes because we are honestly sorry, and want to mend our ways. But often, there's quite a different motive.

BEING HUMAN, WE LIKE TO SHOW OFF.

Regretting our sins can be, and often is, as conceited an act as boasting about 'em.

We can't force people to listen to us endlessly while we praise ourselves. But every decent citizen feels a moral obligation to lend a sympathetic ear, and hand, to the fellow who's confessing his sin. Also, such listening tickles human vanity—makes the decent citizen feel that he's a Mr. Perfect. So, on two counts, we're always sure of an audience if we start Getting Sorry.

Yes, chronic regret is certainly a swell way of gratifying our yen for publicity. And it serves an even more useful end—

IT'S A PERFECT ALIBI FOR POSTPONING REAL REFORM.

The immediate and necessary step after being sorry is, of course, getting busy and making good. But making good is always an uncomfortable and inconvenient process. It implies retiring from the spotlight and taking your rap; which means plenty of humiliation and hard work. Naturally, no lazy, cowardly, conceited human being is keen on beginning a program like that! And so, though he may be sincerely sorry for a bad record, we like to find some scheme whereby we can postpone starting a new one, and yet save our faces.

WALLOWING IN REGRET SERVES THAT PURPOSE PERFECTLY.

You can postpone reform indefinitely by just talking about it. At the same time you can gratify your hunger for publicity, alibi your laziness, and get a vicarious kick out of remembering your past deviltries.

Could anything be sweeter? Nothing could!

Nor could any habit be more demoralizing. More good human time and energy are wasted—more cussedness is committed—under the "sacred" pretense of remorse and grief, than in all the crime on the police blotter.

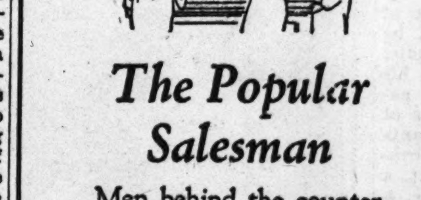

It's as vicious to spend your time regretting your sins as it was to commit them originally. In either case you waste, spoil and sidestep life, and devote all your attention to your own selfish self.

If you're really sorry and ashamed for something that you've done, don't talk about it; don't grieve over it. GET BUSY!

Get busy and do something useful and constructive—something of which you can be proud.

ACTION IS THE ONLY REAL REPENTANCE.

IF YOU ASK MY OPIN[ION]

by MARTHA C[ARR]

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM planning to give a party and I would appreciate a few suggestions. I want to get a small "baffle-ball" game and give a prize to the one with the highest score. I am going to have "ping-pong" also. Can you send me any more suggestions? As to serving, I was going to have popcorn balls instead of candy. I think that would be different from some of the other parties. What else could I serve that would go well with it? Do you think ice cream and cake would be all right? What would be the proper hour to have the party start? I am 16 years old.

I would like you to answer another question or two. When a boy is walking with two girls, should he walk between them or on the outside? Is it proper for the girl to speak to the boy first, when she meets him, or vice versa?

If you have time, you might write me for some games and stunts, sending a self-addressed and stamped envelope.

The popcorn balls are very pretty and very appropriate to serve, and, as you say, more original than candy. But you could use something a little more substantial first, don't you think? Even if it is just an appetizer, or if it is just crackers, spread with cottage cheese and sprinkled with chopped chives. Stuffed eggs, sliced, and spread on salted crackers are good, too. You must have the eggs cooked hard, of course, remove the yolks, mash with fork and seasoned with a little chopped onion, green pepper, olives mixed with mayonnaise. Put this mixture back into the whites, then slice in rather thin slices and place on the crackers. You can, of course, use bread, instead of crackers if you wish.

Generally a party of that kind starts about 8:30. But you could make it a half hour earlier or later if you like. The refreshments would be served about 10:30, or later.

A boy walks on the outside when accompanying two girls on the street.

If you mean, who should speak first when meeting—it is the girl's place to take the initiative. If you mean just after being introduced, it really doesn't matter who starts the conversation.

Dear M[rs.] Carr:

WILL you please answer the following questions: (1) How can I whiten my arms, as they have become sunburned? (2) How can I get rid of hair growing on my face? (3) I am 18 years old, five feet two inches tall; how much should I weigh? JUST DUMB.

Bathe your arms at night with sour milk and allow it to remain on all night. Another simple bleach is tincture of benzoin—a few drops in rosewater. And also a few drops in the basin of water in which you bathe your arms. The electric needle removes hair from the face permanently.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WHEN I was a child I took dancing lessons, but now I have forgotten practically all the steps I knew. I am interested in it again, but I would rather study it alone, for I have no funds to pay for lessons. Do you know of any books which give the names and descriptions of the steps in classical dancing? I have looked in the libraries here, but have found nothing of any help except lessons on exercises. Thank you for your trouble. FOREIGNER.

If you or any of your friends happen to have a victrola, you may, by advertising or inquiring, perhaps, get some old victrola records which teach classical and other dancing. And, when you were in the libraries, did you think to ask if any dancing classes met there? You might be able to join these and get some member or members to help you out.

There are some girls' clubs, notably the "Girls' Club," which meets in the [Bishop] Tuttle Memorial Hall, 1210 Locu[st], where there are dancing classes. The membership fee in the club is very small, and through this means you might find some young girl who would be willing to give you dancing lessons alone, for a very little.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I WANT you to inform me, how can I get correspondence with several American boys living there? May I describe my type? Here it is: Color hair—Blond; color skin—white; color eyes—brown; weight—135 pounds; height—5 feet 3; age—18 years.

I graduated about one year ago from "Business Administration Course" here in San Juan, Puerto Rico, but now am a stenographer. Several of my friends have correspondence with American boys, and I ask them, "How can you get this correspondence?" And they answer me, "By means of Mrs. Carr." So I want you, if you wish, to make me this favor; because I want to learn English, and if they wish I will teach them Spanish by means of correspondence. Waiting for an early reply, very truly yours, FLORA C.

I think it is very nice for those living in countries of different languages to have some correspondence, for the purpose of learning the language. And sometimes this is done through the public schools and colleges. But I have referred requests of this kind to the local International Institute, at 3833 Delmar avenue, for the reason that the persons interested then might, through local residents and local consuls, investigate or identify these people. And I feel also that it would be too much responsibility to introduce boys and girls in this way. I believe I once arranged the correspondence between two girls, and your friends may have found the boys through that.

I can say, however, that if your object is English, probably your type will not matter.

You might write the International Institute. Possibly they would help you.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a widow 34 years old. About a year ago I met a man 49 years old. I was immediately attracted to him by his quiet dignity. He is a traveling salesman and was stopping at a small family hotel where I was visiting. We spent several very pleasant evenings together in the hotel living room, and on one occasion we walked about two miles to a nearby town. He was all that anyone could expect. A perfect gentleman.

He stops regularly at this hotel about every two weeks. About two days before I returned home he came back and quite unexpectedly he told me that he was very much in love with me. Almost before I could speak he apologized for making this statement and said he did not have the right to tell me this as he was a married man. He begged by pardon and asked me not to feel that he did not respect me but that he just had to tell me how he felt. To be truthful, I love him very much but did not tell him so, but did tell him that I enjoyed his company very much and that if he was not married I would be very glad to have him visit me at my home.

I was in the habit of visiting at this place about every two months as the owners are family friends, but since that time I have made only two visits and each time he came while I was there. He did not refer to the incident of a year ago but was anxious to be in my company, but I managed not to be alone with him. Feeling as I do, do you think I should stop visiting these friends or just go as if nothing had ever happened? Each time I see him I admire him more than ever and even though I don't know what conditions are between he and his wife, don't you think the fair thing to do is to stay away. As I am an orphan, I have no one to confide in, so I told the lady I visit of the incident. She was very much surprised and said he had been coming there for over a year and it is the first time he had ever shown an interest in anyone, so I do not think he is the type of traveling man that has a sweetheart in every town. She advised me to continue my visits as if nothing had happened, but I feel that if this man is really interested my presence will just widen the breach between him and his wife. Or should I take my pleasures where I find them?

DISTRESSED.

It is always easier, of course, to keep away from the fire if you do not want to be burned. Unless you can visit your friend and when the gentleman calls, which is rather extraordinary if he makes a habit of coming without his wife, you make it plain by your actions that you are not interested in his amorous advances, you would better stay away from the town.

"Taking your pleasures where you find them" is just one way of saying that you would like to be encouraged in the idea of accepting this man's attentions. You probably know well how to put an end to the situation. It does not matter what the conditions are between the man and his wife—they would not justify you in a clandestine affair with a married man.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I SMILE as I read the outpouring of the heart of "No Skates" in tonight's column. For—my neighborhood is described exactly.

I might add that wild Injuns on the warpath could be no more vocal. A National League game could create no more genuine hilarity and boisterousness. The Injuns do come to the end of the march, however, and the National League stops before the Nth inning!

I put cotton in my ears when I must shut out the world, which includes fireworks, radios, skates, "London Bridge is Falling Down."

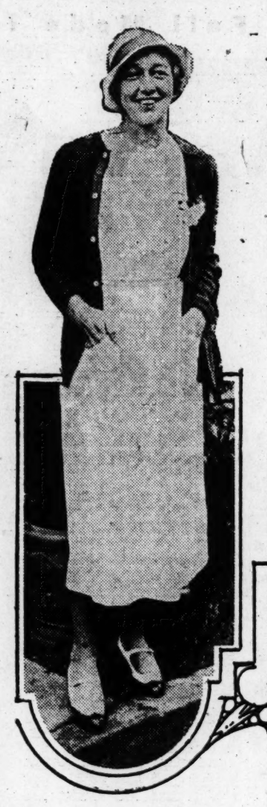

Try cotton, "No Skates!" It helps some.

COTTON EARS.

Paraffin is better.

"MOST ELIGIBLE BACHELOR" MARRIES

WON THE BACHELOR . . . GERTRUDE CONAWAY VANDERBILT.

BRIDE AND GROOM . . . photographed on their honeymoon trip around the world.

VANDERBILT . . . at the top, a close-up of the noted millionaire sportsman. Below, MISS ELEANOR SEARS, once reported engaged to him.

WHEN America's most sought-after bachelor slipped a wedding ring on a woman's finger the other day, the feminine portion of the population—young and old, widowed, single, married, divorced—put down their cards.

For nearly 30 years Harold Stirling Vanderbilt was the ace which they tried to hold. Debutants powdered their noses and did their best. Divorcees put their faith in mysterious perfumes and a knowledge of life. Stenographers dreamed of happy endings in which the Vanderbilt prince carried them away on a yacht.

Years ago, however, active hope was lost.

Now, at the age of 49, Vanderbilt has married Gertrude L. Conaway, who is 32 years old.

During the past 10 years, when Newport and Southampton were beginning to think the millionaire bachelor never intended to choose a feminine lead, apparently he was thinking the matter over. There is nothing startling about the marriage. It wasn't a case of love at first sight.

Vanderbilt, who is America's foremost yachtsman as well as one of the wealthiest and most blue-blooded of her aristocrats, knew Miss Conaway 10 years before he decided to take her on board his sloop on a matrimonial venture. The romance of the two developed as slowly and surely as a hardy plant.

Two people who belong to the same social world and enjoy the same sports and people, found each other congenial. Friendship ripened into affection.

Harold Vanderbilt, whose name spelled magic wherever debutants and their mothers gathered, hasn't had much romance in his life. The name of only one other woman has been linked with his. That was long ago. Just after the turn of the century, when the matrimonial prize was a student at Harvard, a rumor went the rounds that he was engaged to marry Miss Eleanora Sears of Boston.

Miss Sears, who has since achieved fame as a sportswoman, was interested in outdoor life. So was young Vanderbilt. She seemed to understand.

TIME after time their names were linked. Vanderbilt was graduated at Harvard in 1907. The marriage bells didn't ring.

But he and Miss Sears were seen places together and the rumor persisted. Miss Sears, who has become famous as a tennis player and golfer, has achieved her most notable success in long-distance walking.

But Vanderbilt didn't try to keep up with her. Whether they were always just good friends, or whether one or the other of them grew romantic, nobody will know.

Miss Sears has remained single. And it appeared that Vanderbilt didn't have marital intentions either, until not long ago.

After Harold Vanderbilt's graduation from Harvard he devoted his time to sports and business. He had so much money he couldn't count it. Just the same, he decided it would be a wise move to learn the railroad business which was the basis of the Vanderbilt fortune.

He began right at the bottom. The New York Central Railroad, which was an important part of the fortune founded by his great-grandfather, the late Comniodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, is his chief business interest. He and his brother, William, are executives in it today.

The young millionaire, however, didn't neglect his social interests. He danced with the debs and made pretty speeches to their mothers. But he was always a little bashful on land.

When he smelled salt water and felt the sailing winds in his hair, he was different. Boats had an appeal he couldn't resist. In odd contrast, cards did, too. He developed a passionate fondness for boating and bridge.

Vanderbilt won international fame in 1930, when his boat, the Enterprise, defender of America's cup, defeated Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V in four straight races.

With these two major interests in his life he didn't seem to have time for a third. A woman, so his friends began to believe, might be an upsetting factor in a boat or at a bridge table.

Years passed. Then, at 39, he met Gertrude Conaway. She was pretty, lively, interested in sports. They liked each other. The fact that the man was 17 years older than the girl didn't make any difference in their friendship. They began to be seen places together.

VANDERBILT entertains extensively at his home, Marble House, at Newport. Miss Conaway, as a society belle, spent considerable time at the fashionable watering place and went to all the parties. The meeting of the two people happened quite naturally.

The fact that she was going places with a Vanderbilt, especially one who had won fame in international races and bridge tournaments, didn't particularly impress Miss Conaway. She knew that his father was the late William Kissam Vanderbilt, and his mother the famous social leader who became Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont after the death of her first husband.

She knew, too, that his sister, Mrs. Louis Jacques Balsan of Paris, had once been the Duchess of Marlborough, and his grandfather was William H. Vanderbilt. Then, of course, there was his great-grandfather, the famous railroad wizard.

Miss Conway, too, had been reared with a sports background. When Vanderbilt mentioned sloops she spoke his language. She had been born in Philadelphia, grew up as a society girl, developed a flair for dramatics and won much applause in amateur theatricals. She was the daughter of the late Mrs. W. Barklie Henry and the late John L. Conaway, a wealthy retired banker.

Her father, who died more than 20 years ago, was a famous horseman and clubman in the Quaker City. Soon after her father's death her mother married again. Her stepfather won many yachting races off the Long Island coast.

But to get back to the wedding. The night before the ceremony took place Vanderbilt spent the evening playing cards. He never said a word about the nuptials that were going to be performed in the morning. Neither did he miss a trick.

Meanwhile, Miss Conaway had packed her bags, taken a train to New York and registered at the exclusive River Club, without saying a word about her plans for the morrow.

In the morning the famous couple went to the Municipal building and got a license. The clerk who questioned them didn't recognize them. They went directly to the Vanderbilt apartment at the Barclay and were married. Then they boarded an ocean liner.

Their staterooms adjoined. Mrs. Vanderbilt's reservation had been made in her maiden name. Not until the boat was past the harbor and striking for deep water did word drift out that the couple had been married.

THERE was no one in New York to give away the secret. Vanderbilt's brother, William, was cruising on his yacht, the Alva. Mrs. Belmont died last winter. Mrs. Henry, the bride's mother, died in England, following an operation, in the spring of 1930. On Christmas Eve, that same year, her husband died.

Vanderbilt chartered a yacht, the Argosy, for a two months' cruise of the Mediterranean for the honeymoon.

The bride and bridegroom were not alone when they sailed, though. With them were Mr. and Mrs. Roger Cutler.

There is a tendency to believe that marriages break up over the bridge table. It won't happen in this instance. Mrs. Vanderbilt does not play cards, although her husband is one of America's best players. He is recognized as the father of contract bridge in America. He and a party were playing bridge on a boat from Los Angeles to Havana, in 1925 when the game was born.

As the hours passed they wanted to enliven it. Vanderbilt made a suggestion. He told his friends they could improve auction bridge by adopting a feature which its French counterpart, plafond, uses. Its games must be bid in order to be scored. Everyone approved. The game was tried that way.

The revised game traveled across the country. The Whist Club issued an official set of rules with the table scoring based on Vanderbilt's idea.

Vanderbilt also did some pioneer work in bidding. He perfected a method of bidding which is known as the club—or sometimes as the Vanderbilt—convention.

In 1928 he donated a silver loving cup in the annual competition of contract bridge for a championship of four. Last fall he was one of America's chosen four. His team won—as it very frequently does.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

» by WYNN «

For Sunday, Sept. 17.

IF you knew that your future depended upon what you are able to plan today, what would you be thinking of and looking forward to doing? This is a day which can be made to yield big dividends. Use it. Prepare to work and think.

Uranus in the Tenth House—II.

Domestic and occupational changes are apt to combine soon in the affairs of those born July 18 to Aug. 11, and continuing till the summer of 1938. If you look ahead with dread, as some folks do, this looks unpleasant; but if you are willing to do your share and will meet the shifts that offer themselves to you, you can make progress during these coming five years. Just look at them as five years of opportunity to make the kind of changes that are steps UP the ladder of success and happiness. Cultivate the good regard of superiors in business, social and governmental relations; watch your affairs with partners, husband or wife, and parents; keep everything practical and constructive in these departments. Don't jump into the new but keep moving ahead.

Your Year Ahead.

If today is your birthday you have much to look forward to in the coming year. Dividing your money affairs into the sections: expect new circumstances to arise in joint finances (domestic budgets, etc.) and work to make use of the promising outlook for money personally earned, especially Jan. 10 to Feb. 8, next year. Danger: Feb. 24 to March 7, and July 1 to 8, 1934.

For Monday, Sept. 18.

What kind of person are you, anyway? Are you really of high capabilities? And if so, are you on the right track? If you are on the right track, are you headed in the right direction? If yes, answers all these, today is good for you.

Uranus in the Eleventh House—I.

From now till March, 1935, Uranus will be in the Equilibrium eleventh of those born June 10 to 24, bringing new friends and new experiences into their affairs. A reasonable amount of good judgment, which should be improving if you are as alert as most of those in this group, will enable you to make these new friends permanent assets; at the same time, don't forget to make yourself a permanent asset to those you want to keep. The mind is awakening now to important conditions, laws, relationships and departments of life all around you; the perceptions are apt to be clearer and the keenness of the senses more acute. A fine time to plan ahead years and years; plot out the rest of your life—you can do so much more with it when you know what you want. Do it.

Your Year Ahead.

This will be an excellent year in which to try to improve home conditions for those whose anniversary this is; work also to better money conditions between Jan. 27 and Feb. 8 next year, and thereafter. Watch health and relations with inferiors March 16 to that date in April. Steer around haste and recklessness, danger, between Feb. 26 and March 8, and July 3 to 9, 1934.

Tomorrow.

News for STAMP Collectors

Notes About U. S.

THE contemplated design for the 50c airmail stamp which is to be issued some time in October for use on mail carried by the Graf Zeppelin shows a portion of the map of Europe on one side and the skyline of the Chicago Fair at the other side, with the Zeppelin in flight in the center. The stamp will be rectangular in shape.

The Post Office Department has under consideration a stamp to commemorate the anniversary of the emancipation of slaves in America by Abraham Lincoln.

The date of issue for the Kosciusko stamp will be Oct. 13 and not Oct. 18.

The National Commission of Advanced American Art, in a letter to Postmaster James A. Farley, has requested that stamps be issued to commemorate the works of American artists.

The first day's sales of the special issue of the Century of Progress stamps in sheets of 25 at Chicago were the greatest in the history of the Postal service. On the date of issue, which was Aug. 25, there were 2,650,000 of the one-cent stamps and 2,625,000 of the three-cent stamps sold. This represents $105,250 added to the Treasury. When this issue was placed on sale on August 28 at the Philatelic Agency at Washington, D. C., an additional $8000 worth of the one and three-cent stamps were sold; $26,000 worth of mail orders were filled and the agency had on hand unfilled orders amounting to $20,000.

A new series of Wine revenue stamps have been prepared for use on wine sold in accordance with the prevailing 3.2 law. There are nine values, each printed in a different color.

The collection of State revenue stamps is being reviewed. Some of them, hard pressed for money, are imposing taxes on various articles and this is opening up a new and promisingly larger field for collectors of revenue stamps.

New Issues.

PERU—The assassination of President Sanchez Cerro removed any objection to the issue of stamps bearing his portrait so the 10c carmine stamp issued last year will now appear with an overprint reading "Defense Nacional." This stamp was issued with the President's portrait while the President was alive. After printing, it was discovered that it was against the law to issue stamps with the portrait of a living man so it was withdrawn from sale and presumably destroyed but now it comes to light with the above overprint.

POLAND—The 1 zloty stamp of Poland's current issue has been overprinted "Port Gdansk" for use in the Polish Postoffice in Danzig. The overprint reads vertically upward and the color is black.

SALVADOR—In the near future there will be five new stamps added to the airpost series. The values and colors are: 5c, light grey, 10c, orange; 1col, vermilion; 50col, ultramarine, 10col, black. The design will be similar to Scott's Type AP1 and the printing will be done locally by the National School of Graphic Arts. The following quantities of each value will be issued: 5c, 200,000; 10c, 230,000; 1col, 40,000; 3col, 20,000; 10col, 10,000. These are new values occasioned by the recent increase in postage rates.

SAMOA—The following two values of the fiscal stamps of New Zealand have been overprinted "Samoa" in red; Type PF7, 2 pound violet, Type PF7, 5 pound blue.

SOUTHWEST AFRICA—The 10p airmail has been discontinued and remaining stock sold out. The 3p value will also be discontinued.

SPAIN—Type A99, 30c. carmine without control numbers on the back has had the following inscription "Marruecos" imprinted diagonally on it for use in Morocco. The 1c. green of 1920, imperforate has been found perf. 11. This is believed to be an unofficial perforation.

SYRIA—The Op50 value with the design of an airplane over Homs has been re-issued in dark brown.

TURKEY—The last value in the set of 19 denominations has just been issued. It is type A77, 250k. chocolate. It is issued both perf. 11½ and perf. 12. The figures of value are white on a dark background.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA—Scott's Type D2 in the 2p. denomination has just been issued in a deep purple and black. It is done by the rotary press method of printing.

URUGUAY—Five values of the new postage series have been released. The first four values are of the small artigas Type A109, with the exception that upon the 15m. is a portrait of LaValleja. The fifth value is the large artigas type. The values and colors are as follows: 5m. carmine brown, 5c; olive-green, 8c; orange-brown, 20c; red-brown, 1p. brown.

TURKEY—The 10th anniversary of the Turkish Republic will be commemorated with a special issue of stamps. The use of these stamps will be compulsory upon all letters and postcards posted on that day whether for interior or foreign delivery. The anniversary date is Oct. 10.

Here is a list of some decorative edibles to brighten the table: Slices of lemon rolled in chopped parsley; celery stuffed with cheese and covered with paprika; curled celery; stuffed eggs; tiny onions sprinkled lightly with minute pieces of parsley; watercress; pickles; cream or cottage cheese balls sprinkled with paprika; orange or lemon slices; stuffed dates.

BLONDE TROUBLE

A New Serial Story

By ROB EDEN

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN.

IT WAS only when Connie reached the street that she realized she had left her purse on the table in the Marine Club. For a moment she was panic-stricken at the thought that she would have to go to that table and get it. Feel Lalia Ivor's insolent eyes on her once more. See Ned's discomfiture.

There wasn't much in the purse of value except a little change that would get her to Seahurst by train. Her weekly salary check she hadn't cashed. That was in her dresser at Seahurst. But without the purse she didn't have a cent.

No pocket in the long, pink taffeta dress she was wearing. No pocket in the short, pink taffeta jacket that matched it which she had luckily been wearing while she was dancing with Ned. Not even subway fare to get to the Irving apartments where she could always borrow money from Beth or Stella Putnam.

The panic was disappearing. Only one thing to do and that was to walk to the Irving apartments. Hadn't she walked five miles up the beach with Ned last night? Not in high heels, of course, but the Irving apartments were only about three miles from the Marine club. And she wasn't tired.

Conscious of her long, trailing, conspicuous dress, she started out. At the end of the first five blocks, she was breathless, but when 10 more were behind her, she felt somewhat better. Cruising taxis stopped by her now and then, but she waved them on.

Beth and Stella might be out when she got to the Irving apartments, and if they were, she would have to borrow from the night phone girl or the elevator boy, and neither of them ever had much money with them.

AT the half-way point her rage against Lalia calmed down a little. Perhaps the girl really loved Ned. She must love him to come into a night club where he had taken another girl, and start a scene.

Connie hated scenes. She always had and she always would. Hurrying along, she told herself fiercely that Mr. Ritchie hadn't taken Lalia into consideration when he made his plans.

"Once you get Ned's attention, Miss Paige," he assured her, "it will be easy. Clear sailing."

Yes, easy, clear sailing, except that Lalia had been forgotten. Even Connie hadn't considered her much until tonight. Oh, she had thought idly about her at times as she might think about a person she didn't know and would never see. The possibility that Lalia might make trouble had never entered her mind.

Well, Lalia was starting to make trouble. She had started tonight in a big way, and Connie was glad she'd had the sense to leave the Marine club when she did. The little introduction she'd had to Lalia tonight hadn't been a pleasant one.

Her shrill, rising voice, the unashamed rage in her blue eyes, her utter indifference to the patrons of the Marine club frightened the girl. On the stage Lalia was a smiling, happy sprite. Lalia, fighting for Ned, was a spiteful terror.

"And what's more," Connie murmured to herself at the end of the second mile. "I'll be in the thick of the trouble, the same as Ned. If I'd only thought of that before I took the job—if I'd only thought to ask about Lalia Ivor.

"She doesn't like me. She showed that plainly tonight. She's jealous. But now that I'm in it—what am I going to do?"

That was it. What was she going to do? She could resign in the morning. She could tell Mr. Ritchie the job was too much for her—that she was afraid of what might happen. Resign from a job that wasn't a real job at all—simply a practical application of a father's knowledge of psychology.

Mr. Ritchie wouldn't be any too pleased at her resignation. He was satisfied with the way things were going, too satisfied for Connie's comfort. He'd laugh at her fears.

"I'll take care of Lalia," she could almost hear him say. "You don't have to worry." He was always telling her she didn't have to worry.

• • •

SHE could say to him, "It isn't an honest, decent thing I'm doing, Mr. Ritchie—" when he had persuaded her there wouldn't be any more trouble with Lalia Ivor—for he would do that.

His answer to that? Simple. "Didn't you consider that when you agreed to take my job, Miss Paige?"

So all around she'd be beaten. His arguments were always so much stronger than hers. She hadn't considered the honesty, the decency of Mr. Ritchie's proposition when she had taken the job, although her cousin had. She had only thought of the boredom from which the job would release her—the fun of it.

Only a few steps more now. Already she could see the light in the doorway of the Irving apartments. She was tired, but not as tired as she had expected to be. Some money from Beth or Stella, then a taxi to the Grand Central station and the one o'clock train to Seahurst. . . .

A man hurried from the entrance of the apartment house as she was going in. Connie had passed him and was in the lobby before she realized who he was. Then rushing out, she caught up with him at the corner.

"Mr. Douglas! I thought you were at Seahurst!"

"Sorry, I didn't recognize you. I thought you were at Seahurst, too." He took off the soft cap he was wearing.

Clive Douglas in the neighborhood of the Irving apartments, coming out the entrance.

"You're in this neighborhood again, Mr. Douglas?" she asked, trembling.

He couldn't have left Seahurst for good. At dinner, Connie had especially inquired of Mary whether he was going and Mary had said no, not this evening. She had just seen him go into the dining room with Miss Janet. . . . Yet, here, where she shouldn't be. . . .

"I am, Connie. I had a little business to do in the city tonight, so I left after dinner, but I'm going right back."

"Business?"

"Business. Are you returning to Seahurst tonight? If you are, I can run you out. My car is a couple of blocks away."

Connie didn't reply immediately. She was busy thinking that Mr. Douglas must have changed from his dinner clothes to his street clothes before he left Seahurst on his little business trip to the city.

For he wasn't wearing his tuxedo. He was dressed in the same suit he had worn the first time she had seen him in the kichenette she and Beth Lewis shared upstairs.

"Then you're not going back?"

"It—happens that I am going back to Seahurst—"

"You'll drive with me? I hate to ride alone. Much rather have your company, Connie. Want to go upstairs, first?"

Connie said she didn't want to go, and started off with him to where his car was parked. One block, two blocks, and then another to the west. Why had he parked his car so far away from the apartment house when there was plenty of room in front at this time of the night?

Why was he in the district, anyway? If he had any sense at all, he'd stay away—miles from West Eighty-sixth street. Twelve-thirty. What was he doing here a half hour after midnight?

DOUGLAS interrupted the questions she was asking herself.

"Here's the car." They had halted near a shining, low, black roadster. "There's a blanket in the rumble seat. You may need it."

He unlocked the back and produced a light robe. Connie was glad for the warmth of it around her shoulders, for the night was beginning to be chilly.

"One of Mr. Ritchie's cars?" she asked shortly. The garages at Seahurst held a whole fleet of them, from the station wagon to the chocolate colored limousine that belonged to Mrs. Ritchie.

"No; mine."

His car? Perhaps he was a thief because he liked luxuries, couldn't get along without them. She shivered, but not from the cold this time.

"Had it long?"

"A few weeks. Runs nicely."

Connie wasn't familiar with the prices of cars, but she knew enough about cars to know that this black roadster was an expensive make, and that it was brand-new.

The dashboard was shining chromium, the seats were real leather, and the glass in the windshield and wings was very heavy beveled plate.

"Fine."

Douglas let out his clutch, and they were on their way. Connie was thinking that they had an hour and a half of riding before them, and that she was much more excited now than she had been when she and Ned had started out for the Marine Club.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

"You can't mix business with pleasure," firmly states BETH LEWIS, the efficient and self-satisfied cousin of 21-year-old CONNIE PAIGE. But Connie isn't satisfied with her uneventful life and she accepts GROVER RITCHIE'S amazing offer. The president of the Ritchie Land and Improvement Co. is worried about his son's infatuation with a dancer, LALIA IVOR. Mr. Ritchie hires Connie as his summer secretary, her real job being to intrigue Ned's interest in the face of his father's assumed disapproval.

At Seahurst, Connie's zest in the game suffers when she meets CLIVE DOUGLAS, JANET RITCHIE'S house guest, whom she recognizes as the intruder she found in her kitchenette only a few days before. When two of Janet's bracelets disappear, Connie accuses Douglas, but he denies any guilt. Connie finds the jewels and returns them secretly to Janet's room, unable to explain why she is protecting Douglas. Can she be falling in love with him?

In the meantime Ned finds the forbidden fruit attractive. He takes Connie to the Marine club and she realizes uncomfortably that he is falling in love with her. Returning to their table after dancing, they find Lalia Ivor waiting for them. When the dancer starts making a scene, Connie murmurs an excuse and hurriedly leaves.

Christopher's Business Deal

"NOW what did you do?" asked Willy Nilly nervously.

"I made a good business deal," cawed the Crow.

"Please don't let's get into any more trouble," begged Willy Nilly.

"I am not taking any chances," said Christopher. "I gave the junk man the dollar for the silver. But I thought I would look around and see where that monkey might be. On my way to the woods where Jelly Bear had seen him I saw a notice offering a reward of two dollars for the return of a lost monkey.

"I found the monkey and told him to follow me and he would be returned to his owner. He wanted to go back.

"So I flew along and he swung from branch to branch until we reached the open road and the place where the organ grinder was stopping. I got the reward of two dollars and he was so happy he wouldn't take back the $1.32 Jelly Bear had taken from the frightened monkey.

"Now you see what an honest Crow I can be when it's of good use!"

"Then we have $2.15 to be put aside for some time when we'll really need it," said Willy Nilly. "Oh, how wonderful it is to be free of worry again. We'll all sleep well tonight."

And so well did they sleep that they completely missed one whole day! At first it was a little confusing, but soon they realized what had happened—they had not awakened the following morning but the one after that!

Housekeeping Tips

Don't neglect the occasional washing of the rubber ice trays in the mechanical refrigerator. Use hot water and soapsuds and rinse with plenty of boiling water.

Make French dressing in quantities, pour into a bottle, cork and store in the ice box. It will keep for a month and will serve as a base for a variety of dressings.

NEW ornamental gadgets for the home are arriving with such a flurry that a woman will have difficulty in separating her household allowance from her clothes allowance. The decorative glassware items alone will cause her to forget about hats and dresses while she indulges in vases, cigarette holders and other transparent objects. The fan-shaped glass vases that are on display are almost irresistible, even though the garden flower season is waning. These are of milky white glass and have bright red serpents twined around the bases.

Glass cigarette holders and little individual ash trays are as light as feathers. These have white swirled designs on clear glass so that they are most effective and dainty for a dining room as well as for use elsewhere. The cigarette holders are of the skeleton type that expose an entire package while the ash trays have their edges fluted occasionally to provide resting places for the cigarette.

Tiny glass birds of petal pink glass are so fragile that they deserve to be placed out of reach of clumsy hands. They are intended for what-not shelves which show a preference for the exquisite rather than the voguish sort of decorations. The birds are blown up so fat they look as though they are about to burst. Their black beaks and eyes provide the color contrast to their delicate bodies.

Those who have admired the black silhouettes appearing on convex glass will be interested to know that the new autumn shipments include an increased number of subjects. Besides the many colonial themes there are many that will appeal to children. A pair of these wall ornaments will add an appealing touch to a small son's or daughter's room.

Modernistic looking flowers and leaves of glass are promising to be significant among the artificial floral decorations of the new season. Delicate shades of blue and yellow appear with white and black. Long, slender wisps of glass in more vivid colorings are suggested for use with a floral piece or for separate table decorations.

Low fluted bowls present another reason why glassware promises to be on display in many homes next winter. These are a delicate peach in color and will look quite handsome on a buffet or cabinet regardless of whether they are filled with fruit or flowers. But if you plan a purchase be certain to get a pair of them as a single bowl does not do the idea justice.

If the unusual sort of decorative pieces appeal to you there is a Satyr head bud vase you might like to add to your collection. This is of unrelieved white china and stands quite tall. Small grooves where buds can be inserted are provided at intervals up and down the sides.

• • •

As inexpensive, colorful additions to a table or dressing table there are some bright china boxes with a happy appeal. Judging by their size these containers would serve equally as well for trinkets or powder. Backgrounds are of vivid blue, green, yellow or red and each has a floral design on the top as well as a gilt band around the side. Tops are hinged.

• • •

A little Chinese garden is one of the cleverest of new ornaments to place on a table or shelf. This consists of a cherry tree with tiny blossoms made out of shells under which appears a little man in Oriental dress. The entire display with a sand base and a few tufts of grass is arranged in a small green flower pot.

Mrs. Roosevelt Wears Low Tan Sport Shoes

To Freshen Pretzels

Pretzels loose their freshness quickly, but they can be heated for five minutes in a moderate oven and they will be as crisp as when first purchased. Petzels can be served with beverages, soups or salads.

Gray Fall Footwear Offered by Paris

PARIS.—Gray shoes are a new note in fall footwear. The new models, designed of kid to wear with dark gray and plum colored clothes trimmed with gray fur, are seen in a half-dozen shades, including mouse, armour, smoke, lead, iron, granite, gun and taupe.

Honey put in grape fruit in place of sugar gives a flavor as well as the necessary sweetening. Prepare your grape fruit with the honey and then place in the icebox several hours before eating.

Line cake and bread pans with waxed papers and this will aid in preventing the products from sticking.

Pink-Green Revived For Evening Gown

WASHINGTON.—The charming old-fashioned combination of pink and green was used for an evening costume by Mrs. Edward Keating. Her chiffon frock beflowered with roses in varying pinks was worn with a soft green velvet sash and matching crepe slippers.

When poaching eggs put one teaspoon of vinegar in the boiling water and the eggs will hold together much better.

A Few Don'ts

Don't leave milk or cream bottles without their tops.

Don't throw away scraps of soap. Put them in a soap shaker and they can be used to the very end.

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

1.—Dear young ladies, your question should be changed to read, "Are there more charming girls now than formerly?" If not, then all modern education has been a grand fizzle. Certainly there are far more charming, intelligent, cultivated, fine mannered, well dressed girls—many times more. In addition to the spread of high schools and colleges, the newspapers, movies, women's magazines, fashion and etiquette books, etc., have brought cultivated manners, fineness and gentility, not to thousands but to zillions of girls who did not have the chance to cultivate their charms in former years. It is the chance, not of a lifetime, but of centuries for men.

2.—I ask this question purposely just to say science does not know and to ask you, dear reader, to aid science to answer it. The biological department of the University of California at Berkeley, California, under its head, Prof. Samuel J. Holmes, is carrying on a great research to try to answer this question. If you are a twin, either of the like or unlike kind, please aid both science and humanity by sending your name and address to Prof. Holmes, and give a short sketch of the chief diseases you have had—either one or both of you. I myself am a twin and had a twin sister who died at seventeen and I am sending Prof. Holmes our full history.

3.—The best answer to this was given by Premier MacDonald of Great Britain, who said at the Pilgrims' dinner in New York, "I do not know who invented the phrase 'A war to end war,' but whoever did invent it was a fool," He added that there is a secret clause in every peace treaty, not printed, and not readable, but always there. It contradicts the notion that war can end war. If printed the secret clause would read, "When does the next war begin?" This answers the question.

WHATER YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT, MISTER MAYOR?

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

As night officer Jim Gibson was sitting in front of Barth's store, Wednesday evening, two or three eggs spattered on the sidewalk, not far from the nightwatch's feet. Apparently Jim got the impression that the eggs came from the top of the building. He went back in the alley and made a thoro search, having Curley Hosselton go on top of the flat roofs while he looked below. But the culprit was not found. Egg throwing has been more or less in vogue in Lamar for years past, and up to this time the hen fruit slingers have always gotten away safely with their stunt.

BIG IDEA No. 32345345

Gents:

I see by the papers where farmers are being urged to do their part to raise the price of pork by selling their little pigs before they become big pigs. This is interesting. But what I am getting at is, why wouldn't it be a good idea for literary gentlemen, as they are called by those who do not know them, to put their stoop shoulders to the wheel by marketing all short stories before they have time to lie around the house long enough to become novels.

BERLIN—For humming the "Internationale" on the street while returning home from a saloon a 60-year-old Berlin shoemaker was fined and sentenced to four months in jail, since his singing was "calculated to incite to violence."

And in Germany there's no more serious crime. Especially if it's the authorities who're incited.

Wall Street Packs Its Trunk

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK CITY seems set on taxing stocks four cents a share.

Why not add another cent and buy it outright.

Tom Powers says the brokers will go West in the Covered Wagon. That's better than going East in a glass one.

Any state that wants the Stock Exchange for a neighbor can put in a sealed bid right now. New Orleans has its cotton, St. Louis its fur, Chicago its grain and Kansas City its beef. Is there any town that desires three shells and a pea?

All you require for a stock exchange is chalk and a blackboard. Then you give the folks a lesson in evaporating arithmetic.

We will miss the good old Stock Exchange. But it's about time that circus took to the road again. New York is farmed out anyway. The exchange belongs in a new spot where the hand is still quicker than the eye.

DAVID LAMSON CONVICTED OF MURDER OF HIS WIFE

Death Penalty Recommended as State Requested, by Jury Which Included Five Women, at San Jose, Cal.

VERDICT REACHED IN 8 1-2 HOURS

Only Three Ballots Taken, the First Two Standing 11 to 1 for Conviction—Defense Announces That It Will Appeal.

By the Associated Press.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 16.—David A. Lamson was convicted tonight of the murder of his wife, Allene Thorpe Lamson, in their Stanford University campus home last Memorial day by a jury which recommended the death penalty.

The 31-year-old executive of the Stanford University Publishing House was convicted eight and one-half hours after the jury of seven men and five women received the case.

In dead silence the verdict was read at a night session of court hastily called. A scream came from the direction of the place where Lamson's sisters, Dr. Margaret Lamson and Mrs. Willis Thoits, sat.

The convicted man was slightly pale, but gave no sign that the verdict had affected him.

The jury required three ballots, said G. Peterson of Saratoga, the foreman. He said there was no doubt about the verdict from the first ballot and that neither was there any doubt about the first degree murder finding.

'Take It On the Chin, Kid.'

As Lamson sat down beside his counsel, Edwin Rea and Maurice Rankin, Rea turned to him and said, "take it on the chin, kid."

"Okeh," Lamson replied, his only comment during the brief session.

He refused to make any statement as he was led from the court room, nor would his attorneys talk, except to say that they would take an appeal.

The jury foreman said the vote on the first two ballots was 11 to one for conviction.

Mrs. Lamson's family lives in Lamar, Mo., and she was buried there.

Jury Sends for Exhibits.

Five hours after it had retired the jury sent for all exhibits in the case, including a wash basin similar to that in the Lamson home, clothing, photographs and maps.

Superior Judge R. R. Syer charged the jury that it might convict Lamson of first degree murder and fix the penalty at death or life imprisonment; might return a verdict of second degree murder or of acquittal.

The death penalty was asked for by the State.

In addition to the usual instructions regarding premeditation, deliberation, the presumption of innocence and the manner in which a verdict might be returned, Judge Syer charged the jurors to distrust the whole of any testimony by any witness who had been found to have testified wilfully falsely on any single material fact.

"The defendant," he said, "has offered himself as a witness, and you are instructed to apply the same rule to his testimony as you would to the testimony of other witnesses."

Allan P. Lindsay, deputy District Attorney, who made the final argument for the prosecution, called attention to evidence that Lamson had visited Mrs. Sara Kelley, Sacramento divorcee, as supplying a possible motive. The defense declared that his calls were purely on business.

One by one the exhibits taken from the house were unfolded and displayed to the jurors as Lindsay sought to enforce his arguments. Taking up the iron pipe, with which the State charged Lamson murdered his wife, Lindsay whacked it on the rail of the jury box to illustrate that it was a formidable weapon.

He closed with a declaration that although the evidence was circumstantial, the meaning of the photographed scene could not be reconciled with the defense that Mrs. Lamson died as a result of an accidental fall against the wash basin.
